AUTUMN SALE

While prices of linen goods have been steadily advancing owing to the scarcity of Flax, we are in the fortunate position of being able to offer high-class goods at the undernoted very special prices, but we advise all our friends to secure their requirements early, as prices cannot possibly be lower, but are very likely to be much higher.

FAMOUS CAR BREAKS OWN PERFORMANCE RECORDS

Three years ago the Chrysler 70 showed what a car could and should be. To-day the new Chrysler 72 surpasses even the wonderful speed and safety and comfort of the 70. Six-cylinder engine — larger than before—and mounted in rubber for greater smoothness. Seven-bearing crankshaft now fitted with counterweights. Longer wheelbase, larger bodies. Rubber-anchored springs. And Chrysler's magical hydraulic brakes. Come to our showrooms. Test the 72—free of all cost—and know a new thrill of motoring!

'I am simply astounded!'

Here's another firm believer in "the little daily dose." Read his own words:

"Some years ago I tried your wonderful salts without any beneficial result, simply because I was not sufficiently persistent, but one of my sons persuaded me to give Kruschen a fair trial. I am simply astounded at the result.

I have travelled the world over, am getting pretty well on in life, and have had most of the diseases to which human flesh is heir, and consequently my digestion has been somewhat sadly impaired.

I am fond of a 'wee drappie,' and particularly of a good glass of beer, but hitherto it has been martyrdom for me to touch it.

I am now not only experiencing that delightful 'Kruschen feeling,' but I can take my glass of whisky or beer with any man; but I do not crave for alcohol as I used to do to relieve that sinking and depressing feeling, because 'Kruschen does it for me.'"

20th March, 1927. C. B., Bath.

Kruschen—given a fair trial—brought an altogether new kind of fitness, something he had never known before.

Start Kruschen yourself to-morrow morning. Keep it up for a few weeks and you will find the same result.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for a Farthing a Day.

Every chemist sells Kruschen in 6d., 1/-, and 1/9 bottles. A 1/9 bottle lasts three months—a farthing a day for health and happiness. Start to-morrow. Tasteless in Tea.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S PAY.

ACTION AGAINST DUBLIN CORPORATION.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

An action listed as Burke v. Dublin Corporation, which was heard yesterday, related to a claim by a number of ex-Service men employed by the Corporation for a declaration that they are entitled to half-pay or half-wages during the period of the Great War, and, in addition, to half of any general additional remuneration by way of war bonus which was granted by the Corporation.

Mr. Charles S. Campbell (instructed by Mr. Charles J. Murray, LL.D.), who appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs, said that originally there was a very large number of plaintiffs, making this a very representative action, but by consent the number had been cut down to three, the present plaintiffs being representative of classes in regard to which any question might arise.

In the year 1914 large numbers of men employed by local bodies and by general members of the public volunteered for service in the British Army during the war or were called up by reason of their being reservists. At the time the plaintiffs volunteered, the Corporation, with the object of facilitating such people and seeing that they or their families should not be deprived of their livelihood or left penniless, passed resolutions, the effect of which was that these men or their dependents were to get half-pay or half-wages during the continuance of their service in the British Army. Acting on the faith of that representation, these men joined the Army, continued to remain in the Army, and went through terrible and difficult times and trials.

Many of them never came back; many came back in a weakened, incapacitated condition, and some, fortunately, came back alive and well. While they were away two things happened. First of all, they got paid half-pay or half-wages, representing half of what was actually paid to them when they joined the Army. The second thing that happened was that in the course of the war the cost of living went up tremendously, and after a while representatives of the people who looked after the working classes, and particularly the working-class employés of the Corporation, made representations, the result of which was that the remuneration paid to the men who remained at home was increased by what was generally called a war bonus. That was paid to all the employés of the Corporation at home in similar grades to those of these various plaintiffs who went away, but it was not paid to the men who were in the Army. What was continued to be paid to them was half of the actual wages which were, in fact, being paid to them when they joined. That, shortly, was the statement of fact.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The three plaintiffs in the present action, said counsel, were Joseph O'Reilly, Patrick Lawlor and Joseph Lynam, an order having been made on the 6th May, 1927, by consent, continuing all further proceedings between them and the Corporation. The action was brought for a declaration that the plaintiffs are entitled to receive a proportionate part of the war bonus which was, in fact, paid to the persons who were in the same grade of employment, but who remained at home, and which was not, in fact, paid to these men because they were in the Army.

Counsel read the resolutions passed by the Corporation; and said that the plaintiffs, accepting the offers contained in them, enlisted, and when their respective war services came to an end and they entered into their respective employment with the Corporation, the Corporation refused to pay them any of the additional remuneration. Plaintiffs claimed to be entitled to have their war services reckoned as employment; they asked that an account be taken of the amount due to them in respect of half pay or half wages and general additional remuneration by way of war bonuses, and for consequential relief.

The defendants admitted that the period of time during which the plaintiffs were serving with the Forces was to be reckoned as employment for the purpose of ascertaining their pensionable rights and for all purposes where continuity in service or length of service with the defendants is material, but not for any other purpose. They pleaded that the causes of action of the plaintiffs were actions grounded upon contracts without speciality, and had not been commenced and sued out within six years after the respective causes of action accrued; and among other pleas were the pleas that there never was any value or consideration for the alleged resolutions; that the necessary sanction or consents of the Local Government Board were not obtained, as alleged; and that the alleged contracts did not include any general additional remuneration by way of war bonus granted by the Corporation to the men who remained at home.

Mr. Campbell said that they had been met very fairly and properly by the Corporation in this action, as they had arrived at a statement of agreed facts which would, he thought, considerably shorten the matter and crystallise the items with which his lordship would have to deal.

THE JUDGE'S COMPLIMENT.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that whoever was responsible for that statement of agreed facts deserved the greatest credit possible.

Mr. Campbell said that both sides would greatly appreciate his lordship's observation. He did, and he was sure his friend, Mr. Wood, K.C., and Mr. Burke did. He had discovered that there were more than ninety separate items of proofs.

Mr. Justice Meredith—Mr. Wood and the Law Agent deserve very great credit. It will save a very considerable amount of time and enormous expense.

Mr. Wood, K.C. I thank your lordship.

Mr. Justice Meredith—I like, when I see a thing like this, to point it out, so that credit may be given where it is due.

Mr. Campbell then referred to the Local Government (Emergency Provisions) Act, 1916, Section 1, and argued that the Corporation could pay these men the amount, which, taken with their military pay, was not more than they would have received had they stayed at home, and would, according to his interpretation, have to go to the Local Government Board for sanction only when the amount was more than that. Sanction was not necessary at all for civil pay, plus military pay, which did not exceed what the civil remuneration would be.

Mr. Justice Meredith—Your case is really that no sanction of the Local Government Board was required at all and that you can succeed wholly independently of that Statute?

Mr. Campbell—I can; but I think the Statute makes it conclusive in this way—that it shows what the position of these men was. I rely on the Statute, and, as an alternative, I say that the moment I joined, after the resolutions were passed, I became entitled to get my half-wages or half-pay, and that the law says that that includes war bonus.

The whole of this question of war bonus, continued Mr. Campbell, had been gone into with great care, and the meaning of "war bonus" had been decided by the House of Lords. It was quite clear and beyond all doubt that civil pay included any increase by way of war bonus, and in support of this argument he cited the case of Sutton v. the Attorney-General—39, Times Law Reports, page 295. The law, he submitted, was conclusively in his favour.

BRITISH JUDGMENT QUOTED.

Mr. Wood, K.C., who, with Mr. Gerard Burke (instructed by Mr. I. J. Rice), appeared for the Corporation, said that the real answer to this case was the judgment in Aylott v. West Ham Board of Guardians—1927, 1 ch. 30. It was a decision of the Court of Appeal, and was on the ground that the Statute of Limitations applied. All this other matter in the present action went very much by the board.

He thought that the real answer was the Statute of Limitations, as the writ was issued on the 20th November, 1926. Each of these men had returned to the Corporation employment a long way over six years prior to that date, and the first application they ever made to the Corporation that they were entitled to the pay mentioned was on the 10th May, 1923. The governing word in the resolutions was "half-pay," and what the Local Government Board sanctioned was a very specific scale. The bonus never became payable under the contract. The Corporation received a deputation from the British Legion, and counsel's opinion received from them was sent to the Local Government Board. In that opinion Mr. Dickie pointed out the decision that counsel had referred his lordship to, and the Local Government Board in the most explicit way enjoined the Corporation to raise the Statute of Limitations, because it was felt that under the resolutions there was no agreement to pay this bonus at any time as part of the contract by the Corporation with their employés.

Mr. Campbell, in the course of his reply, pointed out that the last resolution was passed in January, 1915, and sanction was obtained to it. So far as the Statute of Limitations was concerned, he said that such cases as the present case were not, and could not be, founded upon speciality; they were not statutory, but contractual, and the period under Section 20 of the Common Law Procedure Act was twenty years in such cases, not six years.

ACTION DISMISSED.

Mr. Justice Meredith, in his judgment, said that he did not consider that the required sanction to what was called the condition of the bonus had ever been obtained, and he thought that the arguments in the Aylott case were unanswerable. He dismissed the action, with costs, but suggested that the Corporation should not ask the plaintiffs to pay costs in view of the importance of the whole case.

TITLE DEEDS OF PROPERTY.

BANK'S ACTION.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

The hearing began of an action, in which the National Bank, Ltd., were plaintiffs, and Frank Sweeney, Dungloe, County Donegal, was defendant. The plaintiffs claimed a declaration that, by virtue of the deposit by Messrs. John Sweeney and Son, Ltd., general merchants and hotel proprietors, Dungloe, with them at their Dungloe branch on August 3, 1923, of the title deeds relating to certain lands and premises, they were entitled to a good and valid equitable charge on the lands and premises in respect of all moneys due by the company to the plaintiffs. Plaintiffs further asked that judgment for the amount due to them be enforced, if necessary, by a sale of the lands and premises, and that a receiver be appointed.

STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

The plaintiffs set out in their statement of claim that John Sweeney and Son, Ltd., went into voluntary liquidation in 1925, and that Charles Magee and John Brown were duly appointed liquidators. In the course of the liquidation the liquidators, in consideration of the sum of £1,000, sold to the defendant, Frank Sweeney, all the hereditaments which were the subject of the plaintiffs' equitable mortgage, and conveyed and assigned to the defendant all the estate, interest, and business of John Sweeney and Son, Ltd. Prior to this sale, plaintiffs said, they informed the solicitors for the liquidators that they intended to rely upon the securities lodged with them for the full value of their claim, and the solicitors for the liquidators informed them that the hereditaments had been assigned by the company to the defendant, subject to the plaintiffs' claim.

On foot of their equitable mortgage, plaintiffs claimed £8,816 16s. 3d. for principal, and £1,287 17s. 4d. for interest up to October 28, 1926.

DEFENDANT'S PLEA.

The defendant pleaded that if the title deeds of the lands and premises mentioned were lodged with the plaintiffs, and that if such deposits were made, no resolution of the company was ever passed authorising such deposit. The amount advanced, defendant contended, was in excess of the amount which the directors of the company were authorised to borrow under the Articles of Association. The defendant further declared that he was a bona fide purchaser for value of the lands and premises without notice of plaintiffs' equitable mortgage. He denied that any moneys were due to the plaintiffs, as principal and interest, on foot of an indenture of mortgage. Finally, the defendant pleaded that he acquired the premises, if at all, as the agent and trustee for the two companies—A. Sweeney and Co. (Burtonport), Ltd., and B. Sweeney and Co. (Dungloe), Ltd. These premises and hereditaments were, by two deeds dated 6th and 7th August, 1926, respectively, assigned by the defendant to one or other of these companies, and the estate and interest of the defendant therein was now vested in one or other of the said companies.

Mr. M. Maguire, K.C., with Mr. H. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Mr. P. C. Furlong) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. H. J. Maloney, K.C., with Mr. E. J. Kelly (instructed by Mr. Thomas Maguire) were for the defendant.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Mr. Francis Carroll, bank manager for the plaintiffs at Dungloe in 1923, gave evidence of the deposit of the securities in the bank as security for all "present and future liabilities" of John Sweeney and Son. The deposits were made by Murray Sweeney, secretary of the company.

Mr. Eugene A. McCarthy, present manager of the plaintiffs' bank at Dungloe, gave evidence of correspondence between John Sweeney and Son and the bank with reference to that debt. In May or June, 1925, witness stated, John Sweeney made an offer of 3s. in the £ or 5s. over a period to pay off their debt to the bank. Witness reported the matter to his directors.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that he would like to look into the documents and correspondence in the case, and he reserved judgment.

LURGAN COMPANY'S SHARES.

MASTER'S JURISDICTION QUESTIONED.

A case of Matheson and others v. Wilson, which was concerned with a proposal to purchase shares in the Ivy Weaving Co., Lurgan, was the subject of a further application, when counsel on behalf of the defendant, Mr. Thomas J. Wilson, applied, by way of prohibition, restraining the Master of the High Court from acting on or making any inquiry under the order of the Supreme Court dated July 26th, 1927, on the ground that he had no jurisdiction under the Rules of Court or otherwise to act on the order.

The notice of motion set out that acting under the order of the Supreme Court would be exceeding the Master's functions, and that so much of the order as purported to give him such power was ultra vires the Constitution, and that if the Courts of Justice Act purported to give him such power the Act in that event was ultra vires the Constitution.

Mr. Dickie, K.C., with whom was Mr. Meares (instructed by Messrs. White and Meares), said that they had raised the question before the Master that he had no jurisdiction to hold the inquiry.

NO PRECEDENT.

Mr. Justice Sullivan—Though ordered to do it by the Supreme Court?

Mr. Dickie—Yes.

Mr. Justice Hanna—Have you any precedent for asking the High Court to restrain an officer who is acting under the order of the Supreme Court?

Mr. Dickie said that he had none at present. There could not have been a precedent in this country before the Constitution was passed. If the Master was a Court he (counsel) was asking for prohibition; if he was not a Court he was asking for the ordinary jurisdiction of the High Court over their own officers.

Mr. Justice Hanna—That is not done by injunction; it is done by a direction to the officer.

Mr. Dickie asked how could he get a direction if he did not come before the Court to get it. The Master was in a peculiar position. As far as administration was concerned he was under the jurisdiction of the Minister for Justice. As far as anything that came before him as a Judge was concerned he was under the jurisdiction of the President of the High Court.

"LIKE MAHOMET'S COFFIN."

Mr. Justice Hanna—He seems to be like Mahomet's coffin.

Mr. Dickie referred to the order of the Supreme Court on the appeal from the decision of Mr. Justice Hanna. The Court declared that the measure of damages was the loss sustained by each individual contractor through the defendant's failure to carry out his contract, and that each of the plaintiffs was entitled to at least nominal damages, and that those who had been compelled to pay up the amounts guaranteed by them to the Belfast Banking Company were entitled to recover the sums so paid, and that each of the plaintiffs was also entitled to recover the loss, if any, caused by the refusal of the defendant to purchase his shares; and the Court referred it to the Master to ascertain the amount of the damages suffered by the plaintiffs, and directed that judgment should be entered for them in accordance with the finding of the Master and his certificate. Counsel said that the result of the order of the Supreme Court was that judgment must be entered on the certificate of the Master.

Mr. Justice Hanna—Would it not be open to you to apply to the Supreme Court to have the order amended, and have an assessment by a jury?

Mr. Dickie—The Supreme Court cannot vary their order. Once their order is made that is the end of it.

LIBERTY TO RE-OPEN QUESTION.

Mr. Justice Hanna—I think you will have to go back to the Supreme Court and ask for liberty to re-open the question.

Mr. Dickie—I do not think they can give it to me; but if your lordship says I must go to the Supreme Court, well and good.

Mr. Justice Hanna—I am not going to advise you.

Mr. Justice Sullivan—It would take a lot to convince me that, if the Supreme Court was about to make an order which would be invalid, you must sit tight and say nothing.

Mr. Dickie said that the point was not whether the Supreme Court could make an order; but whether the officer had power to deal with it when he got it or not.

Mr. Justice Hanna—Do not you think that the reasonable thing would be to let the Master assess, and then appeal from his jurisdiction.

Mr. Dickie said that he had no appeal. The order said that the Master's assessment was to be final.

Mr. Justice Hanna—I should be very much surprised if you could not find an appeal from the Master's assessment.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne—You want us to decide, in effect, that the Supreme Court had no power to make the order?

Mr. Dickie—Yes.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne—Do not you think that it is far better for the Supreme Court to do that?

Mr. Dickie—I am perfectly certain that it is; but I had to come to you first.

SUPREME COURT'S DECISION.

Mr. Jellett, K.C., who, with Mr. Campbell (instructed by Messrs. Molloy, Fayle and Co.), appeared for the plaintiffs, called attention to an article of the Constitution, providing that the decision of the Supreme Court shall, in all cases, be final and conclusive, and shall not be capable of being reviewed by any other Court or tribunal.

The Court refused the motion, and gave costs to the plaintiffs, and also to the Attorney-General, for whom Mr. Bewley, K.C., and Mr. Finlay (instructed by the State Solicitor) appeared.

CYCLING ACCIDENT IN DUBLIN.

APPEAL BY TRAMWAYS COMPANY.

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN).

The hearing was concluded of the appeal by the defendants in the case of Purcell v. Dublin United Tramways Company, from a judgment of Mr. Justice Hanna in favour of the plaintiff at the trial of the action.

The action was brought by the plaintiff, Robert Purcell, a minor, suing by his father, Robert Purcell, 61 Paul street, Dublin, to recover damages laid at £2,000 for personal injuries arising out of a tramcar accident that occurred at Parkgate street, Dublin, on October 28, 1924. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for £150 damages, and the defendants now sought to have the verdict and judgment set aside, and judgment entered for them, to which they claimed to be entitled on the evidence.

CASE FOR PLAINTIFF.

The case for the plaintiff was that when returning home from his father's plot on a bicycle with a bag of potatoes on the handle-bar, and as he was passing over the tram track, the bicycle skidded and he fell on the track, and a tramcar following struck him and dragged him along for some distance, with the result that he sustained severe personal injuries, and was under treatment in Steevens's Hospital for a considerable period.

It was alleged that the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendants' servants in the driving and management of the tramcar. The defendants traversed the cause of action, denied the alleged negligence, and pleaded contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff which caused the accident.

Mr. Joseph O'Connor, K.C.; Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., and Mr. Joseph J. Mooney (instructed by Messrs Casey, Clay and Collins) appeared for the appellants and defendants; and Mr. M. Maguire, K.C.; Mr. C. Bewley, K.C., and Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Vincent and Beatty) for the respondent and plaintiff.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

It was alleged that the jury did not understand the questions put to them, or their effect; that the Judge neglected to point out to the jury that there was a duty on the part of the plaintiff to take care in passing over the right-hand rail of the ingoing tram track; and also that the Judge was wrong in directing that, if the defendants' rail was defective, that was a persistent negligence which lasted all through the occurrence, and which rendered the defendants liable whether the plaintiff was negligent or not.

The arguments having concluded,

The Court reserved judgment.

SALE OF TIPPERARY PROPERTY.

APPEAL DISMISSED.

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON, AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN).

The appeal in the case of John Skehan v. Richard Maher and others, which was listed for further hearing, was dismissed with costs, as one of the defendants and appellants, it was announced, was unable to lodge the amount of £1,350, for the lodgment of which the hearing had been adjourned for fourteen days.

The case had reference to the sale of certain house property in Fethard, Co. Tipperary; and the appeal was by the defendants from an order of Mr. Justice Hanna dated August 22nd last, accepting offers made for certain lots, the appellants seeking to have the order set aside, and to have an order made giving liberty to have fresh offers accepted for the true and proper values of the respective lots.

Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. H. Malley and Co.) appeared for the appellants and defendants; and Mr. F. FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. Hughes (instructed by Messrs. T. Crozier and Sons) for the respondent and plaintiff.

RATES ON DUBLIN PREMISES.

QUESTION OF LIABILITY.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON AND MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

Judgment was given in a case of Murray v. the Minister for Finance, in which there was an appeal by plaintiffs from a decision of Circuit Judge Pigot, who dismissed the civil bill. The plaintiffs were Charles J. Murray, solicitor, and Dr. F. X. Murphy, as personal representatives of Patrick Murray, deceased, formerly resident in Drumcondra, Dublin, and also as personal representatives of Mrs. Elizabeth Murray, deceased, and Thomas J. Murray, now living in New York. The defendant, the Minister for Finance, was sued as successor of the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland. The plaintiffs issued a civil bill against the defendant for £90 11s. 6d., for money paid by them for the use of the defendant and his predecessors in respect of poor rate payable out of premises in North Brunswick street, Dublin, being part of the premises occupied by the Richmond and Whitworth Hospitals.

TERMS OF THE LEASE.

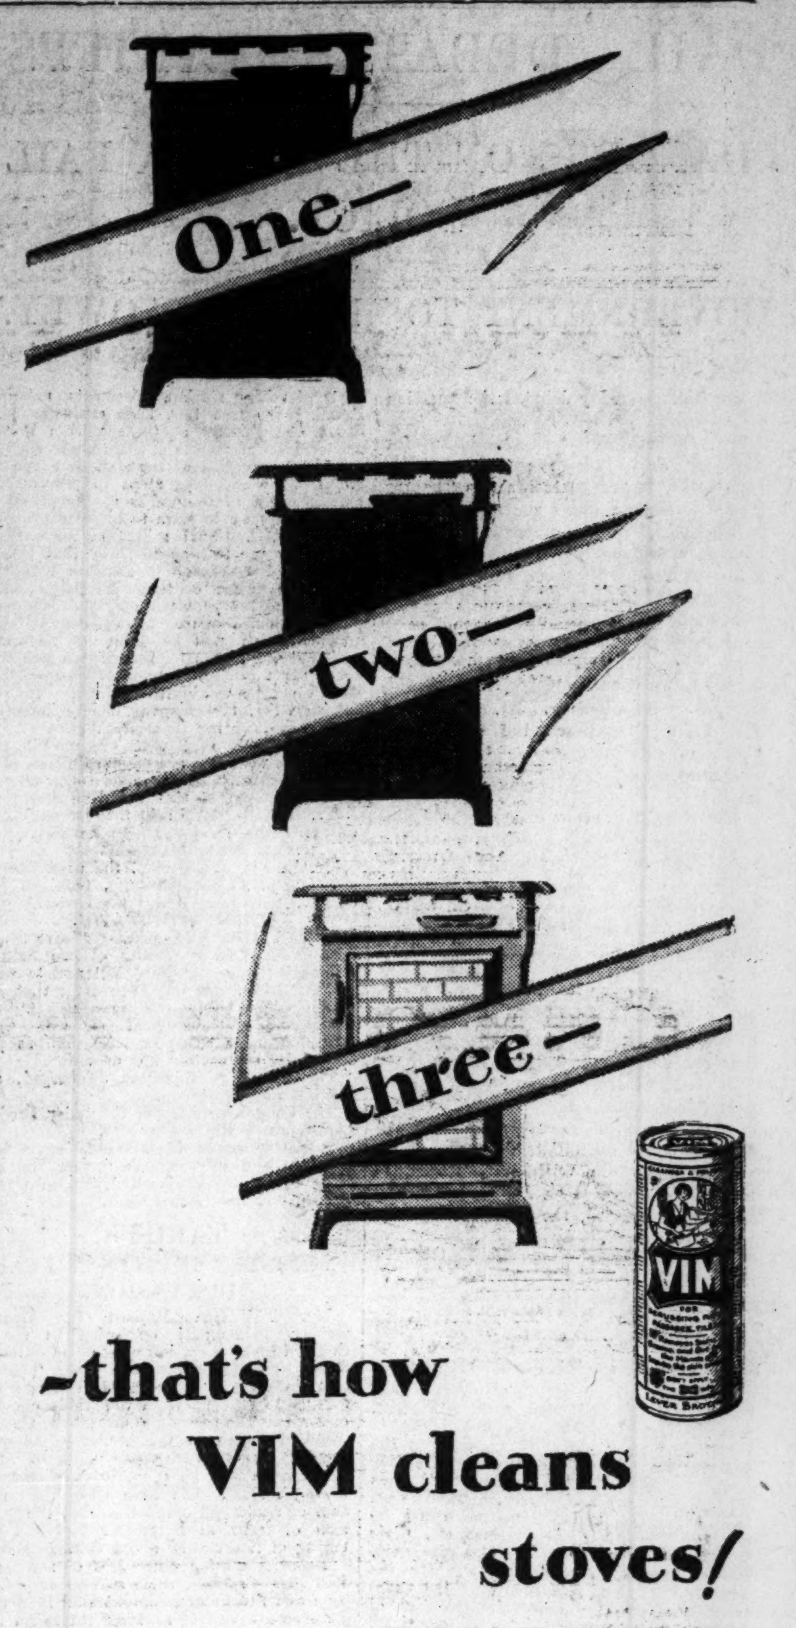

It appeared that the premises were leased in 1914 to the Commissioners of Public Works at a rent of £85, "over and above all taxes, charges and impositions whatsoever, the landlord's proportion of income tax only excepted." The lessor's interest became vested in Patrick Murray prior to 1920, and on his death in 1922 became vested in his widow, Elizabeth Murray, and on her death in 1924 in Thomas J. Murray, one of the plaintiffs. The premises, being used for charitable purposes, were not directly liable for rates, but the rent was liable to half rate, and this half rate had been paid by Patrick Murray, Mrs. Elizabeth Murray and Thomas Murray under threat, it was alleged, of legal proceedings. The plaintiffs claimed that under the terms of the lease they were entitled to be repaid the sums so paid, amounting to £90 11s. 6d. The defendant claimed, in the first place, that this being money paid under mistake of law could not be recovered; and, in the second place, that this being a personal liability on the lessor was not covered by the covenants in the lease.

JUDGMENT.

Mr. Justice Johnston, giving the judgment of the Court, said that the words in the lease were compendious enough to cover all outgoings in respect of the premises, unless it could be shown that they were intended to apply only to charges made directly on the premises. In this case the premises were ranked in the rate book as being exempt from rates, being used for charitable purposes, but the lessors were rated in respect of half the rent they derived from them. They were, therefore, personally liable, but their liability was in respect of the lands. The exception of income tax made in the lease showed that the charges were not limited to those made directly on the land, but covered all charges in respect of them. The lessors had been compelled to pay these rates and were entitled to be indemnified by the lessees. The Court ordered a decree for the £90 11s. 6d. claimed.

Mr. Maguire, K.C., and Mr. George Moonan (instructed by Mr. C. J. Murray) appeared for plaintiffs; and Mr. James Henry, K.C., and Miss Deverill (instructed by Messrs. Roger Greene and Son) for defendant.

There were 8,246 seizures of smuggled goods during the year ended March 31st last, according to the annual report of the British Commissioners of Customs and Excise issued on Monday.

DAIL DEBATES TARIFFS.

GOVERNMENT TO "HASTEN SLOWLY."

Mr. Ernest Blythe, Minister for Finance, said that the Government's policy with regard to tariffs was "hasten slowly." Fianna Fail's suggestion for the prohibition of certain imports, except by licence, would mean the establishment of many inefficient factories, for which the public would have to pay, and the establishment of expensive administrative machinery.

Any tariff that might be imposed must be the lowest that would lead to the building up of an industry. By establishing the Tariff Commission the Government had obtained what amounted to a judicial examination of every application for a tariff.

Mr. Sean Lemass expressed the belief of the Fianna Fail members that the only hope for the industrial future of Ireland lay in a policy of adequate protection. He would impose high tariffs, or prohibit certain imports except under licence, and would not fear retaliation by England.

Mr. John Good said that the tariffs already imposed had been of no service to the country. Thet tax on boots meant that for every person employed in Free State boot factories the purchasers of boots paid £389 a year. So long as the chance of a change in the fiscal policy remained so long would capitalists fight shy of investing money in Irish industries. If tariffs were imposed on British goods and England retaliated, the Irish cattle trade would be ruined.

QUESTIONS.

CROSSING THE BORDER.

Answering Mr. J. J. Cole (Independent, Cavan), the MINISTER FOR FINANCE said that he was not aware that motorists experienced great difficulty in crossing the Saorstat border, as to whether any particular road was approved. A list of approved roads was given in the Land Frontier Regulations, 1923 and 1924, and information could be obtained from any Customs officer, Civic Guard, or the Revenue Commissioners. Special provision had been made for the erection by Councils charged with the maintenance of roads crossing the frontier of signs indicating whether traffic was permitted to cross on such roads.

Major MYLES (Independent, Donegal) asked if posts would be erected indicating which road was closed and which was opened.

Mr. BLYTHE—The duty is on the Councils of doing that.

Mr. COLE further asked if the Minister was aware that there was a prosecution pending against a man in connection with his mistake about a border road.

Mr. BLYTHE said that he was rather sceptical about such excuses.

MILITARY LANDS.

In reply to Mr. W. Kent (F.F., East Cork), Mr. D. FITZGERALD, Minister for Defence, said that the disposal of military lands, formerly in the possession of the British War Department, in so far as they were surplus to the military requirements of the Saorstat, was being proceeded with actively. A proposal to include the Moore Park estate was under consideration. The lands of Fermoy racecourse were not the property of the Saorstat, whose rights therein were confined to the exercising of troops.

EMIGRATION.

In reply to Mr. Lemass (F.F., Dublin South), Mr. McGILLIGAN, Minister for Industry and Commerce, stated that the number of emigrants from all Ireland between the census of 1911 and that of 1926 was not known. The number of emigrants from Ireland, less the number of immigrants into Ireland, during the period (or the net emigration) was 502,020. This figure was arrived at by adding the decline in population to the number of births, and deducting the number of deaths during the fifteen years. No element of estimate attached to this figure for net emigration.

No information was available with regard to emigration from Saorstat Eireann during 1922 or 1923. The number of emigrants from Saorstat Eireann of Saorstat nationality who sailed for overseas countries in the years 1924, 1925 and 1926 were respectively 19,077, 30,180 and 30,061. Precise information with regard to emigration to Great Britain and Northern Ireland during these three years was not available.

The returns of the passenger movement by sea between the Saorstat and Great Britain and Northern Ireland showed that in these three years the numbers of outward passengers exceeded the numbers of inward passengers by 13,340, 10,060 and 15,638 respectively. These figures included the balances outwards of overseas emigration from the Saorstat through ports in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. These latter balances outwards during the three years were 5,050, 6,340 and 6,726. Deducting these, it would be seen that the number of emigrants from the Saorstat to Great Britain and Northern Ireland by sea exceeded the number of immigrants therefrom by 8,290 in 1924, 3,720 in 1925 and 6,912 in 1926. No figures were available for passengers over the land frontier.

It would seem, however, from the foregoing that in none of the three years 1924 to 1926 did the net emigration to Great Britain from Saorstat Eireann via all routes exceed 10,000. Adding to this figure the known net emigration overseas, it was possible to state that net emigration from Saorstat Eireann to all countries never exceeded 40,000 in any of the years 1924 to 1926.

Estimates depending upon the Registrar-General's totals for emigration during the years from 1911 to 1921 were not reliable. The Registrar-General's totals, which had to be computed under a voluntary system, greatly understated emigration for many years prior to 1921. The statutory returns of the Board of Trade, which must be taken as reliable, showed that in the nine years 1913 to 1921 the emigrants from Ireland to countries outside Europe numbered 162,584. The corresponding figure resulting from the Registrar-General's voluntary system understated the true overseas emigration from 1913 to 1921 by no less than 43 per cent. during these years.

FLAX CULTIVATION.

The MINISTER for AGRICULTURE informed Mr. T. O'Donovan (Farmers, West Cork) that he had arranged to have steps taken for the summoning of a conference of parties interested in the flax and linen industry to consult with representatives of his Department with a view to the further development of the industry.

TENEMENT HOUSES.

Mr. MULCAHY, Minister for Local Government, replying to Mr. Briscoe (F.F., South Dublin), said that tenement houses in Dublin had been graded into three classes. Of these the third class represented houses which would ordinarily be condemned as unfit or unsafe, and would be demolished if alternative accommodation could be provided for the occupying families. The total number of houses in this class was 1,826, and of these 33 were houses structurally dangerous, and the remainder houses with sanitary defects which could not economically be remedied.

Nineteen of these houses were the property of the Corporation, being situated on areas acquired by them for clearance. The number of families occupying third-class tenements in Dublin was 9,535. So far as could be ascertained the average number of persons per family in these houses was six.

Mr. BRISCOE asked if the Minister would promise to see that something would be done to remedy this state of affairs.

Mr. MULCAHY said that the matter was one for the Dublin Corporation.

RAILWAY WORKERS.

Mr. P. S. DOYLE (Govt., South Dublin) asked if the Minister for Industry and Commerce was aware that a further batch of about sixty employés had received notice terminating their services at the Great Southern Railway Works, Inchicore; that the railway company continued to import finished parts of rolling stock requirements, notwithstanding the fact that such could be produced economically at these works; if the Minister could ascertain the reason for the periodical reduction of the staff of shopmen, and if he would take steps to prevent the closing down of the works as the policy of the company would seem to indicate.

Mr. McGILLIGAN said that he was informed by the railway company that it had been found necessary to dispense with the services of some of their shopmen. The company stated that the only finished parts they imported were in connection with wagons which will be built at Inchicore, and that the reason for their action was that these parts could be imported cheaper than they could be manufactured here. He was informed that the company had no intention of closing down the Inchicore Works.

Mr. DOYLE said that even if it was slightly dearer to manufacture these parts here it would be better to do so on account of the employment that would be given.

Mr. McGILLIGAN said that he was not in charge of the Great Southern Railway.

NEW MEMBER

Mr. DENIS J. GOREY, the newly-elected member for Carlow-Kilkenny, took his seat on the Government side of the House.

BILL WITHDRAWN.

General MULCAHY asked for leave to discharge the second reading of the Arterial Drainage (Minor Schemes) Bill and to withdraw the bill. He did so in order that provision might be inserted in a new bill for the giving of Government grants for these minor drainage schemes. The bill as presented did not contain this provision.

The second reading was discharged, and the bill was withdrawn.

The Committee stage of the Dairy Produce (Amendment) Bill was passed.

A bill to amend the law relating to local elections and to postpone further the elections to certain local authorities in County Dublin was read a first time.

TARIFFS.

MINISTER INVITES A FULL DISCUSSION.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, moving a financial resolution in connection with the imposition of import duties on margarine and rosary beads, said that it was introduced to enable a discussion to take place on the whole question of tariffs. The policy pursued by the Government in regard to tariffs was a policy of caution. There were many ways in which industries could be promoted and the following methods had been used—the provision of additional credit facilities, the provision of technical instruction and the procuring of information about markets abroad.

Deputies on the other side of the House had suggested that some scheme of prohibition and licence of imports would be a more satisfactory way of assisting industries than any system of tariffs. He did not agree with that. In some cases prohibition might be a satisfactory way of helping a particular industry, just as a subsidy would be a more satisfactory way of helping another particular industry.

THE SUBSIDY METHOD.

The Government had adopted the subsidy method of establishing the sugar beet industry. They did that because it was not possible to get such an industry established by means of the imposition of tariffs. It would have been necessary to put such a high tax on sugar as would have caused grave hardship to large numbers of people if they desired a sugar beet industry to spring up behind tariffs.

The Government believed that the subsidy method was less satisfactory than the tariff for the reason that when they proposed a tariff they simply collected the tax and they required merely to set up the administrative machinery; but in the case of the subsidy they had to collect the tax, and they would also have to set up machinery for the payment of the subsidy. In that way administrative expenses would be doubled.

It seemed to him that the general system of prohibition would be almost unworkable unless the State were actually entering into industry itself, but so long as the State was not entering into industry he did not know how the system of prohibitions would work.

EFFECT OF PROHIBITION.

Undoubtedly, they found prohibition imposed in war time for purposes that were not purely economic. The effect of prohibition was in some ways the same as a prohibitive tariff. If such a tariff were imposed it would mean that a great number of people would rush to set up factories to manufacture the prohibited articles.

If they were to put a 200 per cent. tariff on boots factories would spring up all over the country, and a great number of them would be inefficient. There would be profits for anybody who could turn out any sort of boots at almost any price, and it would be a task of the greatest possible difficulty to get down to an economic basis afterwards. There would be appeals from factories not to take away the protection of tariffs, and the net result would be that the country at large would be bearing an enormous cost for the inefficiency of those conducting industry.

It should be borne in mind that tariffs in general tended to increase the cost of living. They might select particular tariffs which had not that effect, but in general they did.

THE BOOT TAX.

He had seen a good deal of uninformed and unthinking criticism of the boot tariff in the newspapers. The boot tariff was not at present throwing any great burden on the people, simply because it had only been successful to a limited extent. As it became successful the point would come when it would throw a substantial burden on the people.

Let them assume that 15 per cent. of the value of the boots used in the country would be £300,000, and let them assume that in the course of three or four years the tariff was so successful that practically all the boots used in the country were manufactured here. They would reach the position where the tax would bring in no revenue to the Exchequer, and the £250,000 or £300,000 which it was bringing in would have to be raised from some other source. At that point people would be buying their boots at approximately 15 per cent. more than they would have to pay if there was no boot tax.

As a matter of fact, it was just possible for Free State boot manufacturers to sell their boots with the advantage of the 15 per cent. tax, but in a few years it might certainly be taken that they would sell their boots at approximately 15 per cent. more than the British price. It would mean that the consumer was paying £300,000 subsidy in an indirect way to the boot industry, and, assuming that it would require 10,000 hands to supply the needs of the country, it would work out as an annual subsidy of £30 to every man, woman and child engaged in the industry.

The tariff as it became successful imposed a burden on the people, and that burden would only be got rid of with competition and increased efficiency.

A HEAVIER BURDEN.

Prohibition would mean that when the industry became successful the burden would be far heavier. If they had made the tax on boots 30 or 45 per cent., then the amount of the subsidy would be £900,000. Prohibition would have all the disadvantages of a prohibitive tariff. Expensive machinery would have to be set up to determine who would be licensed to import the quantity of goods necessary, and there would be charges of corruption and favouritism which would tend to shake confidence in the administration of Government.

The suggestions of prohibition of goods and licensing could come only from people who had not tried to see how it would work out.

Deputies who looked for speedy results from tariffs would very often be disappointed. He understood that a new soap factory was now being put up to supply the great proportion of the country's requirements, although the tariff on soap was actually imposed in April, 1924. Results were slow, one reason being that firms had doubts as to whether the tariff would last.

Having dealt with the tariffs already imposed, the Minister said that by setting up the Tariff Commission they were able to have something in the nature of judicial procedure. The members of the Commission were civil servants, and had other duties to perform, but the work of the Commission had not been interfered with on that account. If the business of the Commission further increased the Government would make arrangements which would ensure that no application would be delayed by reason of a member of the Commission having to attend to other business. In the case of some of the applications the delay was entirely due to the applicants themselves.

AS LOW AS POSSIBLE.

He had no doubt that a great number of applications would be submitted to the Commission. The tariffs to be imposed must be the lowest that would lead to the building up of industry. The Government did not think it desirable to have industries built up too hastily. Better results would accrue in the long run by building slowly. He preferred that their industries should be controlled by people living in the Free State rather than by people from outside. Revenue from tariffs was not the primary consideration, but it enabled a remission of taxation to be given in other directions.

THE ONLY WAY.

FIANNA FAIL'S BELIEF.

Mr. LEMASS (F.F., South Dublin) said that the members of his party were convinced that only in a policy of adequate protection was there any hope for the industrial future of Ireland. The Minister had told them that the Government's policy was one of hasten slowly, and it was hastening so slowly that it was almost impossible to find any movement at all. Since the recent election there was an indication that the Ministry was beginning to move in the matter. The workers and manhood of the country were clearing out almost as fast as ships could take them, and the position called for decisive action.

The Minister had given them no indication as to how the Government visualised the future of Ireland. Did they see in the near or distant future a protected country, with their industries developed and their population employed? They would have to see that everything that could be done in the Free State would be made and protected.

Protection built up Germany and the United States of America. There was no doubt the vast bulk of public opinion was demanding a protective policy. Members would not notice that by reading the daily papers, for the Press was the organ of free trade, and the bulk of its revenue was got from English producers selling their products in the Free State. That opinion was growing, and he would like to convince the Deputies that their policy was not an economic heresy, for only protection would bring about an improvement.

FORTY PER CENT. ON BOOTS.

The tariff on boots was inadequate, for it did not stop the imports. Nothing less than a 40 per cent. tariff would be effective, and nothing less than that would induce Irishmen to put capital into that industry. The same applied to the 15 per cent. on wearing apparel. The tariffs imposed on other articles did prove effective, particularly on candles and blankets. The conditions of every trade should be examined, and the form of protection best suited to it, whether it was prohibition or tariff or subsidy, should be applied. In the case of margarine, the wiser thing to say was that they would not allow it in.

Dealing with the Tariff Commission, he said that the work of the Commission should occupy all the time of its members. The flour millers were heard at a number of sittings, but the woollen millers were not heard at all.

Mr. BLYTHE—Through no fault of ours.

Mr. LEMASS referred to the application for a tariff on motor bodies, and asserted that the delay in payment of fee was due to want of faith in the Commission.

FLOUR.

Irish millers, he said, working at full capacity, could produce something like 80 per cent. of the requirements of the country. Without discussing the relative advantages of prohibition or tariff as a general line, they should state that whenever the imported article was foodstuff or necessary to the lives of the people prohibition should get preference to tariffs. If such foodstuff were required they could allow the necessary quantity in to be sold at the normal price.

If there should be any tendency on the part of manufacturers to "profiteer," the licence could be varied to permit a greater quantity of the article to be imported, which would force down the price. They were told that the machinery to do such a thing would be very expensive, but he doubted if the expense would be very much more than the collection of taxes.

The woollen millers could produce much more than the requirements of the country. They asked for a tariff for cloth above a certain weight, as they did not think themselves competent to manufacture a certain class of material for ladies' clothes.

THE COMMISSION.

He was not at all convinced that Civil Servants were the best men to put on the Commission. The Commission would be strengthened and improved if there were on it men of practical experience of business, and the Commission should have the power to fix the time or the date when the Executive must act on their report, say three months from the receipt of the report. The Executive Council would then have to declare whether or not they were going to act on the recommendations of the Commission.

Such a Commission as he suggested would also have to report to the Executive or to the Dail as to how the benefits to be derived from the protection afforded to trade would be best operated so as to pass it on to the consumers.

A number of manufacturers in this country had not applied for tariffs, although they believed that it was only under protection that their particular industries could be fostered, because the first result of the imposition of a tariff would be the bringing into the country of foreign combines, and that in that way their industries would be crushed out. He believed that unless we could ensure that the benefits of a tariff would be reserved to the Irish manufacturers as well as to the consumer, it would be a dangerous policy to embark on protection.

Protection should be only one part of the policy, and that policy should be to build up Irish industries, controlled by Irishmen.

RETALIATION.

As to retaliation by England in the event of a tariff being put on imported British goods, he said that England would have gone down in 1917 if she had not been able to get adequate supplies from Ireland. The English people knew that as well as the Irish did; they knew that if they took any action that would result in the failure of Ireland to supply her with food in any such crisis as confronted them in 1917, they would be cutting their own throat.

In Denmark, which was being constantly held up as an example, they had a protective policy for commodities which could not be produced in their own country. Last year England bought from Denmark 47 million pounds worth of goods, and sold to Denmark £8,000,000 worth. In New Zealand and other countries the same thing occurred. Last year England bought from New Zealand £46,000,000 worth, and sold only £20,000,000 worth. The same applied to Canada, Sweden, Finland, Norway, Holland, Russia, France, Spain, the Argentine, Italy, Switzerland, Australia; but it did not apply to the Free State. Of all these countries Ireland alone bought more from England than she sold.

If England did not consider it wise to retaliate when those countries imposed tariffs on English goods, why was she going to reverse her policy by imposing a tariff on Irish agricultural produce?

He believed that if they could put the backbone of the Ministry into splints and induce them to stand up to the difficulties they would be able to build up in the country an industrial activity that would mean a variety of employment, and that they would be able to keep in this country, not three millions of people, but ten or twelve millions, in comfort. It needed only a Government that saw the road and had the courage to follow it.

NOT CONVINCING.

Major COOPER (Government, Co. Dublin) said that the exports from Great Britain and Northern Ireland to the Free State amounted to £11 14s. per head of the population, while the exports to those countries from the Free State amounted to £13 15s. per head. Australia's exports and imports were £10 18s. per head of the population in each case.

Broadly speaking, it was the highly protected countries that bought more from Great Britain and sold less per head of the population than the Free State did with their present fiscal policy. On that estimate Deputy Lemass's case was not quite so convincing as it sounded.

£389 PER HEAD.

Mr. JOHN GOOD (Independent, Co. Dublin) said that the tariffs already imposed had not served the country very well. The effect of the tariff on boots, for instance, had been to increase the cost of footwear, and consequently the cost of living. That tariff had produced a revenue of £272,228 per annum. They were told that the industry here employed 700 additional persons.

That additional employment had cost the residents of the Free State £272,228 per annum; in other words, every man, woman and child employed in the boot and shoe industry cost the State to-day £389 per annum.

The import of boots to-day was practically as large as it was before the tariff was imposed.

All the experimental tariffs had the same object—the provision of additional employment, but in no case had they produced the employment that was anticipated.

The tariff in increasing the cost of living had increased the cost of production, and consequently had handicapped the exporters in the open markets in which they had to compete. It was most important to bear in mind that they must do everything, in view of the importance of the agricultural industry, to assist those who were engaged in that industry, not alone to hold their own in competition in the markets of Great Britain, but to try to increase the exports to those markets.

To his mind, the real danger of a tariff policy lay in the possibility that Great Britain, if tariffs were imposed on British goods, would say that it was not fair that they should allow Irish produce into England free. The matter of retaliation ought to be very carefully considered. If Great Britain were to retaliate the cattle trade of this country would be reduced by 75 per cent., as three out of every four head of cattle went to England.

INSECURITY.

Another aspect to be considered was that changes of the fiscal policy would give rise to feelings of insecurity. It was as necessary to have security of fiscal policy for the bringing of capital for investment in the country as it was to have political security. As long as the question of tariffs and changes in fiscal policy remained, so long would capitalists fight shy of investing capital in industries, the conditions of which might be changed at any moment.

Mr. J. DALY (Government, E. Cork) suggested that the Government should set up a kind of controlling body to see that merchants and manufacturers would not make undue profits as a result of a tariff. It was their duty to impose cautious tariffs.

Mr. P. W. SHAW (Government, Longford-Westmeath) said that the posters advocating a boycott of English goods which had been displayed all over the country a few years ago resulted in a number of British shops exhibiting cards stating that they did not stock Irish beef. He believed that that had done great injury to the Irish farmer. He agreed that goods that could be manufactured in this country should be protected, and with the Shannon scheme and careful tariffs he believed that employment could be found.

Mr. M. CORRY (Fianna Fail, East Cork) said that whilst farmers in his district were unable to sell their barely last year over 213,000 cwts. of barely were imported. Though their maltings in Cork were idle they had imported £137,000 worth of malt in six months last year. Advocating a tariff on imported flour, he said, that proprietors of the flour mills in Cork were prepared to give a guarantee that they would sell the home product at the current Liverpool price.

COUNTING THE COST.

Mr. P. HOGAN, Minister for Lands and Agriculture, said that he deprecated talk of a trade war with England or fear of retaliation from that country. They should forget the British and realise that they could carry out their own business here if they settled down.

He admitted that they could produce all the woollens, all the clothes, all the boots they wanted, but at the end of it all—if they were going to do this in five years—what was the cost of living going to be? Within a period of five years they had tariffed imported goods to the value of £15,000,000.

These were sound tariffs which had been imposed after careful consideration, but it was a different matter to say that they should impose tariffs on imported goods up to £30,000,000 in the space of five years. Surely they could not expect woollen factories in this country, in a short period of time, to be turning out goods at the same price as English factories which had been established for sixty and seventy years—factories highly capitalised and highly organised with a tradition of skill behind them and with many markets for their products. He did not say that they could not develop such a position in this country. They could, but they could not do it in five years.

If it were the policy of Fianna Fail to tariff 15 million more pounds' worth of imports within five years, then they were aiming at a very big increase in the cost of living to the consumer. They wanted alternative markets, and until they got those it would not be wise to tariff against the market which consumed 98 per cent. of their produce. They should not throw out the dirty water until they got in the clean.

IMAGINARY DEMAND.

Professor TIERNEY (Government, National University), as a convinced protectionist, said he did not see a great demand for protection. If it did not exist in the daily Press, neither did it exist in the weekly Press, and he was afraid that it was a very silent demand, and existed only in the imagination of deputies. He would be glad to meet any farmers who wanted protection. He was afraid that there were very few of them. One of the dangers of protection was that they might go too far. They should have some measure of protection for industries. The only question was the extent.

He believed that the Government had taken the only sound course, and that was the setting up of a Tariff Commission. Fianna Fail proposed a remedy for all the troubles of the country, but gave no clear indication as to the remedy. The fundamental distinction between the Government and Fianna Fail was that the Government had tried, in making progress with tariffs, not to leave any part of the country behind. The Fianna Fail idea was to get ahead by a series of jumps, and to leave the country wallowing in the mud behind them as they went along.

"TO GET AT IT."

Mr. SEAN T. O'KELLY (F.F., Dublin North) said that his party were satisfied that the policy pursued by the Government was a policy of playing for safety, and that at a time when some big effort was required to save the country. His party intended to put down a motion during the next few days to get at the question of protection. They wanted to get at one of the difficulties, and that was the Tariff Commission.

"A Tariff Commission of some kind is necessary, but three gentlemen, each with quite enough work to do in his own department of the civil service, are not the best people for the work unless they are absolutely relieved from their present duties. The work they were given, in fact, was not given to them to be taken seriously. It was given to them as a side line."

Mr. O'Kelly added that the increase in the Fianna Fail vote in the Carlow-Kilkenny election indicated that the agricultural workers were being converted to Fianna Fail's policy of protection.

FARMERS AGAINST IT.

Mr. M. R. HEFFERNAN (Farmers, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance) said that agriculture was the foremost resource of the country and the Dail ought not to be responsible for any legislation which would adversely affect it. Was there any proof that a change or partial change in the existing fiscal system would prevent the exodus of emigrants from the country? The greater proportion of those who left the country in recent years were workers on the land, who had left the land because there was no livelihood to be had on it. The effect of protection would be to drive still larger numbers out of the country. The farmers were not in favour of protection, the demand for which came from interest-seeking industrialists.

There might be a case for a tariff on barley, added Mr. Heffernan, but no case could be made for the other tariffs that the Fianna Fail Party demanded.

He believed that it was time for people who had the interest of their country at heart to put their backs against this system of general tariffs, which, if carried out in its entirety, would not result in the economic salvation of the farmer, but in the economic devastation of the people of the country. The right policy was concentration on the development of their main industry. Increased tariffs meant increased cost of living, particularly to the farmer, at a time of unparalleled depression.

Dr. RYAN (Fianna Fail, Wexford) said that, if the import of flour were stopped and wheat were allowed in, labour would get £286,000 a year, the farmer would get cheaper offals, and the price of flour would not be increased.

The House adjourned until three o'clock to-day.

THE "WARATAH" AT THE NATIONAL MUSEUM.

Visitors to the National Museum, Dublin, will find on exhibition in the Botanical Division a specimen of the "Waratah," with coloured illustration, the national emblem of New South Wales. The Waratah is a beautiful shrub, 6-8 feet high, with a bright red tufted head of flowers, almost confined to the Blue Mountains of New South Wales, and now under Government protection. Botanically it is called Telopea speciosissima, and is a member of the family Proteaceae.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE STATE OF CHINA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There are few things more important at the present time than that our elusive friend "the man in the street" should think correctly about our relations with China. At the risk of seeming somewhat discourteous to an honoured guest, may I call attention to some of the statements reported as having been made at the Rotary Club lunch on Monday last by Mr. Tso Yan-Wang, M.A., Inspector of Schools in Manchuria? As one who has lived since 1907 in China, who has a deep regard for the Chinese people, and who hopes after a holiday to return to his work there, I hope I may venture on this thankless task.

I think we may take the statement that in diplomatic matters "the Chinese always mean what they say . . . always tells what he has in his heart" as a tribute to our Irish sense of humour; and to class the news published by your illustrious contemporary, The Times, with the stories one hears about Irish pugnacity would almost seem the same sort of effort. To come to matters of more serious import, one presumes that the speaker was referring to education in "the good old days," as anything further from the sad actualities of present-day school life in China than the beautiful pictures drawn can hardly be imagined, though one is convinced that the ideals of educators such as Mr. Tso Yan-Wang are no less high. With reference to the splendid Confucian classics on which old China was brought up, I do not know how it is in Manchuria, but elsewhere in China—in the Government schools, that is—they have been "scrapped" and are to-day vehemently harangued against by most of the popular leaders, while at the same time a call is made to uphold the age-long culture of China.

In the streets of the town I know best, in the month of February of this year, we had girl orators orating against the "absolute obedience" that the speaker seemed to commend. We had posters denouncing "the three slaveries" to father, husband and son, and calling on women to assume the liberty they were entitled to. An interesting event in this connection is that only last month a Miss Soumay Tcheng was appointed Chief Justice of the Court in the native city at Shanghai; she is a French-trained lawyer who took her degree in Paris. One does not wish to criticise the reported address too meticulously, but surely the following sentence—"The troubles in China to-day were not caused by Chinese, but by foreigners"—without any qualification is too bad from an educated Chinese at this stage of events. Extra-territoriality, concessions, the Customs' service, etc., are also capable of a more sympathetic reference, and the Powers were holding conferences with China on these subjects with the hope that anomalies might be redressed; but that hope vanished when the Chinese representatives (who really represented hardly anything) faded away and left the foreign representatives in dumbfounded solitude.

The old, old statement that "Chinese money was used to maintain parks, and yet no Chinese, man or woman, was allowed to enter those parks" is repeated, also without qualification. I hope everybody knows now that the International Settlement at Shanghai—a wonderful city, built and governed by the foreigners, to whom the original low-lying site was given as a place where they might live (apart from the Chinese) and trade—has in the course of time, by its comfort, its lure of commerce, its safety, the careful administration of its Municipal Council, attracted within its borders nearly a million Chinese, who well nigh crowd the foreigners, for whom it was meant, outside its borders. Efforts to induce the Chinese residents, made repeatedly during the last few years, to help in the administration have so far been without lasting result. The rates assessed on the Settlement, of which probably about 50 per cent. are paid by Chinese, are used to carry on all the needful services in that great city; and some parks, where alone foreign children with their nurses could play in safety, were in this foreign Settlement kept exclusively for the use of foreigners. I believe that lately some changes have been made, but I cannot speak with knowledge.

The subject is much too large to discuss in any detail, but we ought to recognise (1) the very admirable temper shown in the attitude of our British Government during this last year or so of constant provocation, and (2) the extraordinary difficulty of the position in which the Powers are placed, with no Government in China which functions beyond the range of its machine guns. The sympathy of all right-minded people is with the Chinese in their present troubles, and that a speedy way out may be found is the wish of all; but, in the meantime, we must in our thinking keep as near the facts as imperfect apprehension allows us, and with a due remembrance of our past "sins, negligences and ignorances"—not all on the side of the foreigner—try "to guide our feet into the way of peace."

I make very sincere apologies to Mr. Tso Yan-Wang if anything in what is written transgresses the respect due to an honoured guest, and I hope that his visit to our islands will assure him of the good-will we all bear the ancient land he comes from.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN CURTIS.

REMEMBRANCE DAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have attended every great Service held in St. Patrick's Cathedral for more than a quarter of a century. I am sorry to see in to-day's Irish Times a complaint that ex-Service men were neglected at the Service last Sunday. I watched the procession of ex-Service men entering the Cathedral, and a place and seat were reserved for every one.

I have never attended any great Service in St. Patrick's, or elsewhere, where the arrangements were so admirable and so courteously and expeditiously carried out. The greatest praise is due to the gentlemen who planned the scheme and instructed the stewards.

Accustomed members of the congregation willingly gave up their seats, and officials like myself had our pews commandeered, and received instead one ticket. This we all gladly did, and will, I am sure, always do, when our ex-Service men visit the old Cathedral.—Yours, etc.,

DAVID F. R. WILSON, Precentor.

Donnybrook, Dublin, November 8th, 1927.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your correspondent, Mr. Higginbotham, was evidently unfortunate in his experience at St. Patrick's Cathedral on Sunday afternoon, and attributes his ill-luck to want of system on the part of the stewards. I can assure Mr. Higginbotham that a great deal of time and thought were devoted to the task of devising the scheme best suited to handling the large crowds that were expected on Sunday; and the one adopted—that of admitting holders of tickets of a certain colour at a gate indicated on the ticket—seemed to work quite well. It was understood, too, that the ex-Service men were to present themselves in a body at the Cathedral at 2.50, and I think seats were easily found for all who did so. It should be remembered that there is no means of ascertaining the number of ex-Service men that are likely to turn up.

Mr. Higginbotham tells us when he gained admittance to the Cathedral, not when he first reached the gates. If he only arrived at the gates at 3.40, it is hardly to be wondered at that he was received with indifference; and, if the crowd outside prevented him from reaching the gates in good time, that is outside the control of the Cathedral authorities. If your correspondent can suggest any more satisfactory method of allocating the limited space inside the Cathedral, I am sure it will be considered by the Dean and clergy.—Yours, etc.,

"ONE OF THE STEWARDS."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I notice in your issue of to-day a statement by your Political Correspondent that "there has been considerable comment in political circles because Fianna Fail declined to nominate a candidate for the chairmanship of the Public Accounts Committee; for it is felt that the position, which entails a large amount of work, ought to have been filled by a representative of the Opposition in the Dail." It is only fair to point out that the new Committee has to complete the work of two previous Committees (those appointed in May and July last) in the examination of the appropriation accounts for 1925-26. The former leader of the Labour Party was chairman of both these Committees, and the only Opposition member on the present Committee personally connected with the work of the previous body is Deputy Davin, who is Mr. Johnson's successor as representative of the Labour Party. For this reason, in spite of the fact that normally it might be desirable that a member of the principal Opposition party should occupy the chair, I proposed Mr. Davin.

The Fianna Fail members very reasonably and courteously agreed to my suggestion, and Dr. Ryan, T.D., seconded the nomination, which was carried unanimously.—Yours, etc.,

TARIFFS ON FLOUR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Tariff Commission has been considering the case put forward by the Irish millers for a tariff on imported flours. An alternative solution is suggested, which will materially reduce the import of foreign flour without any tariff. The suggestion is that a ton of millers' offals should accompany every ton of imported flour. This idea would be unpopular with both the English and Irish millers, but it should meet with the approval of the ordinary people, and particularly of the farmers, to whom a plentiful supply of cheap offals is of inestimable value. The future prosperity of this country is certain to depend, as in the past, on the agricultural community, and in no direction is there a more attractive field for development than in the export of pork and bacon and poultry and eggs. For the successful raising of pigs and poultry cheap millers' offals of good quality are a sine qua non.

Under the present conditions thousands of tons of flour are imported, depriving the workers of employment in the Irish mills and the Irish farmers of a corresponding quantity of offals. This state of affairs is farcical, and the tariff on imported flour is offered as a solution; but the suggestion advocated in this letter has the sublime quality of compromise, on which, it has been said, the greatness of the British Empire has been built.—Yours, etc.,

CONFISCATED CLOTHING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Recently a London firm sent me an article of lady's apparel. As it was small they sent it by letter post, thinking in their ignorance that this was the best method. I have not seen the parcel, but I think the contents were declared on the envelope. I received a notice that a parcel addressed to me, and supposed to contain contraband, was lying at the Custom House attached to the Post Office. When my messenger called at the Custom House the parcel was opened and found to contain an article of contraband, which was confiscated by the authorities.

I cannot complain of their action, as it was against the law to send this garment by letter post; but I believe there was no intention to avoid payment of duty—there certainly was none on my part. The point, however, occurs to me that a great number of parcels must be annually confiscated in this way, and it would be of interest to the public to know what becomes of the articles thus confiscated. Can any of your readers enlighten me?—Yours, etc.,

HOOKHAM LIMITED.

FREE STATE DISTRIBUTORS OF SINGER CARS.

Messrs. Hookham, Ltd., 7 and 8 City quay, Dublin, distributors for Singer cars, opened their showrooms and premises yesterday, when a large number of agents, and others interested in the trade, inspected the 1928 models. The concern has been registered in the Free State as a private company, formed by local directors and financed solely with Free State capital. The manager and secretary is Mr. E. V. Hookham, who has been in Ireland for the past eighteen years in connection with the motor trade.

The spacious premises are conveniently situated for the wholesale trade, and there are carried at least twelve different models for show purposes alone. The Singer products consist of fifteen different models—five of the "junior," five of the "senior" and five of the six-cylinder 15-horse-power class.

The new models attracted very favourable comment, particularly the fabric saloons of the six-cylinder class and the Coupés. The prices range from £173 10s. to £415, delivered in Dublin. Service arrangements are being put in hand and there will be no delay in getting delivery of any spare parts required for any Singer model.

STILL TEN YEA[RS] BEHIND ENGLAND

The planning of the Dublin of future was one of the points discuss[ed] Mr. J. V. Downes, B.Arch., M.R.I. President of the Architectural Assoc[iation] of Ireland, at the opening meeting [of the] thirty-first session, at 8 Merrion sq[uare], Dublin, last night, at which Mr. [...] Giron, M.R.I.A.I., presided.

"The type of architecture now [prac]tised in Sweden and Holland and [other] countries abroad, which has been [a] source of not a little inspiration to [us at] home within recent years, is largel[y the] outcome of the stringent economy im[posed] by our universal post-war conditions[...] that what in this connection can be [done] elsewhere can be done in Ireland [with] equal chances of success," he decla[red].

Dublin by a stroke of the pen had been raised from the status of a provincial city to that of a European capital. Presenting as it does a curious jumble of much that is both excellent and extremely bad in architecture, a little observation reveals that we dwell in a city which, in a rough, haphazard sort of manner, has been, so to speak, overlaid on an older, but more systematically planned, town.

"The Wide Streets Commissioners, the town planners, that is to say, of the eighteenth century, did not lack thoroughness; but they planned for the needs and conditions of their day—conditions which in the following century became obsolete, and for which no proper attempt was then made to adapt the existing city plan.

"The decadence of the nineteenth century, however, was not peculiar to this country alone. Degeneration in matters of art, and particularly in matters of civic art, appears to have been characteristic of the industrial era throughout Western Europe generally; but, in so far as the industrial expansion did not affect this country to the extent that it did elsewhere, much of our splendid eighteenth-century buildings were spared and are still with us. Again, just as Dublin was slower to succumb to the evil effects of the industrial revolution, so, too, is it slower to feel the effects of the reaction which is now manifesting itself abroad.

I have no lack of faith in the future of architecture in Dublin, so far as the architectural profession goes. What I am mainly concerned with is the attitude of the layman towards the same problem.

TOWN PLAN NEEDED.

"The fundamental principle which we all must observe as regards future building in this city is that it must, within reason, conform to a generally accepted scheme of development—to wit, the town plan.

"The principle of town planning is not new to the people of Dublin. Several plans for the remodelling of the city were produced as far back as 1914, and, though legislation in this respect is now having the attention of the Government, the necessity for such seems hardly yet realised, even by our otherwise most enlightened citizens.

"Town planning is a matter for experts in such different spheres as traffic, housing, commerce, hygiene, and archæology, to mention but some; but I would emphasise that the preparation of a town plan is a problem first and last for the architect, who must visualise all these requirements welded into an artistic whole—the city beautiful—and in the formation of all such commissions or bodies which in the future may be set up to deal with these problems, the question of adequate representation on the part of the architectural profession must receive proper consideration."

NEED FOR TREES.

In conclusion, he drew attention to the question of trees in the city streets and squares. "I must lament the presence of the Philistines," he said, "for our beautiful Irish trees seem to be valued neither for their own sake nor for the many ornamental purposes which they may serve. The beauty of Paris is, no doubt, in the first instance due to its fine buildings and to the excellent manner in which these are grouped, but the charm of that city is also to a very considerable extent the effect of a well-considered arrangement of trees—which make that great city somewhat assume the appearance of one vast park. In proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Downes, Mr. James H. Webb, President of the Royal Institute of Architects of Ireland, said that if they could build with native materials in a manner suitable to the peculiar climate and suitable to the requirements in a simple way he had no doubt but that beautiful buildings would result.

Mr. A. M. Robertson, in seconding the vote, said that they now possessed a great asset in the School of Architecture in University College, Dublin.

DYING GIRL'S VIGIL ON RAILWAY LINE.

PATHETIC STORY AT MULLINGAR INQUEST.

MULLINGAR, Tuesday.

The story of a dreadful night's vigil, told to a doctor before her death by a girl who was knocked down by a train and left lying on the track with her head resting on a sleeper, visibly affected the coroner's jury and others present at the inquest last night on Miss Agnes Kellaghan, aged 17 years, daughter of William Kellaghan, Lacken, Multyfarnham.

The girl's father, who was much affected, stated that when he reached Rathganny Bridge, Multyfarnham Station, where the accident took place, his daughter was still lying with her head on the sleeper and her body towards the grass edge. Recognising him, she shook hands with him.

Dr. Patrick J. Keelan stated that when the girl was admitted to hospital in Mullingar, at 11.10 a.m. on Sunday, she was in a very shocked condition. There was a compound fracture of the right leg and a fracture of the right arm, and her right thigh was almost amputated.

Dr. Keelan went on to say that the girl told him that she intended to go to Australia in a fortnight's time to join a religious Order there. On Saturday last she left Raharney, Westmeath, where she was at business, to pay a surprise visit to her people in Lacken. She came on the first train that night to Multyfarnham, where she got out, and, as it was a "short cut," she went along the railway line to her home.

As she was walking along between the up and down lines she saw a train coming towards her, and, to be quite safe, crossed over to the right and walked along on the path next the grass until she came upon a little pool of water. Then, in order to avoid this, she stepped up and walked on the ends of the sleepers. When she had gone a short distance something hit her, and she remembered nothing for a while.

When she recovered consciousness she found herself lying on the side of the path with her head on a sleeper. She could not move the lower portion of her body to crawl anywhere. Her right hand had been torn off.

She bled a good deal for the first hour. She was able to hear the chiming of the bells in Wilson's Hospital. After the first hour she did not bleed so much, nor was she in so much pain. She was able to feel about with her left hand for her beads and umbrella, both of which she found on the ground near her. As she had no hat, she needed the umbrella to protect herself from the rain during the night.

She also said that several trains passed by during the night, but she was not seen from any of them.

In reply to the foreman, the witness said that, apart from the question of exposure, he did not think that the girl would have lived. Death was due to wounds and exposure.

The jury returned a verdict of death from injuries due to the girl being accidentally struck by a train, and exonerated the railway officials from all blame. They tendered sympathy to the family of the deceased girl.

The Coroner, Superintendent Cronin, and Mr. Joseph Downes, solicitor, joined in the vote of sympathy.

DUBLIN WOMEN'S SHELTER.

INMATES FROM ALL PARTS OF IRELAND.

The seventeenth annual report of the Dublin Women's Shelter, 20 James's street, Dublin, which was read at the annual meeting held in the Memorial Hall, Rathfarnham, yesterday, showed that a successful year's work had been accomplished.

The Rev. E. G. Sullivan, M.A., who presided, said that the good work did not end at providing food and shelter for these poor women; for Miss Bell and her colleagues had gone further in creating an atmosphere of kindliness and sympathy there.

Miss Sarah Edmunds Bell, the hon. secretary, in presenting her annual report for the year 1926-27, stated that 26,500 beds were supplied to women and children from October 1st, 1926, to September 30th, 1927. Most of those supplied with beds were regular lodgers, some of the elder ones having, almost without a break, slept in the shelter every night for sixteen or seventeen years, and a few claim that they had been in residence for an even longer period. Their lodgers came from all parts of Ireland, and even the British Isles. The payments for food and lodging, including £8 11s. contributed to the coal fund, amounted to £704 14s. 11d., a slightly higher figure than last year. Twenty free teas and various entertainments were given during the year by friends. A gramaphone, kindly presented to the shelter by the Rev. Percy Coster, Rector of St. Jude's, Kilmainham, had contributed much towards lightening the burden of existence for these poor women. They had, further, been able to place a number of young women in suitable situations.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

During the last few months they had lost, by death, several of their most generous subscribers, and an appeal was now made for others to take their place in forwarding this very meritorious work among the homeless women and children of the city.

Mr. Charles E. Jacob, hon. treasurer, then read his financial statement, which set out that the payments made in connection with the shelter had amounted to £1,043 4s. 3d., and receipts from donations, subscriptions and payments made by the women were £1,039 4s. 2d., leaving a deficiency of £4 0s. 1d. This deficiency had been made up from surplus funds of last year.

The report was adopted.

Miss Edmunds Bell said that in the twenty-seven years of its existence there had never been a case of infectious disease, although more than one million beds had been supplied.

The Rev. A. E. Hughes, M.A., Rector of Christ Church, Leeson Park, pointed out that there was no religious distinction made in any of the cases of admission to the shelter. It was well that the State should look after the poor; but if they looked at the history of the workhouse and then at the Christian service rendered at the shelter they would see the difference.

OBITUARY.

THE MOST REV. W. J. MILLER, O.M.I.

We regret to announce the death of the Most Rev. W. J. Miller, O.M.I., Titular Bishop of Eumenia, and late Vicar Apostolic of the Transvaal, which occurred yesterday at Belmont House, Blackrock, County Dublin. Born at Mountrath, Queen's County, in 1858, he read theology at Autun, France, and was ordained by Cardinal McCabe in 1881. He was engaged in parochial work in England and Ireland; was Provincial of his Order in the British Isles from 1896 to 1898; and was Assistant-General from 1898 to 1904. In 1904 he was appointed Titular Bishop of Eumenia, and became First Vicar Apostolic of the Transvaal. He resigned in 1912.

THE REV. G. E. O'CARROLL, C.M.

We regret to announce that the Rev. George O'Carroll, C.M., died in Newcastle-on-Tyne on Sunday last. Educated at St. Vincent's College, Castleknock, Father O'Carroll entered the Vincentian Novitiate in 1903, and was ordained priest in 1910. After having spent five years in the Training College, Hammersmith, he was appointed to the staff at Castleknock College, where he remained till 1926, when he was appointed to the mission staff of St. Peter's, Phibsborough, Dublin. Thenceforward until his death he was engaged in the work of the missions. His remains will be laid to rest in the cemetery at Castleknock College, where he laboured for so many years.

REV. WORSHIP BOOKER O'NEILL.

We regret to announce that the Rev. Worship Booker O'Neill died at Tara Hill, Howth, on Sunday last. Mr. O'Neill graduated in Dublin University in 1879, and obtained the degree of Master of Arts in 1883. He ministered in Killaloe, County Clare, Woodford, County Galway, and in Waverton and Brereton, Cheshire.

The tender of Messrs. Romney and Fairs, builders and contractors, Armagh, at £6,586 was accepted for the construction of a new reservoir in connection with the Clones extension waterworks scheme.

EX-BRIGADIER'S SPEECH.

INFORMATIONS REFUSED.

GUARDS' EVIDENCE NOT ACCEPTED.

TRALEE, Tuesday.

When the case against Eamon Horan, of Tralee, an ex-Brigadier-General of the National Army, charged with inciting to murder Civic Guards, was called this evening Mr. Liston, State Solicitor, said that he did not intend to offer any further evidence, adding that, on the evidence already presented, the Justice had no option but to return the accused man for trial.

Mr. D. J. Browne, for the defence, said that he did not intend to offer any evidence, but asked would any jury believe that Eamon Horan—even if the words attributed to him were true—meant to ask the people to assassinate the Guards. His client was willing to face a trial, and, if it did come, he was prepared to put forward evidence to show that nothing was further from his intention than to incite people to murder the Guards or anybody else.

CONTRADICTORY EVIDENCE.

The Justice (Mr. Johnson) said that he found the evidence that had been given extremely unsatisfactory. The Guards differed in an extraordinary way in several material instances collateral to the essentials of the case. Two witnesses only heard the statement that the Guards should get the same fate as the "Black and Tans," and that there were men there prepared to give it to them.

Another witness, whose evidence was remarkable for the number of things he did not hear, heard the finish of the sentence: "That he was prepared to take to the hills." Would a jury believe that the two witnesses, who heard only the first part, rushed off before the speaker finished his sentence, and did not hear the picturesque offer of the speaker to go to the hills? Incidentally, one of the witnesses who heard the finish heard virtually none of the interesting remarks referred to by other witnesses, such as "Leahy from Knocknagoshel," or the reference to Mr McNulty and the Public Safety Act.

One witness said that the wind was blowing strongly and it was difficult to hear; yet he heard the reference to "the hills." Another witness said that the evening was calm and he heard everything. The evidence of the Civic Guards themselves was extraordinary on outside matters upon which there should be no doubt.

There were two civilian witnesses for the prosecution. One of them had admittedly been driving the Guards through the country without having his motor tax paid. His evidence was not worth very much. The other witness, O'Connor, seemed to be the only independent witness in the case. His evidence differed materially from all the other witnesses as to what was said.

FOUR POINTS.

As to the law of the case, in order to sustain a prosecution for incitement to murder four things should be proved—(1) that the accused made such a statement that could reasonably be construed into an incitement to murder; (2) that the accused did make such a statement; (3) that the accused intended it to be accepted, understood, and acted on as an incitement to murder; and (4) that the communication reached the parties for whom it was intended.

It was possible to conceive that the statement mentioned in the charge could reasonably be construed into an incitement to murder, but it was very doubtful that this could be seriously suggested under the circumstances. As to the point that the accused intended the incitement to murder to be acted on—in other words, that he wanted the young men present to go out and shoot the Civic Guards—would any reasonable man for a moment endeavour to sustain that contention? If the accused did want the Civic Guards murdered, was it in the presence of eleven or twelve of the Guards that he would make that statement? If he made use of the words at all, it was obvious it was "merely hot air he was blowing off."

Did the incitement reach those for whom it was intended? It was absolutely essential to prove this. There was no evidence that any of the people for whom the remarks were intended ever heard them.

On this point he held that the prosecution had failed. Further, even if the prosecution had fulfilled the four requirements, he would hold that the nature of the evidence adduced was so contradictory, so open to grave doubt, that he would not be justified in deeming it sufficient to send the accused forward for trial. Consequently he refused informations.

TRIBUTE TO GUARDS.

Mr. Brown said that he wished it to be clearly understood that his conduct of the case was not to be construed in any way as an attack on the Guards. After all, the Guards were men of their own race, and his client, Mr. Horan, instructed him to say that he never at any time meant to attack the Guards, and that, as far as he was concerned, he had the deepest respect for the Guards. From his (Mr. Brown's) experience, he knew that the Guards as a body had always performed their duties fairly and straightforwardly.

Mr. Liston said that he was delighted to hear Mr. Brown, representing his client, disclaiming anything inimical to the Guards. Nothing he (Mr. Liston) had heard for a long time pleased him so much.

The Justice said that he was glad to hear Mr. Brown's appreciation of the Guards. He might say also that this was the first case in which he could not absolutely accept the evidence of the Guards.

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF IRELAND.

CONVOCATION AND THE LATE CARDINAL O'DONNELL.

A meeting of Convocation of the National University of Ireland was held last evening at University College, Dublin.

Professor Arthur Clery, LL.D., Chairman of Convocation, moved a vote of sympathy on the death of Cardinal O'Donnell. He said that he could speak of His Eminence as a great churchman and an eminent figure in the life of Ireland; but he thought of him as one of the men who gathered together after Newman's time in the University of which the National University was the successor. He was, with the late Dr. Walsh, one of the pioneers of their splendid institution, and because of that Convocation had a special reason for joining with the rest of Ireland in lamenting his loss.

Dr. Flood, who seconded the proposal, said that the late Cardinal was a great Prince of the Church, and was foremost in urging adequate policies of education for this country. While he was a man of great culture and scholarliness, he had a great simplicity and gentleness of manner, a great approachableness, without any loss of dignity. In that he displayed all the inherent nobility of the distinguished Irish stock from which he came. Above all, he would be remembered as one of the greatest shepherds of the Irish flock since the time of St. Patrick. Cardinal O'Donnell made the Irish people feel far closer to the heart of Catholicity than they had been able to feel for some centuries.

The motion was passed.

On the motion of Dr. Flood, seconded by Dr. McCarville, Professor Clery was again elected Chairman of Convocation.

The following were chosen for the annual Committee of Convocation:—Thomas Derrig, Thomas Donaghey, John C. Flood, Daniel Gleeson, Mary Hayden, Agnes Lyne, Richard Mulcahy, Thomas O'Beirne, D. H. O'Connor, Richard O'Rahilly, David O'Sullivan, William Sweetman, Alphonsus Treacy. Messrs. O'Rourke, O'Reilly, Carolan, Joyce, Comerford, Moylan, Burke, Kane, Fitzpatrick, Dr. Keenan and Miss Eleanor Butler.

THE LATE REV. BENSON E. GENTLEMAN.

The remains of the Rev. Benson E. Gentleman were removed yesterday from 2 Novara terrace, Bray, to the local Methodist Church, where the first portion of the Funeral Service was conducted by the Revs. J. A. Duke, J. W. R. Campbell, W. J. Christie and R. Green. The remains were taken afterwards in a motor hearse to Kingsbridge railway station, Dublin, en route for Glanmire, County Cork, where the funeral will take place to-day.

Mr. Gentleman, a well-known Methodist minister, died at Bray on Sunday last in his seventy-eighth year.

The chief mourners yesterday were:—J. W. Gentleman, H. Gentleman and Captain B. E. Gentleman, sons; Miss Lily Gentleman, Miss Vine Gentleman and Mrs. I. Swain, daughters, and Walter E. Rogers, nephew.

THE LADY ARDILAUN LECTURES.

UNIVERSITY OF PARIS.

The first of the present series of Lady Ardilaun Lectures was delivered yesterday afternoon in the Jellicoe Hall, Alexandra College, Dublin, by Dr. Ernest Barker.

The Hon. and Right Rev. Dr. Plunket, who presided, said that he was sure he was expressing the feelings of everybody in saying that he was sorry the Archbishop of Dublin, who had promised to preside, was unable to be present. These lectures on French history, he continued, were founded and endowed by the late Lady Ardilaun and held annually in the College. They will keep her memory green, but when I think of all she has done for Alexandra College that is hardly necessary. By all this generation, at least, the name of Lady Ardilaun will always be loved and honoured in this College. Dr. Plunket then introduced Dr. Barker, whom he described as one of the most distinguished men of the present day, a Fellow of three Oxford Colleges and Principal of King's College, in the University of London, which College he is now leaving, to take up a post as Professor of History in Cambridge University. Among his contributions to literature is a book on the modern history of Ireland.

THE LECTURE.

Dr. Barker said that he proposed to deal with French history of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries—or, more exactly from 1050 to 1250, the first and the best part of the Middle Ages—and particularly and almost exclusively with Northern France. In this first lecture he traced the growth of the University of Paris, its organisation and study, down through the Middle Ages. The Middle Ages, he said, have been regarded as a night of ignorance, shot by occasional fitful gleams of learning called renaissances—a modern and not very good word, invented about 1850, which should be banished. Renaissance means re-birth, and implies that something has died and been born again—in this case the great classical civilisation of the Greeks and Romans. But that great classical civilisation had never died, and so never was reborn.

Latin civilisation in practically all its aspects was a continuous stream, which never ceased from 476 down to the beginning of modern history, about 1500. From 476 to 1050 there was a regular system of study in Latin authors of subjects which constituted the essence of the education of the time—grammar, rhetoric (prose and verse) and logic, mathematics, geometry, astronomy and, finally, music, which was considered as a mathematical subject. This system of learning was taught in the early Middle Ages, before universities arose, in two types of school, one type being colleges attached to monasteries; the other, schools attached to cathedrals and collegiate schools.

THE GREAT CHANGE.

About 1050 a great change came about in Europe—economic and industrial, and also educational. The monasteries ceased to be the centres of education. Monasticism was assuming a new aspect, becoming more ascetic, eschewing learning, and becoming devoted to contemplation. Monasticism ceased to be a focus of education, which became especially a matter for the schools attached to cathedrals. Various such schools were famous in their day—in France—Chartres, renowned for its classical lore; and another, attached to Notre Dame in Paris, was opened about 1100, and became specially famous.

There were several reasons for this—the Kings of France had founded their dynasty in France about 987, and by 1100 had made themselves respected, and had turned Paris into what might already be called a capital city. Also, just about 1100, the course of education was directed especially to the study of logic and philosophy, and, since Paris had concentrated on these subjects, it naturally earned special fame. The final reason why Paris drew attention was because of Abelard, one of the greatest teachers of the Middle Ages, an orator with a singular gift for exposition, a passion for logic, and an instinct for teaching philosophy. Abelard was the chief cause of the fame of the school of Notre Dame; by 1125, in the middle of his career, there might be said to be already a university in Paris, which drew students from every quarter. Strictly speaking, there was no university in Paris, or anywhere else, until 1175, the date of the beginning of university life.

A university involves two things: the first is what is called general study, students received from all parts, and studies in general pursued; and also students, after training, are qualified to teach generally anywhere, and in any other university up and down Europe. A guild, or union, is also necessary, and may be a guild of teachers or of students, or of both. This guild must be self-governing, with rights of jurisdiction for its own members. Paris had its first guild of teachers about 1170. These guilds were of the nature of the modern trade unions, and showed some of the symptoms of trade unionism. They claimed a monopoly of teaching, boycotted rigorously teachers who were not properly admitted, or who refused to obey regulations, and they had the habit of going on strike against the French King, or the Archbishop of Paris, or even against the Papacy itself. One thing they never did was to go on strike for higher pay.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE GUILD.

The period of the development of the Paris guild is the next eighty years; during those years four faculties were developed. The faculty of arts—training for the degree of Master of Arts—was the lowest faculty, the commencement for any of the higher faculties. Three higher faculties were pursued by students of more advanced years for the degree of Doctor in Theology or Law in Medicine. Though the faculty of arts was the lowest, it was the dominant one in the university, because it was much the most numerous. The rector of the faculty of arts became the head of the whole university, and he served as bond of union to the whole university. Each faculty organised itself into a universitas on its own account, and had its own seal and statutes. The faculty of arts was divided into nations—French, Picard, Norman and English—each with its own proctor to keep order; but the discipline of the University of Paris was not good.

About 1250 the Sorbonne came into being, and in time there were sixty-eight schools in Paris. The bulk of the students were very young; they could take the degree of Master of Arts at twenty, after a five years' course. The teaching took the form of lectures, composed by the lecturers, and read aloud; and in time the authorities decreed that the lectures should be read slowly, as they did not care for the students to be able to take very complete notes. A great deal of the teaching was rather elementary, because of the youth of the students, and the examinations were not very searching. The schools and universities of Paris were never very free; external authorities were too much mixed up in their affairs, and they were never well endowed; and by 1789 many were practically extinct—a contrast with Oxford and Cambridge, where no college founded ever became extinct.

The second lecture of the series will be given to-day, when Lord Ardee will preside.

ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT.

ELECTIONS TO DUBLIN WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the newly-formed Women's Electrical Development Association, in the Boardroom of the Dublin Corporation Electricity Department, Fleet street, last evening, the following appointments were made:—President of the Association—Mrs. J. J. Murphy. Vice-Presidents—Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, Raheny; and Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, Clonskeagh. Secretary—Miss M. Cole. Executive Committee—Mrs. Price and Mrs. Kinsella. Lecture Committee—Miss J. Redington, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, Clonskeagh; and Mrs. Cosgrave.

Mrs. M. S. Kettle, who presided, explained that Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, Raheny, who was elected President at their first meeting, informed her that she could not accept the position of President, but would give her assistance to the Association in every possible way. Other changes in the personnel of the Association were also necessary. Mrs. Kettle added that Mrs. Murphy would be of great assistance to them, her husband being Chairman of the Electricity Supply Board.

The Prince of Wales was present at an Armistice Dance at St. Dunstan's, Regent's Park, London, last night.

NO GROUPING IN THE NORTH.

RESULT OF RAILWAY CONFERENCE.

NOT THE WAY TO EFFECT ECONOMIES.

Mr. J. Milne Barbour, Minister for Commerce, in the Northern House of Commons yesterday, told Mr. Kyle (Labour) that, following a statement made by the Prime Minister in April last, on the re-organisation of the railways, a conference of the chairmen and general managers of the railway undertakings operating in Northern Ireland was called.

From the discussion it was evident that there would be serious difficulties in the way of reorganisation by grouping on the lines adopted in Great Britain and the Irish Free State, and that the economies which might normally be expected from such a course would not be readily obtainable in Northern Ireland.

As they were aware, one of their most important railway systems already formed part of one of the principal groups operating in Great Britain, while a number of the other undertakings operated only partly in Northern Ireland.

HOUSING BILL.

Sir Dawson Bates, in moving the third reading of the Housing Bill, stated that the Government would pay a subsidy of £100 in respect of each house, and the local authorities would be entitled to spend £40 out of the rates towards each house, and hand it over to the builders. It had been suggested that instead of receiving the £140, those who wished to own their own houses, and were without the capital, should be provided with £350, free of interest, for a period of twenty-five years. A man, however, could go to the Belfast Corporation and pay a deposit of £10, and get from the Corporation a loan of £350. The repayments would amount to 5s. 8d. per week, which did not include repairs, and insurance, etc.

Mrs. Chichester predicted that it would not be long before the housing shortage disappeared.

Mr. S. Kyle (Labour) said that there was no guarantee in the bill that the tenant, rather than the builder, would get the advantage of the £140 subsidy. The bill was a reactionary measure, as it had reduced the superficial feet of the house entitled to a subsidy to 650 feet or less. He suggested that the Government should produce plans of satisfactry houses for working classes, and, if necessary, increase the subsidy.

Mr. George Henderson (Farmers') did not believe it was possible to build houses for agricultural labourers under the bill at rents that they could afford to pay. The only way such houses could be provided would be under the Labourers Acts.

Mr. Cooper (Unionist) said that many small farmers wished to take advantage of the bill, but the local authorities were in a difficulty, for they could only take as security the plot of ground on which the house stood. He suggested that the Minister should bring in a bill to remedy this defect.

Mr. Devlin—Bring in a bill yourself.

Mr. Cooper—You are so good at drafting bills that, perhaps, you will bring in one.

Mr. Devlin (Nationalist) said that the bill would enable private builders to take advantage of the generosity of the State in dealing with this problem in order to make private profits for themselves. He thought that there should be a tribunal set up to determine the rents to be charged.

The bill was read a third time.

On the third reading of the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restriction (Amendment) Bill, Mr. James Beattie (Labour) asked if a house under £8 valuation was still let furnished after the passing of the bill, would the landlord have to revert to the pre-war rent plus thirty per cent., the same as if the house were unfurnished.

Mr. George B. Hanna (Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Affairs) replied that this would be the case.

The Parliamentary Secretary also stated that any notices to quit served before the passage of the bill would not be interrupted by the new Act.

TRADE DISPUTES.

On the committee stage of the Trade Disputes and Trade Unions Bill, Mr. Kyle (Labour) moved to insert in a clause the words, "That any strike is legal if it has been authorised in writing from the executive committee of the trade union calling the strike."

The intention, he said, was to have the position cleared, as it would be impossible for anyone involved to determine whether a strike was legal or not.

Mr. Babington (Attorney-General) said that whether a strike was legal or not was not a matter that should be decided by the trade union or the individual, but by the Court.

The amendment was designed to defeat the object of the clause, which was intended to make certain classes of strike illegal.

Mr. W. McMullan (Labour) said that no genuine trade unionist in Northern Ireland had asked for the bill.

Mr. Thomas Henderson (Independent Unionist)) said that it is admitted that unions served a useful purpose, and the bill was going to take away any freedom which the workers possessed. He warned the Government that they were turning away their friends by introducing a repressive measure of this kind, which the people would resist very strongly.

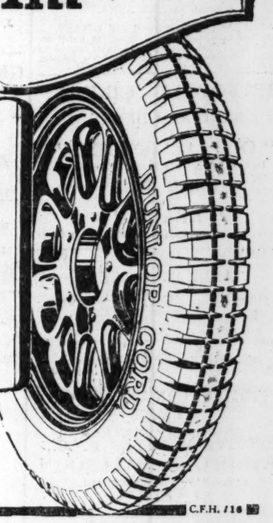

Mr. Devlin (Nationalist) said that the bill was being rammed down their throats simply because it was passed in England. He wanted to know what was the necessity for this bill, in view of the fact that there had not been any strikes in Northern Ireland for a long time, and there was no disposition to strike.

The amendment was defeated by 23 votes to 10.

Mr. Kyle moved a further amendment, the object of which was to declare a lockout illegal.

The Attorney-General said that in the bill strikes and lockouts were placed upon a precisely similar footing.

The significance of second-hand value-

SELLING as it does at a wonderfully low first cost, you might think a 1924, or '25, or '26 Morris could be picked up for a mere song. But have you ever tried?

Nothing is more significant of the value of Morris Cars than the remarkably high second-hand prices which they command.

The Morris offers you the very best value when you buy it, and it retains that value after many months and miles of service.

MORE UNEMPLOYMENT IN BRITAIN.

For the second week in succession an increase in the number of unemployed in Great Britain is reported. The total registered at the Employment Exchanges on October 31st was 1,106,100, or 32,068 more than the previous week, when the figure rose by 2,704. The latest total is 453,136 less than a year ago, when the coal dispute prevailed.

The Irish Times.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1927.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

Dr. Ernest Barker delivered the first of his series of Lady Ardilaun Lectures on French History in Alexandra College, Dublin, yesterday.—(Page 5.)

The Tariff Commission, sitting in Dublin yesterday, heard evidence on behalf of the Irish Woollen and Worsted Manufacturers' Association for a 25 per cent. ad valorem duty on all imported woollen, part woollen, worsted, or part woollen tissues weighing 7 ounces per square yard and upwards.—(Page 7.)

At a public meeting in Dublin last night Mr. de Valera and other members of Fianna Fail denounced the use of the Union Jack in Armistice Day demonstrations, and demanded that it should be stopped.—(Page 7.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

The India Office last night issued an official statement giving the personnel of the Statutory Commission of Inquiry into Indian reforms, the terms of reference, and a general outline of the Committee's proposed procedure.—(Page 8.)

SPORTING

At Lincoln yesterday Orange Bill won the Lindum Autumn Handicap.—(Page 12.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were less active. The tone of Industrials was subdued.—(Page 10.)

Stringent conditions prevailed in Lombard street, and early borrowers had to pay 4 or 5 per cent., but later balances were offering as low as 3⅞ per cent. London City Council bills were placed at an average of 4⅜ per cent.—(Page 13.)

Mr. de Valera's Claim.

Mr. de Valera has taken the oath of allegiance to the Free State's Constitution, and is now the leader of the Opposition in Dáil Eireann. Coming from such a source, during this week of solemn and hallowed memories, an incitement to public bitterness must be deplored, and cannot be ignored. On Friday, in Dublin, thousands of Irish ex-Service men will celebrate the ninth anniversary of the Armistice which ended the Great War. Their deeds, and those of their fallen comrades, helped to save the Empire and to make the Irish Free State a self-governing Dominion of that mighty Commonwealth. They fought their battles under the Empire's flag, and throughout the Empire that flag, in sisterhood with the flags of the various Dominions, will be flown—not defiantly, indeed, but proudly and thankfully—at Friday's celebrations. Mr. de Valera declares, however, that it must not be flown in Dublin. He and members of his party, who spoke last night at an open-air meeting in College Green, paraded themselves as not unreasonable persons. They were good enough to take no objection to the ceremony of Armistice Day as a commemoration of the dead. Their magnanimity allowed them to attribute respectable motives to the Irishmen who fell in the Salient, at Guinchy and Guillemont, in Gallipoli and Palestine. Nevertheless, they must refuse to make terms with any aspect of British imperialism, and, in particular, they must banish the Empire's flag from the Free State. On this point the speeches of Mr. de Valera and his friends were, in effect, an ultimatum. They said that any exhibition of the Union Jack on Armistice Day could be interpreted only as a deliberate insult to national feeling, and they did not conceal their hope that it would be made impossible by mob law. In other words, they seek to intimidate fellow-citizens from action which—apart from all questions of expediency—is wholly within the right of every subject of the State.

No doubt, the authorities will take note of last night's speeches; and, for the rest, the piety and dignity of Friday's commemoration will be safe in the ex-Service men's keeping. Their discipline has endured sterner tests and they seek no quarrel with any man—least of all, with brother Irishmen. We write reluctantly on this difficult subject at this delicate hour, but Mr. de Valera has couched his challenge in a form which compels reply. He suggests that, because his party has entered Dáil Eireann, the sanctions of the Anglo-Irish settlement have been weakened—that President Cosgrave's party will begin now to take an anti-British orientation, and that the ex-Unionist minority, if it is to live in the Free State at all, must renounce henceforward every one of its ancient and cherished loyalties. Our voice, at least, must be raised in instant protest against these notions. We do not believe that Mr. Cosgrave's Government intends to repudiate a single one of its obligations under the Anglo-Irish settlement. We believe that it will continue to honour them faithfully, as hitherto, in the spirit and in the letter, and that it will abate no fraction of its present fairness and good-will in its dealings with the old Unionists. Furthermore, that minority will continue, as hitherto, to claim no privilege, but to stand firmly upon its rights. The old Unionists are good citizens of the Free State—supporters of its laws, jealous of its fame, and respecters of its flag. They are good citizens also of the Empire in which the Free State is an equal partner—jealous of its fame, respecters of its flag, under which their fathers, brothers and sons have died in battle. For them the two loyalties are a perfect harmony; and they will surrender to no man any part of their rights as citizens of the Free State and of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Tariffs on Trial.

A financial resolution in Dáil Eireann yesterday produced a general debate on protective tariffs which promises to be almost as discursive as last week's futile debate on unemployment. The Minister for Finance enunciated the Free State Government's tariff policy. He declared that the appointment of the Tariff Commission had provided a safe way between the Scylla of doctrinaire Free Trade and the Charybdis of out-and-out protection. Fianna Fáil, of course, being free from all executive responsibility, would not hear of a moderate course. It demands "full-blooded protection," and takes the view that the easiest way to protect Free State industries is to impose embargoes on the products of their "foreign" competitors. It is true that Mr. Blythe and Mr. Hogan made mince-meat of these arguments; but, unfortunately, the persuasive eloquence of the Fianna Fáil spokesmen seems to have convinced certain credulous folk in the Free State that the solution for all the country's economic ills lies in the simple remedy of protection. Mr. Lemass announced during yesterday's debate that England had built up her great prosperity under protection, neglecting to add that she had adopted Free Trade at the first favourable opportunity. He declared that protection had given Germany the industrial pre-eminence which she had enjoyed before the war, again forgetting conveniently to mention the results of her "all-German" policy; and finally he attributed the great wealth of the United States also to protective tariffs, ignoring the fact that the United States, within its own fiscal system, provides the most striking example of Free Trade in economic history. Mr. Lemass was careful to avoid all reference to the fact that the Free State is as different from Britain, Germany or the United States as chalk is from cheese. It depends primarily on agriculture for its sustenance; and comparison between an agricultural and an industrial country is manifestly absurd.

Mr. Blythe admits frankly that so soon as the tariff on boots and shoes becomes effective it will throw a substantial burden on the consumer, who then will be forced to pay fifteen per cent. more for his footwear than he would need to pay if there were no tax. At present the consumer is paying between £270,000 and £300,000 every year in revenue to the State, thus enabling remissions of taxation to be made in other directions; but when the purchase of foreign footwear ceases this revenue will disappear. Mr. John Good, however, gave the coup de grâce to Fianna Fáil's fantastic claims. At present, he said, the boot and shoe tax was producing revenue to the amount of some £272,000 per annum, and since it was instituted the number of hands employed in Free State factories had increased by about 700. In other words, for every man, woman or child who got employment in consequence of the tariff, the consumer was mulcted in no less than £389 per annum—a very respectable sum. In face of these facts, how can Mr. Lemass or anybody else assert that high protection would be of advantage to this country? Last year a Northamptonshire boot manufacturer announced publicly that nothing less than a forty per cent. tariff would make any appreciable difference to the British boot and shoe trade in the Saorstát. Apparently, Mr. Lemass and his friends would be quite glad to impose such a tax, and, furthermore, to prevent any British firm from setting up a factory here. In short, Fianna Fáil stands for the complete victimisation of the unfortunate consumer, whom it would place completely at the mercy of the native manufacturer. The Free State might become "self-sufficient," as Mr. Lemass predicts; but the cost of living would become so high that—apart altogether from the danger of retaliation by England, which is another day's work—Saorstát Eireann soon would be known not only as the poorest, but as the most expensive, country in the world.

Architecture in Ireland.

To walk through Dublin in recent years has been to suffer disgust at the spectacle of cheap, ugly and inharmonious architecture. Our country, as Mr. J. V. Downes said in his presidential address to the Architectural Association of Ireland last night, is ten years behind England, and twenty years behind the Continent, in realisation of the needs of the age in the art of building. The renaissance which has made reconstruction in other lands a thing of beauty did not reach our shores in time to ensure that the best advantage should be taken of the peculiar opportunities recently afforded. Large regions were desolated in Dublin and Cork, and an alert public opinion might have provided that the reconstructed areas would be beautified. In Cork the reconstruction in the main was good, and Patrick street to-day is worthy of any city of Cork's size. In Dublin, however, no consistency in the work of rebuilding is visible; and the rebuilt area can be described in the phrase which Mr. Downes aptly applied to the whole city as "a jumble of the excellent and of the extremely bad." The most hopeful sign in the present state of affairs is the frequency with which the doctrines that Mr. Downes enunciated are being preached. It is evident that our architects, at any rate, are awake to the new age, and realise that a newer and higher level of architecture is required. The establishment of a School of Architecture at University College, Dublin, too, promises that the young men of the future will be trained in such fashion that the faults seen in some of the better new buildings, where good ideas are spoiled by bad blending, will be avoided. Ultimately, however, it is the public that most requires education. The architect may have vision and skill; but how can he hope to apply them when the clergyman, considering designs for a new church, insists on a sham Gothic, or the business man, preparing to build new offices, demands a building which will contrast, instead of harmonising, with its environment? Mr. Downes corrected a popular fallacy when he said last night that the best new architectural work on the Continent had been evolved through the need to economise in expenditure. Private persons undertaking building works ought to realise that the best architecture, in the long run, is the cheapest. Beauty and economy go hand in hand.

Children's Speech.

If the children of the rising generation do not grow into knowledgeable men and women, it will not be for want of effort to render the acquisition of knowledge easy. Whereas their elders gathered learning by patient study at school and curious searching of Spenser and Milton in the home, the youth of to-day is offered school books that resemble play books and encyclopædias peculiarly fitted to the childish intelligence. The latest work devoted to the enlightenment of the young is the Children's Dictionary, of which the first serial number was published yesterday. When the work is complete no fewer than 100,000 words will be explained by definition, anecdote and picture In the first number words from "aardvark" to "aircraft" are explained. Most adult people who look through the pages will begin to shrink from conversation with boys and girls who have read them. Among the terms explained a big proportion applies to engineering matters. Macaulay's schoolboy would know all about the Acropolis, the accolade and the Æolian harp; but, if he were asked to define "aileron," he would be able merely to hazard a wide conjecture drawn from the word's obvious derivation. The reader of the Children's Dictionary, however, would be able proudly to explain to him that the ailerons are adjustable flaps on the wings of aeroplanes, serving to control the lateral balance. So, too, the learned youth of to-morrow will be able to describe the working of air brakes and of accelerators, of "aerobombs" and of wireless "aerials." This, doubtless, is all to the good; yet no bad use was made of the older dictionaries that taught other children of the Lydian airs in which the poet was lapped and of the spirits' aëry purposes.

UNIVERSITY OF DUBLIN.

THE ELECTION OF A NEW CHANCELLOR.

The election of a Chancellor will be held in the Theatre of Trinity College, on Friday, November 11th, at 4 o'clock p.m.

The votes of members of the Senate present will be collected by the Proctors.

None will be admitted but members of the Senate, who are expected to appear in the academic dress proper to their degrees.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—Pressure remains high in mid-Atlantic. A deep depression centred off Corunna is moving north-eastward, and a secondary depression near the Shetlands is moving south-eastward. Winds will be north-westerly in Northern districts and north-easterly in Southern districts, and may reach gale force in the English Channel. Rain will occur over the south-eastern part of England, but elsewhere there will be only local wintry showers.

Ireland, North-West and North-East.—Wind northerly, moderate or fresh; variable sky; local wintry showers; cold frost locally at night.

Ireland, South-East and South-West.—Wind north-easterly, moderate to strong; mainly fair, but local wintry showers; cold; frost locally at night.

Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Wind north-east, fresh or strong; local showers; visibility mainly good; sea rather rough.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

Yesterday the Court went out of mourning for the late Marquis of Cambridge. The members of the Royal Family will continue to wear private mourning, but will fulfil their various engagements, as announced some time ago.

Prince Henry has left London for Berwickshire, where he is the guest of the Earl and Countess of Haddington at Mellerstain. On Armistice Day His Royal Highness will unveil the Cenotaph in Edinburgh, and he has promised to speak at the concert for the British Legion funds which will be held in the Scottish capital on that evening.

Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll opened a bazaar yesterday in Kensington Town Hall, in aid of the Princess Louise Hospital for Children. Princess Marie Louise, who will leave for South Africa next month, will be the guest of honour at the annual dinner of the Society of Authors, which will take place on Wednesday, November 30th, at the Hyde Park Hotel. The Swedish Minister and Baroness Palmstierna, the Marquis and Marchioness of Ormonde and Sir Arthur and Lady Conan Doyle will be present, and Mr. W. B. Maxwell will preside.

The Marchioness of Hartington gave birth to a daughter at her London residence last Sunday. Lady Hartington is the younger daughter of the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, and her marriage with the Marquis of Hartington, elder son and heir of the Duke of Devonshire, took place in 1917. Their family consists of two sons, and another daughter born last year.

Lord Barnby, Sir Robert Witt, and Lady Green-Price returned from New York yesterday in the s.s. Berengaria. Baroness Ravensdale is returning by the s.s. Majestic, which is due at Southampton on Friday. Sir Philip Sassoon and Sir Charles Mandleberg also are returning by that steamer.

Captain the Earl of Altamont has arrived in Paris and is staying at the Hôtel de Crillon. The Hon. Mrs. Cecil Campbell is spending a few weeks at Monte Carlo. Captain and Mrs. Ernest Platt will spend the winter months at Alassio. Colonel and the Hon Mrs. Skeffington Smyth have left for Egypt, and will not return till the spring. The Hon. Thomas and Mrs. Cholmondeley will leave London to-day for Kenya Colony. Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. Beaumont Pease will leave London to-morrow for India, and will be away for the next three months.

The engagement is announced of John David Southwell FitzGerald, of 13 Ely place, Dublin, eldest son of the late Major the Honourable Arthur Southwell FitzGerald and Mrs. Southwell FitzGerald, of 8 Belsize square, London, and grandson of the late Lord FitzGerald of Kilmarnock, to Freda, elder daughter of the late Peter Anquetil, Esq., and Mrs. Anquetil, of Beechwood, Reigate, Surrey.

The marriage arranged between Arthur F. Taylor, Esq., M.R.C.S., Mayfield, Sussex, and Gladys, daughter of Rev. W. F. and Mrs. Nunan, Drumcliffe Rectory, Sligo, will take place quietly in Dublin early in December.

The marriage took place on Tuesday, November 8th, of Captain Robert B. Brassey, of Cottesbrooke Hall, Northampton, and Constance Marion, daughter of the late Thomas Britten, of Johannesburg, South Africa.

MARRIAGE OF LORD ROSSMORE AND MRS. LEE.

Lord Rossmore was married in Enniskillen Cathedral yesterday morning to Mrs. Lee, of Queen Anne's Cottage, Windsor. The service was fully choral, and the opening portion was read by the Rev. Chancellor O'Connor, Rector of Killeevan, Co. Monaghan. The bride, who was given away by her mother, Mrs. James Birch, wore a black tailor-made coat and skirt, with black hat and silver fox fur. The Hon. Richard Westenra, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

There were about fifteen guests at the wedding, including Senator Porter Porter and Mrs. Porter; the Hon. Lady Bailey, Major Richardson, of Monaghan, and Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, of Monaghan.

In their Wicklow street windows Switzers are displaying some very smartly cut Velveteen Coatees at 15s. 11d. They are bound braid, and can be had in Black, Navy and Brown.

ABBEY THEATRE.

The two-act play, "Birthright," by T. C. Murray, was produced in the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, last night, before a large audience. This sketch of farm life, where a morose father and a tender mother differ in their affections—the one for the industrious son, and the other for his idle brother—has no gleam of comedy, and its ending with the killing of one brother by the other is a climax in keeping with its theme. The play was acted with great dramatic power, and it was generally assumed that it was the realism of the climax that caused a young woman in the gallery to faint; she had to be carried out.

The brothers were represented by P. J. Carolan and Arthur Shields. F. J. McCormick had the part of the father, and Maureen Delany that of the mother, a minor character being filled by Michael J. Dolan.

The play was followed by Mr. George Bernard Shaw's "trifle in one act," "The Man of Destiny." This piece was also admirably treated, the characters being portrayed by P. J. Carolan, Michael J. Dolan, Arthur Shields, and Eileen Crowe.

LONDON LETTER.

THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

There was quite a good attendance in the House of Commons this afternoon when the Speaker took the chair, and there seemed to be a general desire to get to business. Sir Frank Nelson was the first member to arrive at Westminster this morning, putting in an appearance at half-past four, but comparatively few members were anxious to secure seats; for the group outside the doors of the Chamber was not at all large. At eight o'clock there were only eight members in attendance. The atmosphere at Westminster was anything but pleasant throughout the day, owing to the prevalence of fog outside, and the Chamber and the precincts generally were distinctly misty.

The Next Election.

Parliament reassembled with the idea that the sittings will continue until Christmas, but nobody professes to have an idea as to what may happen afterwards. There is little belief that there will be an early general election, but at the same time it would cause little surprise should the Government decide to go to the country in the spring. It is pointed out that there has been very little political speech-making in the country during the autumn—contrary to [illegible] practice; and this is regarded as being a little curious. Members of the House of Commons appear to be uncertain as to the state of feeling in the country. Nobody seems to know what the public is thinking on political questions, and it is a subject of remark that the apathy of the electorate is more pronounced than ever.

The Blue Nile.

The Lobby of the House of Commons was very animated this afternoon; for a number of meetings was taking place in the different committee rooms, and there was much traffic to and from the corridors. The Labour Parliamentary Party held prolonged gatherings, while the advocates of a more stringent national economy foregathered in another direction. Members were disinclined to stop and gossip, however—the air in the Lobby was not sufficiently inviting—and such conversation as there was turned upon the possible length of the sittings and the position with regard to the Blue Nile dam. Politics were at a discount to-day; for nobody seemed anxious to discuss them, and there was little mention of the totalisator.

The Insurance Bill.

The Labour Party decided this afternoon that it would oppose the Unemployment Insurance Bill with a reasoned objection, but there is little inclination to believe that the opposition will develop in any terrible form, though it may be noisy. It is recalled that the Labour Party was represented on the commission whose recommendations form the basis of the measure, and that its representatives agreed with the general policy of the other members. In the circumstances the Labour Party desires the bill, and is unlikely to make a serious effort to defeat it.

Sarwat Pasha.

Sarwat Pasha, the Egyptian Prime Minister, left London for Paris this morning on his way to Cairo, and he was seen off at Victoria by Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. W. H. M. Selby, of the Foreign Office. Sarwat Pasha expressed his gratification at the result of the conversations he has had with Sir Austen Chamberlain, and said that he was sure that they would be a great help towards the stablishment of good understanding between Great Britain and Egypt. He thought it desirable that the conversations and the negotiations which may follow should lead to an alliance between the two countries. The Pasha, when questioned regarding the report from the United States of an arrangement with Abyssinia for the construction of a Blue Nile dam, would not commit himself. He had received no news from Cairo, and knew only what he had read in the Press. The matter was one between Great Britain and Abyssinia, and it was not for him to interfere at present.

The Lord Mayor's Show.

The Lord Mayor's Show, which will occupy the attention of the City to-morrow, is to be of unusual length, and it will promenade a great number of London's streets. It is to have a nautical touch, because of the association of the new Lord Mayor with the shipping industry. Trinity House Corporation is sending a display of lighthouses and lightships, while a model of the Endeavourer, that carried Captain Cook to the discovery of Australia, will be another feature. A model of the Great Eastern, the first cable ship, and the Dominia, the latest ship of the same type, will be shown side by side.

The Banquet.

At the Lord Mayor's banquet in the Guildhall to-morrow evening one thousand guests will be entertained. The Prime Minister is to respond to the toast of His Majesty's Ministers, and Sir Laming Worthington-Evans will reply for the imperial forces. Sir Austen Chamberlain is to submit the toast of the Foreign Ambassadors, and to this reply will be made by the Spanish Ambassador.

The French Army.

The horizon blue uniform of the French Army, which came into existence during the war, is to be replaced by khaki, and all the troops of the Paris garrison are to appear in their new dress on Armistice Day, while those in other parts of France are to be issued with khaki as soon as the present stocks of blue are exhausted. The change is not unanimously welcomed, and several distinguished generals are pressing the Government to revive the picturesque pre-war infantry uniform. Advocates of the return to the red trousers desire to see a greater proportion of volunteers compared with conscripts, and hold that voluntary enlistment will be stimulated by the revival of the old uniform for walking out purposes.

Imported Eggs.

A Government committee which has been considering the question of imported eggs published its report to-day as a White Paper, recommending that dried eggs should be marked, but that imported eggs in shell should not be so identified. The committee estimates that rather more than one-half of the eggs consumed in the United Kingdom are imported, but does not think that the home industry is being throttled by the unfair competition of foreign eggs. The effect of a marking order on cheap eggs, the committee states, would be to increase the cost to the home producer, and the committee cannot view with complacency a regulation which would increase the cost of living to the poorer classes in this country, and at the same time cheapen supplies for their competitors abroad.

GENERAL SIR BRYAN MAHON.

On inquiry last evening it was ascertained that General Sir Bryan Mahon's condition has very much improved.

The Enniskillen Urban Council has decided to give £15 to the Ulster Tourist Development Association for the coming year.

DEMANDS FOR TARIFFS.

TWO NEW EFFORTS

DUTIES WANTED ON WOOLLENS IN FREE STATE.

BRITISH MOVE.

AN EFFORT TO OBTAIN PROTECTION FOR HOSIERY.

TWO applications for tariffs were ma[de] yesterday.

In Dublin the Tariff Commissi[on] began the hearing for a demand for t[he] imposition of Customs duty of 25 per ce[nt.] ad valorem on all imported woollen, pa[rt] woollen, worsted, or part worsted tiss[ues] weighing seven ounces per square ya[rd] and upwards.

In London it was announced last ni[ght] that as the result of a further applicati[on] under the safeguarding of industries p[ro]cedure by the National Joint Industr[ial] Council for the hosiery trade, for [the] imposition of an import duty on hosi[ery] and knit-wear of cotton and wool, [the] Board of Trade have re-appointed [the] Committee which heard the previ[ous] application. This committee, consisti[ng] of Sir James C. Calder (chairman), [the] Hon. Mrs. J. Rochfort Maguire, and [Mr.] Arthur Hollins, will consider—hav[ing] regard to their report of the 10th Ju[ly] 1926—whether the present position in [the] industry is, or is not, such as wo[uld] justify the imposition of any import du[ty].

NEED FOR SPECIALISATION.

"My point is that the Associat[ion] should get together and try to see h[ow] by consolidation or otherwise, they co[uld] fight the outsider, and not themsel[ves]. On the other side of the water they [are] all for specialisation, and I find that [it] has not even been considered here."

The above remark was made by P[ro]fessor Whelehan at yesterday's sitting [in] Dublin of the Tariff Commission, w[hen] the Irish Woollen and Worsted Manu[fac]turers' Association presented its case [for] the imposition of a 25 per cent. ad valo[rem] Customs duty on all imported wooll[en], part woollen, worsted or part wors[ted] tissues weighing seven ounces per squ[are] yard and upwards.

Professor Whelehan further remark[ed]: "You say you can never make the ch[eap] cloth, and yet you ask for an imp[ort] duty on it. Obviously that will incre[ase] the cost of living to those who can aff[ord] to purchase only the cheapest ready-m[ade] clothing."

It was stated on behalf of the mem[bers] of the Association that they had lost t[heir] markets during the troubled peri[od]. They could not get back their mar[kets] until something was done to close [the] gates against the imports. The ma[nu]facturers who brought in the fash[ions] that came into vogue during those t[...] years were able to hold the home ma[rket] against them.

The application was opposed by [...] Associations.

PRICE AND PATTERN.

YARNS IMPORTED FROM YORKSHIRE.

The applicants had put in an exte[nsive] statement, in which, under a numbe[r of] scheduled headings, they set out the par[ticu]lars of the trade in the Free State. [It] was a privileged statement for the info[rma]tion of the Commission. The Associa[tion,] it was pointed out, represented over 99 [per] cent. of the woollen manufacturers, [and] mills in the Free State. Another state[ment] was that the Free State mills are wo[rking] not more than half-time. In 1925 the [im]ports of cloth were 4,187,976 square y[ards] and the home consumption of home-[made] cloth was 1,102,000 square yards. Since [then] the balance went further against the [home] manufacturer. In 1925 the members o[f the] Association paid out £173,991 in wages, [with]out counting managerial expenses. Appro[xi]mately for every £3 worth of their m[anu]factures they sold they paid £1 in wag[es to] Irish workers. If the consumption we[re] be doubled the wages paid would be [in]creased by 75 per cent.. They did not ask for an increase on the 15 per cent. already placed on imported blankets. [They] fixed the weight at 7 ounces, as that wa[s the] average weight of material used for wo[men's] dresses. For the present they could[n't] make the very fine dress clothes imp[orted] from France and England. Generally s[peak]ing, the cost of living would not be incre[ased] in consequence of the tariff sought.

In reply to a series of questions by [the] Chairman the different witnesses for [the] application stated that they did not a[nitici]pate, if the tariff were granted, that [they] would be called upon to cope with a full [Free] State demand for one, or one and a [half] years, and by that time they would be [in a] position to supply every class and sty[le of] cloth required by the people of the coun[try].

PRICE AND QUALITY.

Chairman—It is frequently alleged a[bout] Irish produced woollen goods that they [lack] the variety of pattern, and to some e[xtent] the finish of the imported cloths, and a[t the] same time the prices are higher. It i[s not] sufficient for you to say that you will b[e able] to meet the demand: you must also s[atisfy] us about the price, the quality, the pa[ttern] and the finish.

Mr. Cronin replied that the membe[rs of] the Commission, when they visited [the] mills, would see for themselves [that] they were producing a very exte[nsive] range of patterns. Before the war sixt[y per] cent. of the output of the Irish mills we[nt to] home consumption, and they were clo[thing] the people in very suitable material. [They] were able to do the same still.

The Chairman said that fashions had [com]pletely changed, and what they had pro[duced] successfully before the war would not [be re]quired now.

Mr. Cronin—I say that we can still [meet] the requirements of the consumer.

Chairman—The general trend of th[e in]formation we have got is that, whil[e the] English and Scottish manufacturers [have] adapted themselves to meet the change i[n the] woollen trade, the change in the p[ublic] taste from heavy to lighter goods, [to] cloths and such, that you have been b[ehind] the times in recognising the change.

Mr. Telford—I can safely say that the [Free] State manufacturers can give sufficient v[ariety] of up-to-date patterns and designs. W[e are] competing in the markets of Great B[ritain] and other countries, and we could not [do so] if we were not able to cater for the[ir] popular taste. We do not admit tha[t our] designs are not as good as those of the [...] Channel mills.

Chairman—Or your prices?

Mr. Cronin—In some cases they are j[ust as] low.

Mr. McCarthy—And in some the[y are] lower.

READYMADE CLOTHING.

Chairman—Speaking for myself alo[ne, I] must say that I have experienced con[sider]able difficulty in getting Irish suitings t[o my] requirements. What proportion of [...] seven-ounce cloths would suit the dema[nds of] the manufacturers of ready-made clothi[ng?]

Mr. Cronin—I should say a very small [pro]portion. We can make a cloth that is [just] as good as the cloth imported for m[ade]-mades.

Chairman—And as cheap?

Mr. Cronin—I would not say quite as c[heap.]

Chairman—Can you give us an idea of [...]

BRITISH MOVE.

AN EFFORT TO OBTAIN PROTECTION FOR HOSIERY.

TWO applications for tariffs were made yesterday.

In Dublin the Tariff Commission began the hearing for a demand for the imposition of Customs duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem on all imported woollen, part woollen, worsted, or part worsted tissues weighing seven ounces per square yard and upwards.

In London it was announced last night that as the result of a further application under the safeguarding of industries procedure by the National Joint Industrial Council for the hosiery trade, for the imposition of an import duty on hosiery and knit-wear of cotton and wool, the Board of Trade have re-appointed the Committee which heard the previous application. This committee, consisting of Sir James C. Calder (chairman), the Hon. Mrs. J. Rochfort Maguire, and Mr. Arthur Hollins, will consider—having regard to their report of the 10th July, 1926—whether the present position in the industry is, or is not, such as would justify the imposition of any import duty.

NEED FOR SPECIALISATION.

"My point is that the Association should get together and try to see how, by consolidation or otherwise, they could fight the outsider, and not themselves. On the other side of the water they are all for specialisation, and I find that it has not even been considered here."

The above remark was made by Professor Whelehan at yesterday's sitting in Dublin of the Tariff Commission, when the Irish Woollen and Worsted Manufacturers' Association presented its case for the imposition of a 25 per cent. ad valorem Customs duty on all imported woollen, part woollen, worsted or part worsted tissues weighing seven ounces per square yard and upwards.

Professor Whelehan further remarked: "You say you can never make the cheap cloth, and yet you ask for an import duty on it. Obviously that will increase the cost of living to those who can afford to purchase only the cheapest ready-made clothing."

It was stated on behalf of the members of the Association that they had lost their markets during the troubled periods. They could not get back their markets until something was done to close the gates against the imports. The manufacturers who brought in the fashions that came into vogue during those three years were able to hold the home market against them.

The application was opposed by four Associations.

YARNS IMPORTED FROM YORKSHIRE.

The applicants had put in an extended statement, in which, under a number of scheduled headings, they set out the particulars of the trade in the Free State. This was a privileged statement for the information of the Commission. The Association, it was pointed out, represented over 99 per cent. of the woollen manufacturers, and 20 mills in the Free State. Another statement was that the Free State mills are working not more than half-time. In 1925 the imports of cloth were 4,187,976 square yards, and the home consumption of home-made cloth was 1,102,000 square yards. Since that the balance went further against the home manufacturer. In 1925 the members of the Association paid out £173,991 in wages, without counting managerial expenses. Approximately for every £3 worth of their manufactures they sold they paid £1 in wages to Irish workers. If the consumption were to be doubled the wages paid would be increased by 75 per cent.. They did not now ask for an increase on the 15 per cent. duty already placed on imported blankets. They fixed the weight at 7 ounces, as that was the average weight of material used for women's dresses. For the present they could not make the very fine dress clothes imported from France and England. Generally speaking, the cost of living would not be increased in consequence of the tariff sought.

In reply to a series of questions by the Chairman the different witnesses for the application stated that they did not anticipate, if the tariff were granted, that they would be called upon to cope with a full Free State demand for one, or one and a half years, and by that time they would be in a position to supply every class and style of cloth required by the people of the country.

PRICE AND QUALITY.

Chairman—It is frequently alleged against Irish produced woollen goods that they lack the variety of pattern, and to some extent the finish of the imported cloths, and at the same time the prices are higher. It is not sufficient for you to say that you will be able to meet the demand: you must also satisfy us about the price, the quality, the pattern, and the finish.

Mr. Cronin replied that the members of the Commission, when they visited the mills, would see for themselves that they were producing a very extensive range of patterns. Before the war sixty per cent. of the output of the Irish mills went for home consumption, and they were clothing the people in very suitable material. They were able to do the same still.

The Chairman said that fashions had completely changed, and what they had produced successfully before the war would not be required now.

Mr. Cronin—I say that we can still meet the requirements of the consumer.

Chairman—The general trend of the information we have got is that, while the English and Scottish manufacturers have adapted themselves to meet the change in the woollen trade, the change in the popular taste from heavy to lighter goods, sports cloths and such, that you have been behind the times in recognising the change.

Mr. Telford—I can safely say that the Free State manufacturers can give sufficient variety of up-to-date patterns and designs. We are competing in the markets of Great Britain and other countries, and we could not do so if we were not able to cater for the new popular taste. We do not admit that our designs are not as good as those of the cross-Channel mills.

Chairman—Or your prices?

Mr. Cronin—In some cases they are just as low.

Mr. McCarthy—And in some they are lower.

READYMADE CLOTHING.

Chairman—Speaking for myself alone, I must say that I have experienced considerable difficulty in getting Irish suitings to my requirements. What proportion of those seven-ounce cloths would suit the demand of the manufacturers of ready-made clothing?

Mr. Cronin—I should say a very small proportion. We can make a cloth that is quite as good as the cloth imported for ready-mades.

Chairman—And as cheap?

Mr. Cronin—I would not say quite as cheap.

Chairman—Can you give us an idea of what

MISSING WILDE MSS. FOUND.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Tuesday.

A long-sought manuscript of a play by Oscar Wilde, hitherto believed to have been lost or destroyed, has just come to light in New York. It is a complete manuscript of "The Duchess of Padua," 226 pages, in Wilde's exquisite handwriting, only slighted yellowed by the forty-four years which have passed since it was written in Paris.

So far as is known, this is the second important manuscript of Oscar Wilde which has come to America. The Pierpont Morgan collection already contains the autograph manuscript of "Dorian Gray."

The newly-discovered document, which at present is in the hands of the President of the Anderson Galleries, was brought over from England last week by Mr. George Arliss, the actor. It seems that the father of Mr. Arliss, who was a printer in Bloomsbury, printed twenty copies for Wilde in 1883, and that the manuscript passed to some actor, who mislaid it for many years.

CORK CITY LINE MAY CLOSE.

RAILWAY'S PROPOSED BILL IN THE DAIL.

CORK, Tuesday.

At a conference held here to-day, Mr. M. F. Keogh, general manager of the Great Southern Railways, intimated that, owing to the loss on the line and cost of maintenance, the company proposed to seek Parliamentary powers for the abandonment of the Cork City Railways, the link between the Albert Quay and Glanmire Stations.

If no arrangement could be made to meet the losses incurred by the company, he said, the only course open to them to relieve themselves from that serious blister, was to make their case in Dail Eireann.

Mr. P. Monahan, Commissioner for Cork Borough, on behalf of the Corporation, and Mr. D. L. O'Gorman and Mr. Exham (representing Cork County Council), and other speakers, strenuously opposed the company's proposal, but no decision was reached.

The Cork City Railways consist of new roads between the north and south channels of the River Lee, and from St. Patrick's Quay to King street, together with two lift bridges—one across each channel. The normal maintenance of the undertakings, Mr. Keogh explained, after giving credit for the whole of the receipts, amounted to between £4,000 and £5,000.

The company, he added, was exceedingly anxious to avoid any action which might be calculated to be detrimental to the interests of Cork, but the actual crux turned upon the maintenance of the lift bridges. The company found themselves in the position of having to abandon the railways and remove the bridges, a step which, while proving no detriment to the company, would, it was realised, be quite different from the public point of view.

IMPORT RESTRICTIONS REMOVED.

CONVENTION NOT SIGNED BY THE FREE STATE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
GENEVA, Tuesday.

The Irish Free State was one of the seventeen out of the thirty-five States taking part in the conference for the abolition of import and export restrictions and prohibition, who did not sign the convention which was drafted by the conference. Other States who did not sign are Canada, India, the United States of America and Australia.

The Australian delegate was absent from Geneva, but in the other cases the reason assigned for not signing is the necessity for the Government concerned to examine carefully the terms of the convention.

The principal States who signed include Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Japan.

Sir Sydney Chapman, the British representative, also signed on behalf of Northern Ireland and those parts of the British Empire which are not represented at the League of Nations.

France abandons her embargo on the import of coal, coke, peat, lignite, briquettes, etc.

An analysis of the chief results of the conference shows that the high contracting parties undertake within a period of six months after the coming into force of the convention, and subject to certain specified exceptions, to abolish all existing prohibitions and restrictions, and not to impose new ones.

The convention provides for a meeting of the signatories next summer for the purpose of examining the situation in the light of the various reservations. The convention may be denounced at the end of three years if the temporary exceptions allowed have not been discontinued.

The conference is convinced that its work will contribute to the improvement of the existing situation by reducing in the near future the number of prohibitions and restrictions in force.

INFECTED PIGS.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE IN BERKSHIRE.

The British Board of Agriculture last night announced that existence of foot-and-mouth disease had been confirmed in a slaughter-house at Windsor, Berkshire, in ten out of forty-seven pigs on the premises.

The usual restrictions have been applied to an area of approximately fifteen miles' radius.

PROHIBITION IN AMERICA.

TIGHTENING UP THE LAW.

A decision of the United States Supreme Court adds another burden to those already inflicted on restaurants, hotels and night clubs by the prohibition law, says the New York Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. Under the new ruling any of these institutions may be prosecuted for providing their guests with cracked ice, ginger ale, seltzer water, or glasses to be used in the consumption of alcoholic liquor, even though this liquor was furnished by the guest himself.

A decision to this effect by a lower Court came up to the Supreme Court for review, and by declining to consider it the Court sustained the ruling. The language is so broad that, seemingly, it would bring penalties into force against the restaurant or hotel owner who even permits his guests to drink from pocket flasks.

The guests themselves may be prosecuted for transporting liquor, which may not be done except under a permit, which is valid only on a given date and specifies the points from and to which the transporting is to be done.

THE UNION JACK DENOUNCED.

REPUBLICANS AND ARMISTICE DAY.

THREATS AT DUBLIN MEETING.

A large gathering answered the summons of Fianna Fail to a meeting held last night in College Green, Dublin, to express "the protest of the Nationalist people of Dublin against the repetition of displays of British imperialist sentiment that are insulting to the Irish people."

The speakers included Mr. Sean Lemass, who presided; Mr. Frank Fahy, Mr. T. Mullins, Mr. Oscar Traynor, Mr. S. T. O'Kelly and Mr. de Valera. All protested against the carrying of Union Jacks by ex-Service men in the Remembrance Day demonstrations. Several spoke of it as the flaunting of the English flag in Ireland, described it as an insult and an outrage on Irish sentiment, and said that it must be stopped.

Mr. Sean Lemass, T.D., said that on previous occasions, when demonstrations were arranged in memory of men who had died in France, the demonstrations were utilised by a small section to display imperialistic sentiments that, in view of the history of this country, and in particular of Dublin, could not be peacefully tolerated by the Irish people. (Hear, hear.) On those occasions the flag that had for ever been the symbol of tyranny, rapine and loot in Ireland was flaunted. A small section availed itself of the occasion to offer that insult to the Irish people, and, as inevitably happened when such insults were offered to a high-spirited people, they resulted in rioting and disorder in the capital. They did not wish to see a renewal of riot or disorder in Dublin. They had no objection to any section of the people honouring their dead, but they did object to the alien section in their midst, whose headquarters were situated in that building opposite (pointing to Trinity College), availing itself of these occasions to insult the Irish people. (Applause.) He believed that the vast majority of the British ex-Service men themselves objected to the demonstrations being used for such a purpose, and the main purpose of this meeting was to ask the Nationalist ex-Service men to see that the demonstration on Friday next was not utilised, as previous demonstrations had been, to insult the citizens of Dublin.

Mr. Frank Fahy, T.D., said that he had no quarrel with those who would commemorate their dead, who honestly died believing they were right; but that commemoration should not be used by pro-Britishers to spread the Union Jack over Dublin and say that the remnant of the ex-Service men in Ireland were pro-British. They were not. They should be Irish now, and not allow any Imperialist to use any Nationalist in order to flaunt the flag of Empire here.

REMEMBRANCE DAY.

Mr. T. Mullins, T.D., said that a section had used Remembrance Day as a demonstration in this country of the solidity of British Imperialism. They objected, and would continue to object, to such demonstrations, and, with the assistance of the people, they would in time put an end to the display of imperialistic emblems in this country, and the making a mockery of the solemn commemoration of the dead who died in Flanders and on the battlefields of Europe. They asked the people of Dublin to make it plain to the people running those demonstrations that from this day forward any semblance of Imperialism would not be tolerated.

Mr. Oscar Traynor, ex-Sinn Fein T.D., declared that any ex-British soldier he ever met told him that when he went to war he believed he was going out to fight for the freedom of small nations, Ireland being one of them. They did not go out to fight that the British Empire might endure. If it was the purpose of certain people to drive a wedge between the people of Southern Ireland, as had been done in Belfast, he warned them that they were going to perish in that attempt. He appealed to Nationalist ex-Service men not to disgrace themselves by continuing to march under the Union Jack.

There would never be peace in Ireland until Ireland was completely free and independent.

"NO COLONY."

Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, T.D., said that they were there to demonstrate that Ireland was no colony, and that the Irish people would be no party to anything that flavoured of British imperialism. Dublin citizens still stood solidly behind the old ideal of an Irish Republic, and they were not going to allow their national principles to be misrepresented by any waving of the Union Jack or other imperial flag or emblem.

If any of their fellow-citizens wanted to commemorate their dead they were free to do so, provided that they did not insult Irish nationality. The Union Jack always meant degradation to Ireland and Irish citizenship, and every time it was raised in Dublin or elsewhere every Irishman who loved his country, who had any sense of common decency, must protest. The Irish Republicans would remain faithful to their comrades who died to wipe out the Union Jack in this country. They would not be unfaithful to their best friends, and they—the majority—would not allow British imperialists in Dublin and in Ireland to have their way.

THE TASK.

They had to clear out of power and influence and authority every man—every individual—who stood in Ireland for the retention of British power in this country, whether it be Mr. Healy in the Phœnix Park, representative of British authority that he was, or Mr. Cosgrave. (Hear, hear.)

It was their duty to the dead who died for Ireland to unite in one more great effort in the big movement to drive into the seas of Ireland those enemies of Irish nationality who were the bulwark of what remained of British Imperialism here in Ireland. It was their duty to clear Ireland of renegades and misfits who misrepresented Irish nationalism and held Ireland down at present, so that the British Empire might prosper and Ireland go to the dogs.

MR. DE VALERA'S VIEWS.

Mr. E. de Valera, T.D., said that nothing was more natural than that men should seek to commemorate the memory of comrades who fought by their side in battle. That was generous sentiment, and nothing was meaner than to take advantage of that sentiment and to use it for a base end. They understood that sentiment and respected it, and nobody present

WESTERN RELIEF FUND.

NOW OVER £5,776.

£700 FROM OUR READERS YESTERDAY.

BELOW we acknowledge contributions, amounting to £702 3s. 9d., to the Western Relief Fund. They bring the total subscribed by our readers in seven days to £5,776 8s. 5d.

Further contributions which were received late last night will be acknowledged in our columns to-morrow.

The subscriptions from our readers will be handed over to the National Relief Fund opened by President Cosgrave. As he stated in his appeal which we published last Thursday, should a surplus remain when the needs of those who have been deprived of their bread-winners have been supplied, the Committee will prepare a scheme for the disposal of the balance in the best interests of the Western fisher-folk.

MORE REBELS EXECUTED.

SEQUEL TO MEXICAN REVOLT.

GENERAL'S APPEAL FOR A DOCTOR.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Mexican Federal troops, in the State of Vera Cruz, captured and executed yesterday two more rebel officers—General Fernando Reyes, who once was one of Pancho Villa's commanders, and General Silvano Garcia, described by the Government as for ten years a leader of bandits in the heights of Orizaba.

This makes seven officers, including General Arnulfo Gomez and his nephew, shot by troops after courtmartial in the past few days. Three other officers, captured about the same time as General Gomez, were condemned to death by courtmartial and were executed.

Dr. Himinez O'Farrell, who was associated with General Gomez in his revolt, has surrendered himself to the military authorities, and is being taken to Mexico City, where he will be given a chance of explaining his conduct.

When General Gomez was captured he asked for clemency for Dr. O'Farrell, and declared that he had inveigled Dr. O'Farrell into the revolt, in which he took no active part.

MR. SMILLIE, M.P., ILL.

HEART ATTACK IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Mr. Robert Smillie, M.P., the veteran miners' leader, was taken suddenly ill in the library of the House of Commons last night. He was at once attended by his colleague, Mr. Williams, M.P., and recovered sufficiently to be taken to his London home. It is understood that Mr. Smillie was suffering from a heart attack.

Mr. Smillie, who is President of the Scottish Miners' Federation, is a native of Belfast, and is 70 years of age. He was President of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain from 1912 to 1921, and has represented Morpeth since June, 1923.

JUDGES ON STRIKE.

A RIVIERA COMEDY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NICE, Tuesday.

The Nice lawyers were dumfounded this morning when, on arriving at the Law Courts, they discovered that the judges had gone on strike.

A local lawyer who had been acting as a Civil Court Judge for a considerable time, had refused to occupy the Bench because his nomination as a judge had not arrived, and the other judges had struck work in sympathy.

The court proceedings were thus delayed for over two hours.

BOY MURDERED BY MOONSHINERS.

DOG LEADS SEARCH PARTY TO BODY.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Tuesday.

A telegram from Scott Depot, West Virginia, says that the extensive search that has been carried out for a fourteen-year-old boy, Oscar Racer, who disappeared recently during a hunting trip, was about to be given up when the boy's dog came into the town, gently bearing his master's head, and then led a number of fellow-townsmen to the lonely spot where the boy's body lay.

This brutal murder and decapitation is believed to have been committed by Moonshiners, who thought that the lad knew too much.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Tuesday.

Anatole France died at his villa of La Bechellerie, in Tourraine, on November 1st, 1924, and two days later Drs. Guillaume Louis and Dubreuil Chambardel carried out an examination of the deceased's brain, just as was done in the case of Goethe, Byron and Gambetta.

The result of their investigations was to-day laid before the Academy of Medicine, and comprises the following details:—

The average weight of an adult brain is about 1.360 grammes (about 48 ounces), but the brain of Anatole France was found to weigh only 1.017 grammes (about 36 ounces).

What could be the cause of such a marked difference? The doctors, however, remembered that the weight of a brain bears no direct relation to the intellect, and after describing minutely all the special features of this particular one, they declare that the effect of these peculiarities was to cause a marked increase in the area of the grey matter.

In conclusion, the doctors state that the shape of the brain was admittedly comparable to certain Louis XV. clocks, containing within it mechanism of perfect precision.

£7,250 RAISED AT A DINNER.

DUKE OF YORK TO JOIN THE FROTHBLOWERS.

The Duke of York at the annual festival dinner of the British Sailors' Society, at the Savoy Hotel, London, last night, announced that the donations from the guests to the funds of the Society totalled £7,250.

"In addition to that," he said, "that well-known body of people who call themselves an ancient order—I do not know why, because they have not been in existence very long—have made a promise. I am not a member, but I think I shall have to become one. I refer to the Ancient Order of Frothblowers, who have offered us £500 for the Prince of Wales's Sea Training Hostel for Boys."

CIGARETTES FOR FOOD RELIEF.

Stating they were "a luxury and unnecessary for relieving hungry people," the Holywell (Flint) Board of Guardians declined yesterday to pay a grocer who supplied cigarettes on a relieving officer's order for food relief.

LATE NEWS.

BLUE NILE DAM.

ABYSSINIAN'S VISIT TO THE UNITED STATES.

It is learned that Dr. Wargneh C. Martin, the Abyssinian envoy, who has reached Great Britain on his return journey from the United States, to Addis Ababa, had another mission in America besides that of obtaining tenders for the construction of a dam across the Blue Nile at Lake Tsana, says The Times.

Rather more than a year ago an American State official, Mr. Ralph J. Totten, paid a visit to the Abyssinian capital to discuss the question of the establishment of a United States Legation there, and Dr. Martin was instructed by the Abyssinian Government to return the visit, and to continue the discussion of this matter at Washington, where Abyssinia is not diplomatically represented.

Dr. Martin is thus understood to have called upon the Secretary of State, Mr. Kellogg, primarily to discuss the question of diplomatic representation, and only secondarily to bring to his notice the projected construction of the dam by an American firm.

In this connection attention may be drawn to the convention on hydraulic power concluded by the League of Nations in 1923, and since ratified by Great Britain. One Article of the convention is as follows:—

"If a contracting State desires to carry out operations for the development of hydraulic power which might cause serious prejudice to another contracting State, the States concerned shall enter into negotiations with a view to the conclusion of agreements which will allow such operations to be executed."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

POSITION IN CHINA.

REVISION OF PRAYER BOOK.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.
WESTMINSTER, Tuesday.

There was nothing of a ceremonious character about the opening of Parliament to-day, the members taking their places as usual before the arrival of the Speaker.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, in a statement on China, said that conditions were unsettled in the Yangtse Valley and at Hankow. The Chinese Director of Administration fled to Shanghai on September 26, in order to avoid arrest by the military authorities, and since then the administration had been carried on by the remaining Chinese and British members of the Council, without a director. British steamer navigation was being experimentally resumed on the Upper Yangtse, and a new Independent Nationalist Government was being organised in Canton.

Sir Austen also said that he had received no official information as to the report of negotiations concerning a dam at Alsana. He had told the Egyptian Premier the views of the British Government.

Mr. Churchill said that the total betting tax yield to November 1 was £2,766,700, and that the amount from greyhound racing was "inconceivably small."

Although the House has sufficient business already announced to keep it fully occupied until Christmas the resolution of the Prime Minister giving Government Bills precedence for the remainder of the session afforded Mr. Ramsay Macdonald the opportunity for demanding time to discuss a variety of important matters not contemplated by the whips in arranging the programme. He declared that it would be against all sence of decency to separate without considering unemployment, the coal situation, naval disarmament, Tangier, the trend of foreign policy, the Washington Hours Convention, and certain other matters calling for immediate consideration. Mr. Lloyd George also deprecated the waste of time in asking the House to discuss "provocative little bills" to the exclusion of such vital matters as coal, textiles, and agriculture.

The Prime Minister pointed out that the bills already announced were subject to the same conditions as a passage from Dover to Calais—"wind and weather permitting." The Whips, no doubt, would do their best to arrange discussions on the general matters which had been mentioned.

Replying to Commander Kenworthy, Mr. Baldwin said that he had undertaken to give a day for discussing the proposed revision of the Prayer Book, though he did not anticipate that any general agreement would be come to on such a controversial subject.

The Prime Minister's motion was carried by 269 votes to 138.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND ASSEMBLY.

Under the ten minutes rule, Mr. Remer, the Conservative member for Macclesfield, asked leave to introduce a Bill giving additional powers to Parliament as to measures passed by the Church of England Assembly. This involved the amendment of the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act. Major Birchall opposed the Bill, and leave to introduce it was refused by 226 votes to 80.

BANKER JUMPS FROM HOSPITAL WINDOW.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Mr. Alexander Phillips, a banker associated for many years with the Guaranty Trust Company, and well-known in banking circles in Bombay, Melbourne, and Paris, died yesterday morning from a fractured skull. He jumped out of the window of a hospital where he had been taken suffering from heart trouble. Deceased, who was sixty-four, was born in Karachi.

ICES FOR BERMUDA.

NOVEL TRADE DEVELOPMENT IN CANADA.

Exporting ice cream from Nova Scotia to the British West Indies and Guiana is the latest development in Dominion-Caribbean trade. Satisfactory experiments have resulted in a substantial trade with the British tropical American colonies.

If it is consigned to Bermuda, the ice cream is shipped in blocks, but if to Georgetown, where the distance is greater, it is sent in liquid form and frozen on arrival.

Canada's production of ice cream, condensed milk, milk powder and miscellaneous dairy products last year was valued at $31,276,795 (£6,255,359).

CLOCKWORK FADDISTS.

"The attacks on white flour, and the products made from it, will appear with more or less clocklike regularity just as long as we have faddists among us who see nothing but evil in the good old white loaf," says the Bakers' Weekly of New York, which advises the public not to become unduly excited over the outbursts of anti-white flour propagandists.

"We are quite sure," it adds, "that these faddists, who, after all, have the right to their opinion, right or wrong, will ever be with us. Candidly, we believe that all their ravings are making but little inroad, as for every whole-wheat advocate we find ninety-nine equally honest people who have grown big and strong and are keeping healthy by eating that greatest of all foods, bread made from white flour."

Dr. W. A. Goligher, who has been appointed Senior Proctor of Trinity College, Dublin, is a son of the late Mr. John Goligher, of Londonderry. He has been a Professor of Ancient History and Classical Archæology since 1909, and was formerly a Commissioner of Education.

YESTERDAY IN THE DAIL.

NO GOLDEN AGE YET.

PROFITLESS DEBATE ON TARIFFS.

LONG SPEECHES, BUT FEW NEW POINTS.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

The unemployment debate in Dail Eireann, flat, stale and unprofitable as it was, seems to have found a worthy successor in the question of tariffs. Yesterday the House spent all the time between questions and the adjournment in a spiritless discussion of the relative merits of Protection and Free Trade, and the debate looks as if it might last the rest of the week.

Yesterday's proceedings shed no new light on the subject, though it undoubtedly did illuminate the utter incompetence of some deputies to speak on the matter. Fianna Fail, as the champions of whole-hearted Protection, came off second best, but, with one or two exceptions, the Government speakers did not make a brilliant display.

Mr. Blythe's speech, in opening the discussion, was very loosely knit. He did his best, however, to prove to the Opposition that it was not possible to bring the Golden Age to the Free State instantly by the mere pressing of a protectionist button. He endeavoured to convince them that the Government's policy of making haste slowly was the best so far as the imposition of tariffs was concerned.

TASTE IN IMPORTS.

Mr. Sean Lemass, for one, refused to be convinced. He demonstrated his total disagreement with the Minister for Finance in a speech which lasted forty minutes, or about five minutes longer than Mr. Blythe's address. While the Government was hastening slowly to safeguard the industries of the country, the people, he said, were fleeing to other lands.

The Government, according to Mr. Lemass, concentrated too much on selling the produce of the principal industry of this country "to the British artisan." Some of the members must have been surprised to learn by implication that the British aristocracy do not care for Irish beef and mutton. Mr. Lemass, however, did not go so far as to suggest that the old nobility in the stately homes of England favoured the frozen article.

After a reference to the boot and shoe industry, the deputy glanced at the new tariff on rosary beads, and mentioned that quite a number of beads were imported for sentimental reasons and not for use. This, of course, does not apply to the other commodity upon which the Dail recently imposed a tariff—it is very difficult to think of anybody importing margarine for sentimental reasons.

THE ENTRY OF GLADIATORS.

Mr. Lemass made frequent reference to "recent political changes" by which, the House gathered, he meant Fianna Fail's entry into the Dail. The suggestion seemed to be that things had improved all round—with the exception of the weather—since that historic event, and that even the bold, bad Government had been compelled to mend its ways. The deputy, however, was not satisfied with the extent of the Government's reformation, and talked about "putting the backbone of this Ministry into iron splints"—a somewhat ghastly phrase.

Major Bryan Cooper quoted figures of exports and imports per capita to show the fallacy of statistics quoted by Mr. Lemass giving the imports and exports per country. The House must have been reminded of the famous classification of untruths—"Lies; damned lies; statistics."

WHAT BOOTS IT?

Mr. John Good was convinced that the tariff had increased the price of boots in this country, but Mr. John Daly held a deep-rooted belief to the contrary, and compared the time when a certain boot factory was "running idle" with the present day, when presumably it is "standing active."

Touching the question of retaliation, which had been referred to frequently, Mr. Shaw pointed out that there could be retaliation without Government countenance. He mentioned, in proof of the fact, that when English visitors to this country saw posters issued by Fianna Fail advocating a boycott of English goods, they spread the news in their homeland, with the result that signs appeared in a very large number of butchers' shops in England: "We are not stocking any Irish meat here."

A Fianna Fail deputy, greatly daring or blind to the implications involved, tried to twist to his own purposes an election cartoon issued by Cumann na nGaedheal depicting a well-known politician in the rôle of a hen laying an egg, labelled "Empty formula." He brightly referred to the Free State hen sitting on the Tariff Commission egg, and finally hatching out after ten months a tariff on rosary beads.

WHEN FREESTONE IS NOT FREESTONE.

Mr. Frank Carney, who has treated us on previous occasions to bright little lectures on incendiary bombs and nickel-plated margarine, came out yesterday as an authority on freestone—which, curiously enough, he proposed, should be protected, and therefore no longer freestone. He modestly disclaimed any competency to speak on bricks or slates, "because," he said, "I have never made bricks or slates." But has he made freestone?

debate was not all that might have been expected from a Greek scholar and one acquainted with the philosophies. He was very frank, however, in admitting that in these fiscal matters all the deputies, including himself, were "a set of amateurs."

Enunciating the profound truth that the world revolves, he proclaimed: "It is about time we made up our minds that things change from year to year." He complained that Mr. Lemass, who had attributed so many wonderful things to the entry of Fianna Fail into the Dail, had omitted to state how many factories had been erected in the Free State in consequence of that entry.

LINGUISTIC FIREWORKS.

Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly tagged the Government with "laissez faire," "laisser-aller" and "festina lente," thereby adding to his reputation as a linguist. He described the debate as possessing an air of unreality, as being too academic, and not getting down to facts.

At 7.20 Mr. Heffernan was rising to continue the academic debate, when the Speaker asked: "Is it intended to conclude this debate this evening?"

"I should hope so," said President Cosgrave.

Alas, for his hopes! It was yet another case of 'hope' triumphing over experience.

After Mr. Heffernan had been talking at large for half-an-hour or so, Mr. Lemass interrupted to inquire suavely, "Will the deputy state whether he is speaking for or against the motion?"

The House chuckled its appreciation, and Mr. Heffernan replied: "Mr. Lemass himself knows exactly what my views are."

"We will make you a whole-hog Protectionist yet," shouted another of Mr. de Valera's followers.

MATTERS AGRICULTURAL.

Dr. Ryan resumed his thesis on matters agricultural, and there was a good deal of badinage between him and Mr. Heffernan, which unfortunately did not ascend to the Press Gallery.

The doctor made a good point against Mr. Shaw, who had suggested that the campaign against Irish meat in England, which followed the "Boycott English Goods" notice in Ireland, was responsible for the fall in the price of Irish live stock. "I do not think that there is much sense in that," said the doctor, "because at the same time the price of beef fell in England."

At 8.[illegible] p.m. Mr. O'Hanlon moved the adjournment of the debate until to-day.

INDIAN REFORMS INQUIRY.

PERSONNEL OF COMMISSION

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The India Office last night issued a statement by the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, giving the composition of the Statutory Commission, which is to inquire into a suitable system of representative Government for India, and the procedure proposed to be adopted for taking evidence.

The Commissioners are: Sir John Simon, K.C., M.P. (Chairman); Lord Burnham, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the Hon. E. C. G. Cadogan, M.P.; Mr. Stephen Walsh, M.P.; Colonel G. R. Lane-Fox, M.P., and Major C. R. Attlee, M.P.

The terms of reference are:—

"To enquire into the working of the system of government, the growth of education, and the development of representative institutions in British India, and matters connected therewith; and the Commission shall report as to whether, and to what extent, it is desirable to establish the principles of responsible government, or to extend, modify or restrict the degree of responsible government then existing therein, including the question whether the establishment of second chambers of local legislatures is, or is not, desirable."

POSITION OF LEGISLATURES.

The statement says:—"His Majesty's Government cannot, of course, dictate to the Commission on what procedure it should follow, but they are of the opinion that its task in taking evidence would be greatly facilitated if it were to invite the Central Legislature to appoint a joint select committee, chosen from its elected and unofficial members, which would draw up its views and proposals in writing, and lay them before the Commission for examination in such a manner as the latter may decide."

It is suggested that a similar procedure should be adopted with the Provincial Legislatures.

It is hoped that the Commission will proceed to India as early as possible in the New Year for a short visit, returning to India in October for the performance of their main task.

NATURE OF COMMISSION.

Dealing with the composition of the Commission, the statement says:—"It would be generally agreed that what is required is a Commission which would be unbiassed, and competent to present an accurate picture of the facts to Parliament; but it must also be a body on whose recommendations Parliament should be found willing to take action, which a study of the facts may indicate to be appropriate. To fulfil the first requirement it would follow that the Commission should be such as may approach its task with sympathy and a real desire to assist India to the utmost of its power, but with a mind free from preconceived conclusions on either side.

"It is, however, open to doubt whether a Commission constituted so as to include a substantial proportion of Indian members, and, as it rightly would, British official members also, would be thought to satisfy the first condition of reaching conclusions, unaffected by any process of a priori reasoning. On the one hand, it might be felt that the desire, natural and legitimate, of the Indian members to see India a self-governing nation could hardly fail to colour their judgment of her present capacity to sustain the rôle. On the other hand, there are those who might hold that British official members would be less than human if their judgment were not in some degree affected by long and close contact with the questions to which they would now be invited to apply impartial minds.

POSITION OF INDIANS.

"Indian opinion has a clear title to ask that, in the elaboration of a new instrument of Government their solution of the problem or their judgment on other solutions which may be proposed, should be made an integral factor in the examination of the question, and be given due weight in the ultimate decision. It is, therefore, essential to find means by which Indians may be made parties to deliberations so nearly affecting the future of their country.

The Viceroy hoped that there would be none, whatever might be their political opinions, who would fail to take advantage of the means presented to them of establishing direct contact between the Indian and British people.

"When the Commission has reported and its report has been examined by the Government of India and His Majesty's Government it will be the duty of the latter to present proposals to Parliament, but it is not the intention of the Government to ask Parliament to adopt these proposals without first giving a full opportunity for Indian opinion of different schools to contribute its views upon them, and to this end it is intended to invite Parliament to refer these proposals to consideration by a joint committee of both Houses and to facilitate the presentation to that committee both of the views of the Indian Central Legislature by delegations who will be invited to attend and confer with the Joint Committee, and also of the views of any other bodies whom the Joint Parliamentary Committee may desire to consult."

STATEMENTS IN PARLIAMENT.

Statements on the subject of the Commission were made in both Houses of Parliament yesterday. That in the House of Lords was made by Lord Birkenhead, who introduced a Bill authorising the necessary change of time for the appointment of the Commission. It was in similar terms to the Prime Minister's statement in reply to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald in the House of Commons.

Mr. Baldwin said that it had been considered desirable to anticipate the date—December, 1929—fixed by the original Act, and to appoint the Commission forthwith. He mentioned the personnel of the Commission, and gave the gist of the particulars set forth in the India Office statement which we print above. He told Colonel Wedgwood that he could not say whether the cost of the Commission would fall on the English or the Indian Government.

Mr. Wallhead asked whether a native Indian could be appointed a member of the Commission, and Mr. Baldwin replied that that was a broad question of principle which could be raised in the debate.

VIEWS OF INDIAN LEADERS.

Reuter's New Delhi Correspondent states that considerable disappointment prevails in Indian political circles at the exclusion of Indians from the Statutory Commission. The Indian Press has criticised this omission with considerable bitterness.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, a leading Muslim, declares that, even though presided over by Sir John Simon, the Commission will inspire no confidence and will command no public support. "This intolerance of dissent and love of unanimity," he adds, "makes one feel suspicious whether India has any chance of making itself felt."

Sir Abdur Rahim thought that a serious blunder had been committed, and he expressed the hope that the British Parliament would refuse to sanction the Commission unless it contained adequate Indian representation. The exclusion of Indians from the Commission was a violation of the policy of the Government of India Act, under which the Commission was appointed.

On the other hand, Colonel Gidney, a representative of the Anglo-Indian and domiciled Europeans in the Legislative Assembly, welcomed the Commission as eminently suitable and practicable, and thought that a mixed Commission scheme would have been unworkable.

RECENT WILLS.

Dame Emily Anne Crooke-Lawless, of Thornfield, Vine road, Barnes, Surrey, and late of Kilcrone, Cloyne, Co. Cork, who died on August 27th last, wife of Surgeon Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Warren Rowland Crooke-Lawless, K.C.V.O., C.I.E., M.D. (formerly surgeon to the Earl of Minto when Viceroy of India), and daughter of the late Mr. C. Lawless, left estate in her own disposition of the gross value of £25,435 7s. 2d., with net personalty £23,609 7s. 2d. Probate of her will, dated February 1st last, has been granted to her husband, to whom, as he survived her, she left all of her property absolutely.

Mr. James Quigley, of Tighkeen, Lodge road, Coleraine, Londonderry, who died 27th April last, left personal estate in Great Britain and Northern Ireland valued at £5,186 19s. 2d.

Mr. Albert Moore, of Garvagh, Co. Londonderry, retired hotel proprietor, who died on 4th July last, left personal estate in Great Britain and Northern Ireland valued at £4,536 17s. 5d.

Mr. Andrew Wilson, of Ballynamillen, Co. Antrim, farmer, who died 20th July last, left personal estate in England and Northern Ireland valued at £1,389.

CHEMISTRY IN DUBLIN.

A GLANCE AT ITS HISTORY.

Last night at Trinity College, Dublin, the opening meeting of the forty-eighth annual session of the Dublin University Experimental Science Association was held.

Professor J. Brontë Gatenby, who presided, announced that the Association's Silver Medal had been awarded to Mr. E. T. Walton, Sch., Mod., B.A., for his paper on "Relativity."

"The History of Chemistry in Dublin" was the subject of an address by the President of the Association, Dr. James Bell. The following is a summary of his address:—For 2,000 years chemistry was dominated by the belief in alchemy, that is: the possibility of transmuting baser metals, such as lead and mercury into gold. So much did this idea obsess the minds of alchemists that little else was done. No doubt exists that the ancient Irish had some knowledge of alchemy.

Towards the end of the sixteenth century, Edward Kelly, having forged several public documents in Ireland, fled the country. He is next heard of in the position of alchemist to Rudolf II. at Prague. Here, it is said, he converted mercury into gold, obtaining a knighthood. The Emperor, to find out the secret, cast Kelly into prison. In attempting to escape he broke his leg, with fatal results.

ROBERT BOYLE.

Modern chemistry commences with Robert Boyle, who denounced the alchemists and gave chemistry its present scientific basis. He is spoken of as the "Father of Modern Chemistry." He was the son of the Earl of Cork, but did not work in Ireland; his opinion was that Ireland was a barbarous country, where chemical spirits were so misunderstood and chemical instruments so unprocurable that it was very hard to have any hermetic thought in it. Boyle was not wholly lost to Ireland. His influence fell on two Dublin men, the brothers Molyneux, graduates of Trinity College, who started chemistry in Dublin. William Molyneux in 1683 founded the Dublin Philosophical Society, which was short-lived owing to civil war. Its work was taken up by the foundation in 1731 of the Royal Dublin Society, and in 1756 by the forerunner of the Royal Irish Academy.

Richard Kirwan, born in Galway in 1733, studied chemistry in London for ten years. On his return with new ideas, chemistry gave a great spurt in Dublin. A contemporary of his, William Higgins, a Sligo man, educated in England, was made chemist to the Apothecaries' Company of Ireland at the then princely salary of £200 a year, apartments, coals and candles. In 1795 he was made Professor of Chemistry to the Royal Dublin Society. Higgins had some idea of the atomic theory twenty years before Dalton, but unfortunately failed to follow up his idea.

THE UNIVERSITY.

During this time the University played no significant part in chemistry, owing mainly to a distrust of the science on the part of the authorities. A succession of lecturers, of whom little is known, was attached to the Medical School from its foundation in 1711. The present chair was founded in 1785, its first occupant being Dr. Perceval, of whom it is recorded that he knew little chemistry. He was followed in 1809 by Francis Barker, of whom little is recorded. He held the chair till 1850, being followed by Apjohn, whose claim to fame rests more on physics than chemistry; he was, however, instrumental in bringing out the first edition of the British Pharmacopœia.

The appointment of Barker coincided with a great advance in chemistry. The famous Sir Humphry Davy was brought to Dublin by the Royal Dublin Society, before which he delivered a series of six lectures on the application of chemistry to agriculture, receiving a sum of £750. He also obtained an honorary degree from the University.

His visit led to the appointment, in 1826, of his brother Edmund to succeed Higgins as chemist to the Royal Dublin Society. Here, in 1836, he made one of the greatest chemical discoveries ever made in Dublin, namely—acetylene gas. About the same time Sir Robert Kane, born in Dublin and educated in Trinity College, made an important discovery in connection with theoretical chemistry, obtaining a cyclic hydrocarbon from an open-chain compound.

PROFESSOR REYNOLDS.

Professor Apjohn retired in 1875, when James Emerson Reynolds was called upon to take the chair. Although intended for the medical profession, he taught himself chemistry with great success; perhaps no one has done more to further the reputation of Dublin chemistry than he. Reynolds's best known contribution to chemistry is the discovery of sulphur urea, an exceedingly reactive compound, which led up to Dr. Werner's great work on the constitution of urea itself.

Reynolds's reputation may be judged by his many distinctions, among them being:—President of the Chemical Society, President of the Society of Chemical Industry, President of the Chemical Section of the British Association, and Vice-President of the Royal Society. Reynolds retired in 1903, when the chair gained its present worthy successor, Dr. Young.

DIVINITY AND CHEMISTRY.

Proposing a vote of thanks to Dr. Bell for his address, Dr. J. Reilly said that there was no doubt chemistry had reached a very high standard in mediæval Ireland. In the succeeding 600 years there was very little development in the science, principally because the greater portion of the population was deprived of higher education. In England also the position was bad at the beginning of the nineteenth century. At Cambridge, for instance, the Professor of Chemistry was also a Professor of Divinity. Chemistry was really "done," because of its application to medicine. The College of Science in Dublin did much for chemistry.

Dr. Reilly then referred to some famous Irish chemists from the seventeenth century to the present day. The work accomplished by these men should be an incentive to the younger chemists.

Dr. J. P. C. Kirkpatrick, who seconded the motion, said that the Irish were a learned people before the coming of the English. Whether Ireland was an Island of Saints or not he could not say, but it was certainly an Island of Scholars. After the arrival of the English the Irish, who really wanted to get on with their work, left the country. Many of them reached high positions in England, France, Germany and other countries. Great things were exepected when Trinity College was founded in 1592, but unfortunately they did not fructify. In 1628, the then Provost pointed out "that it was a poor College of divines." There was little change until the end of the seventeenth century.

"A LIQUEUR."

Supporting the motion, Professor E. A. Werner referred to a certain Italian publication dealing with the world's greatest chemists. The well-known Irish chemists were almost altogether ignored, but it was pointed out that "in Ireland ether is drunk as a liqueur—a refined form of alcohol." (Laughter.)

Dr. Werner exhibited some specimens of a new type of ware, a remarkably good substitute for china. It is non-fragile, non-inflammable and tasteless, and will not crack or warp.

"IMPORTED MILK."

Mr. Neville Chamberlain has his personal views on the question of milk imported into Great Britain. Speaking to Frome Unionists the other night, he said:—

"If I had my way I would put such a duty upon foreign imported milk as would equalise the disadvantage to our home producers. I think that the farmer has a perfect right to say that under the present circumstances he is in that respect being unfairly treated."

WOMEN'S VISIT TO CHINA.

As a result of a suggestion made by the Women's International League last spring, two women from Europe are leaving within the next few days for China on a mission of friendship and good-will on behalf of women in the West to the women of China. The Women's International League has got into touch with many important women in China, who have telegraphed that such a mission would have the heartiest welcome. The delegates are Miss Edith Pye, from England, and Miss Camille Drevet, from France. A third delegate, Mrs. Grover Clark, from the United States, is at present in Pekin, and will join the others on their arrival.

DEMANDS FOR TARIFFS.

is the lowest price at which you can supply cloth?

Mr. Cronin—We can make cloth at 3s. 3d. a yard—that is the cheapest manufactured in Ireland.

Chairman—Our information is that the Yorkshire mills can produce and sell cloth at 1s. 6d. a yard.

Mr. McCarthy—Should a thing like that come under the name of cloth!

Mr. Cronin explained the cause of the present position of the Irish mills, and why they were not able to meet the import competition. During the war they could produce only Government cloths. When the war was over the British mills were able to go back at once to their normal trade, but the real troubles of the Irish manufacturers only began then. First they had the "Black and Tan" period, during which they carried on their business only with great difficulty. Then came the civil war, with trade completely dislocated. They also had to use the mills for making uniform cloths for the National Army. During those three years the manufacturers on the other side got ahead with the new style of trade, and captured the markets which they held ever since. It was because of the three years' start that the British manufacturers had got that the home mills had been so heavily handicapped.

THE HANDICAP.

Chairman—You have had a good deal of time to make up the handicap since the troubles ended.

Mr. Cronin—We have made it up. I can prove to you that, in the production of the best cloths, we are well up to the other side.

Chairman—And the price?

Mr. Cronin—Generally speaking, just as good. You can get as nice a suit of Irish cloth, in design, colour, finish and price, as anything coming from England to-day.

Dr. Hinchcliff—It is not very easy to find it.

Mr. Cronin—That is not our fault. The difficulty is to get the wholesalers to stock it.

Mr. McCarthy, answering a point raised by the Chairman, said that the wholesalers had a certain amount of grievance that some of the Irish mills were selling direct to the tailors, but that had been arranged between the Association and the wholesalers within the last week or two.

Professor Whelehan — And the consumer will pay.

Mr. Mahony replied that the arrangement would not affect the price to the consumer. There was no change brought about, except that the mills agreed not to cut suit lengths.

Mr. Mahony, further on, stated that the Scottish manufacturers had the finest organisation in the world, and there was nothing to equal them for cheviots and fine sports' cloths. The Irish mills were not, however, so very far behind them in that particular grade of goods. They were quite able to sell in foreign markets in competition with the Scottish goods. Even with a 24⅔ per cent. tariff to contend with, their export trade to Canada was on the increase. The output of the Irish mills was partly for home and partly for foreign trade. For the latter they had to have the latest styles, and those were available for the home buyer.

Chairman—Is it your opinion that you can manufacture all the varieties of cloth required by customers in the Saorstat?

Mr. Mahony—Practically that is so. There will, of course, be some things we cannot do, but I also think that there are more things that we can do better than our competitors.

WHIPCORDS OUT OF FAVOUR.

In reply to further questions, Mr. Mahony stated that the demand for whipcords had come to an end, and that for worsteds was fast declining. Most of the Irish mills get their worsted yarns from Yorkshire. There had been no tendency towards amalgamation, or consolidation of any of the twenty mills included in their association. The setting up of the border had not, he thought, made any great difference in the trade of the Saorstat mills with Belfast and Northern Ireland.

Mr. Weir said that in Northern Ireland, as well as in Great Britain, there was in general a feeling in the direction of tariffs. They already had tariffs in the motor trade, but under the name of protection of industries. The setting up of a tariff against the woollen mills of Northern Ireland might have an effect on the mills in the Saorstat, but they had to take their chance of that. The mills in the North were in the same difficulties as those in the South.

Mr. Munro remarked that one big mill in the North had closed down, and another had restarted by a grant from the Northern Government.

Professor Whelehan—What is the reason for this application for an import duty on cloths?

Mr. Cronin—The reason is that our market was taken from us, largely because of the three years' handicap against us that I have explained. We cannot get back our markets until something is done to close the gates against the imports. The manufacturers who brought in the fashions that came into vogue during those three years are able to hold the home market against us.

Professor Whelehan—Is it your case that you cannot produce here as efficiently and economically as in Yorkshire?

Mr. Mahony—We maintain that we can produce as efficiently as any of our competitors, provided we had full protection.

Professor Whelehan—What do you hold to be uneconomic competition?

Mr. Mahony—Our competitors are selling here at prices which would be much higher if conditions of trade were normal.

SELLING AT A LOSS?

Professor Whelehan—Do you maintain that your outside competitors are selling at prices not profitable to themselves?

Mr. Mahony—We think so.

Professor Whelehan—We will have to get evidence from you that such is actually the case.

Professor Whelehan pointed out that it had been given in evidence by the applicants that they can produce as economically here as in Yorkshire. He asked how that could be in the case of worsteds, when the yarns had to be imported from Yorkshire, where often they were manufactured and woven into cloth in the same mill premises. To that Mr. Mahony replied that the cloth would be perhaps a little dearer here.

In reply to a series of questions by Professor Whelehan, different witnesses stated that the Association had never discussed the possibility of one mill, or a group of Irish mills, going in for specialisation. There was not enough work for specialisation; for, as they were, the mills to keep going half-time had to engage in a diversity of work. At present the mills were all fighting with one another to get the little trade that was going.

Professor Whelehan—Exactly. My point is that the Association should get together and try to see how by consolidation or otherwise they could fight the outsider, and not themselves. On the other side of the water they are all for specialisation, and I find that it has not even been considered here. Are we to be asked to believe that a small mill in this country making a variety of tissues is able to compete with the large Yorkshire mills specialising in a few particular lines?

Later on Mr. Telford informed the Commission that the Irish mills could not turn out cloth at 1s. 6d. a yard. Those cloths were mainly cotton, with a small proportion of waste wool. The Irish readymade manufacturers and a few country hawkers were the only purchasers of the 1s. 6d. a yard cloth.

Professor Whelehan—Is it a fact that the Irish mills can supply a cloth which enables a ready-made suit to be made up for sale at 22s., man's size?

Mr. Cronin—They made them for Government contracts, but not for the civilian trade.

Mr. Weir said that he would supply the Commission with information on that point.

LOW-PRICED CLOTHS.

Professor Whelehan next asked a number of questions on the subject of low-priced cloths, and Mr. Cronin said that the lowest price at which they could produce was 3s. a yard. The retailer should be able to supply a first-class ready-made suit of Irish cloth from about 25s.

Other information gained by the questions of the members of the Commission was that all the woollen trade printing is done in the Saorstat. The Irish manufacturers were the only people in the trade who used specially designed show cards for advertising purposes.

Professor Whelehan—You say you can never make the cheap cloth, and yet you ask for an import duty on it. Obviously that will increase the cost of living to those who can afford to purchase only the cheapest ready-made clothing.

Mr. Munro—In our opinion it would be better for those people if they never had the opportunity of buying such stuff.

Professor Whelehan—But when they actually have not got the money to buy anything better. How do you propose to get over that difficulty?

Mr. Weir—Better cloth at a little higher price would give better wear, and would be more economical in the end.

THE POOR MAN'S PURSE.

Professor Whelehan—It is not an economic question, but one of the amount of money the poor man has to spend on what he wears. We would be helped if the Association could give us definite information as to the lowest price at which the mills in the Saorstat can produce cloth economically. If the Association investigated the possibility of going in for specialisation they might be able to find a way towards the production of cheap cloth.

When the adjournment hour was reached, Mr. McCarthy, as Chairman of the Association, said that he and those with him had realised at the sitting that the Commission had made good use of the time during which they were waiting for the hearing of the application. The questions put by the Chairman and his colleagues showed that they had made themselves thoroughly acquainted with the workings of an involved and technical trade.

Professor Whelehan—The Commission does more work than it is generally credited with.

The following appeared to give evidence in support of the application:—Messrs. William Cronin, Dripsey Mills, Cork; A. Weir, Convoy Mills, Donegal; John G. Munro, Murrough Brothers, Cork; E. T. Mahony, Blarney Mills; A. O'Shaughnessy, T.D., Dripsey Mills, and John Telford, Athlone Mills.

The application was opposed by the Woollen Distributive Trades' Protective Association, the Irish Merchant Tailors' Association, the Irish Free State Wholesale Clothiers' Association, the Leinster Laundries' Association.

The members of the Commission present were Mr. J. J. McElligott, Chairman; Professor Whelehan, and Dr. J. H. Hinchcliff.

WORKMAN, CLARK ACTION.

A LONG ARGUMENT.

When the Workman, Clark case was resumed in the Belfast High Court yesterday, before Mr. Justice Brown, counsel argued regarding the admissibility of certain evidence, this argument lasting the entire morning.

Mr. Murphy, K.C., for the plaintiff, said that he had intended to examine Mr. Jamison about accounts up to December, 1923; but as September, 1923, was already the date in the pleadings, he did not now propose to call evidence after that date, except in so far as the present value of Debenture stock was concerned.

Mr. Sydney H. Jackson, chartered accountant, said that the books of Messrs. Workman, Clark and Company showed that the value of the shares in the Lanarkshire Steel Company and Messrs. John Watson and Company were written down as on December 31, 1920, to £1,388,022 13s. 9d. The original cost of the shares was £1,718,517 6s. 9d., and a further small holding of 140 Preference shares cost £1,202 0s. 6d. The Lanarkshire Company paid a half-year's Preference dividend amounting to £4,334 15s. In December, 1922, £5,000 was received from Watson's.

Mr. M'Gonigal—We all know you are a very expert accountant, but I think you would not say you are a valuer?—I certainly would not.

Witness, in further reply, said that he had never valued any business for the purpose of the issue of debenture, and had never anything to do with the accounts of a shipyard before.

A LAW UNTO THEMSELVES.

Mr. M'Gonigal, cross-examining the witness from a balance-sheet of Messrs. Workman, Clark and Co., as to the valuation of plant and tools and their depreciation, asked if he knew that the Ulster Bank, for instance, in 1916 had put down in their balance-sheet the value of their bank premises, head offices and branches at nil, and that now they only put down their new premises.

Witness—Banks are a law unto themselves.

Do you know anything about the Bank of England?—I have seen their name in the paper. (Laughter.)

Do you know they have their premises down as nil?—The same remark would apply.

When he valued the plant and tools he did not include land and valuable ships, witness said in further reply. He based his figures on information given him by the secretary of the company. Super tax was avoided by the sale for £3,346,000.

If you were sent down to value the yard for the purpose of a Debenture issue, would you value it as scrap or what it would realise on a forced sale, or how would you value it?—I would value it at its value in the market at the date of issue.

JUDGE INTERVENES.

Mr. Arthur Collins, a London chartered accountant, was next examined regarding the capitalisation of Messrs. Workman, Clark and Co., as he viewed it from balance sheets. He was being questioned as to the security given for the Debenture issue, when the Judge said that they were not trying whether Workman, Clark, or anyone else, were justified in issuing the Debenture stock. He did not think that security for the Debenture issues was an issue in the case.

The Court adjourned till to-day.

SURPRISE BUTTER INSPECTION.

A surprise butter inspection, at which 188 exhibits were staged, was held under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture at their butter-testing station in Dublin on October 25 last. Each exhibit was examined by three judges, acting independently. The marks awarded in each case for flavour, texture, colour, and packing and finish are given in the schedule of results issued by the Department. The following are the marks obtained by the 56 exhibitors who secured the highest awards at the inspection. The maximum marks obtainable were 300:—

Creameries—Gurteen (Co. Sligo); Kiltoghert (Co. Leitrim); Lee Strand (Co. Kerry)—291. Shanagolden (Co. Limerick)—290. Ardagh; Toher (Co. Limerick); Clonmel; Solohead (Co. Tipperary); Miltown and Ballyhar (Co. Kerry); Muckalee (Co. Kilkenny)—288. Athea; Greybridge; Kilteely; Lansdowne (Co. Limerick); Bailieborough (Co. Cavan); Donaghmore (Queen's Co.); Drinagh; Liscarroll; Shandrum (Co. Cork); Killasnett (Co. Leitrim); Outrath (Co. Tipperary); Shelburne (Co. Wexford)—287. Borrisoleigh; Templederry; Tipperary C.M. (Co. Tipperary); Cappamore; Dromkeen; Kilmallock I.B. and E.A.; Sarsfield (Co. Limerick); Mourneabbey (Co. Cork); Piltown (Co. Kilkenny); Stradbally and Comeragh Valley (Co. Waterford); Tarbert (Co. Kerry)—286. Abington; Garryspillane; Hospital (Co. Limerick); Ballinclemisig; Crotta; Firies; Kilmorna; Listowel; Rathmore Co-op. (Co. Kerry); Ballinfull (Co. Sligo); Castlehale; Fennor; Kilkenny; Kilmanagh (Co. Kilkenny); Castlelyons; Lee Valley; Mitchelstown (No. 238) (Co. Cork); Hollyford; Knockavardagh; Suirvale; Toomevara; Upperchurch (Co. Tipperary); Rathgormack (Co. Waterford)—285.

BIG TROUT CATCH.

Trout weighing 55,560 lbs. were taken by anglers at Cold Lake, Alberta, this season, in addition to which 1,350 lbs. of jackfish and 350 lbs. of pickerel were taken from the same waters. A total of 994 angling permits were sold during the year, and the largest trout caught in the lake weighed 40 pounds.

UNION JACK DENOUNCED.

would do anything at variance with an understanding of that sentiment. Those who were anxious to advance British interests in this country had always used moments of national weakness to make headway. There was now a closing up of the Nationalist ranks, and those people could no longer insult and outrage Irish sentiment.

Once Irish Nationalists stood together they could snap their fingers at Imperialism. Even if they were absolutely free they should be careful not to allow an Imperial country like England to flaunt her flag in Ireland and make the world believe that she had control, or was about to obtain control, here. Until complete freedom was gained, England's flag in this country was the flag of the enemy, and ought to be dealt with as such.

The young men who went out to fight in Flanders from 1914 to 1918 went because the Nationalist leaders of the time asked them to go as being the best way to secure the freedom of this country. It was to those men—to the rank and file—that they appealed to see to it that the commemoration would not be used by Britishers to plant their flag here.

There were two points he wished to make. One — that the misuse of this celebration could be stopped by the rank and file; and, two—it could be stopped by the citizens making it quite clear that they would not tolerate its continuance.

When Nationalist sentiment was outraged; when the flag of the foreigner was flaunted in their faces, young men of spirit would be driven to defend National principles, and make it clear that the flag was there against their will. The result of that would be, as in the past, that young men would be arrested and put into prison, and the attitude of this country would be misrepresented abroad. They wanted all that to stop, and it could be stopped now that the Nationalist forces were united. The time has now come when the citizens must make it clear that they did not want it, and that if this outrage on National sentiment continues, they had the power to stop it, and it would be stopped.

Bringing the meeting to a close, the Chairman said that a young man—George Gilmore—was lying in Mountjoy Jail, because, on the 11th November last year, he had torn a Union Jack from its standard and burned it in the street. If the national will had been properly awake that man would have been honoured as a true citizen. Thank God, they had hundreds of George Gilmores to follow him.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Tuesday.

WHEAT opened easy, ⅛c. to ⅛c. lower. Values steadied afterwards owing to the strength at Winnipeg, advices of unfavourable weather in the North-West, and Eastern investment buying; but the market reacted again, due to the liberal Canadian marketing, fine growing weather in Argentina, and a Kansas State report of favourable weather for farm work. The close was barely steady, ⅛c. to ⅛c. down. Spot steady.

Lady Diana Duff Cooper
(Lady Diana Manners)

"It's so easy just to put on a little Icilma Cream night and morning. Icilma is delightful because it really gives tone to the skin, besides keeping it smooth and holding the powder so well."

"Powder must be very light if it is to cling well, so there is a great advantage in using Icilma Powder, which is wonderfully fine and reliable."

The faithful daily use of Icilma

That is what Lady Diana Duff Cooper relies on to protect her own exquisite complexion. She prefers Icilma to all other creams, because, besides keeping the skin cleansed and supple, it also invigorates it as no other face cream can. Icilma, alone among creams, contains the beautifying Icilma Water from a spring in Algeria, famous for its tonic and restorative effect upon the delicate skin tissues.

And since a beautiful complexion deserves the very lightest and purest face powder procurable, Lady Diana selects Icilma Face Powder, pure as the driven snow, silk-sifted to ethereal lightness. It lends that soft velvety bloom which is the very essence of charm.

MOTOR SHOW IN DUBLIN.

EXHIBITION OF 1928 MODELS.

The exhibition of the 1928 models of the Hotchkiss, Delage, A. C., Hudson, and Essex cars, with a cinema demonstration of mass production, at the showrooms of Messrs. P. J. Tracy, Ltd., 8 Stephen's Green, Dublin, yesterday, attracted considerable interest.

The cinema picture showed the mass production methods adopted by many of the principal manufacturers, and the operations were followed with keen interest.

Among the cars on view is the Delage 14 h.p. Weyman Saloon. It makes a strong appeal to owner-drivers, as it is finished in fabric which does not scratch, and lasts much longer than paintwork. It also has the advantage of lightness, and the fabric of construction does away with shaking and rattling. There is accommodation for six persons, and the rear seats are adjustable to any position. The price in Dublin (including two spare wheels) is £635.

The new 18 h.p. 6-cylinder model is direct from the Paris Show. This also has a Weyman fabric body, and seats four persons. The price is £640. It is splendidly upholstered.

The 21.6 six-cylinder Sports model is capable of doing a hundred miles an hour. It has a fabric body, and it seats four persons. It is painted a lovely shade of blue, the mudguards being of the same colour. The price of this is £945.

The 21 h.p. six-cylinder metal saloon model has a speed of 80 miles per hour. It has a coach-built body, with the roof half in fabric. This is also decorated in blue, and the price is £865.

The A.C. model is shown as a chassis and Coupe. The chassis shows a separate rocker arm for each valve. Each rocker arm has a spring, and the valves twin springs. It is controlled by a cam shaft, and under each rocker arm there is a roller bearing which eliminates all clatter usually experienced in all O.H. engines. The latest type of Stornbeg carburetter is mounted, and the magneto and other parts are in very accessible position. The chassis frame is reversed, so that the springs fit into the grooves of the chassis, on which is mounted the new free-wheel device, which comes into operation when the driver accelerates. It is operated by a lever from the seat, and the brakes are adjustable also from the seat, the lamp dipper being worked by vacuum from the steering column. The power is 16-60 h.p., and the engine is of six cylinders.

The Coupe of the same type costs £625. It has pneumatic upholstery, and all metal parts, lamps, etc., are finished in stainless nickel; the wings are of aluminum, and the windows cannot be broken when being raised or lowered.

The Six Cylinder Essex Saloon, which sells at £265, is finished in celloise paint. It is of 18 b.h.p.; it is fitted with radiator shutters, wind screen wipers, driving mirror, motor meter, and four wheel brakes.

A Hotchkiss Saloon of 15.6 h.p. (four cylinders) is painted in an attractive blue, with black lines. There are four wheel brakes and luggage carrier, including a travelling trunk fitted at the rear, in which there are three air and waterproof suitcases.

THE CHURCH OF IRELAND.

The Mid-Clogher Clerical Association and the Enniskillen Golf Club have made suitable presentations to the Rev. Canon McTighe, Rector of Lisnaskea, on the occasion of his marriage.

The overseas exhibition in Cork attracted a large number of visitors from every quarter of the diocese, who showed deep interest in the exhibits and lectures explanatory of the Colonial and Continental Society's work. The society has benefitted considerably from the financial point of view.

MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL.

NINE PUPILS ELECTED.

The half-yearly meeting of the Governors of the Masonic Orphan Boys' School was held yesterday at the schoolhouse, Clonskeagh, when the report of the scrutineers of the ballot for the election of nine pupils was read.

The following candidates who obtained the highest number of votes were elected:—Robert E. J. Clarke (10,140 votes), John M. Rezin (9,391), Alan B. McMullan (9,121), Hugh V. Shaw (8,891), Robert H. Mills (8,704), John F. Monroe (8,399), Victor Ross (8,265), Leslie H. Boyd (8,208), and Robert Shaw (6,964).

Provision was made for the education of twelve of the remaining candidates on the list; also for three boys over age for admission to the school. There were thirty-one candidates.

TEXTILES AND IMPERIAL TOBACCOS LOWER.

There was a fair share of irregular price movements yesterday on 'Change among market specialities in the Manufacturing Industrial groups, but otherwise fluctuations were more or less trifling. One or two features turned up in the Artificial Silk market consequent on rumours associating the directors of J. and P. Coats Company with the trade. The "cut" in prices of certain motor tyres by the Michelin concern was not liked by holders of Dunlop Rubber Ord. Shares, and realisations were made and attempted. British Match Shares were also less firm, as the disappointing interim dividend of 2 p.c. is better understood. Government National and Compensation Loans eased, but Land Bonds advanced. British Funds were mostly idle, but were well held at recent top prices. Corporation, etc., Stocks met with limited attention. In the Banking group, Bank Stock was nominally higher round 272, and Nationals and Provincials were also harder. Guinness Ord. Shares remain active round last price, and closed without alteration. Dublin Distillers Pref. did not vary from 20s. Marconi Ord. were realised back to 27s., presumably on rumours regarding the progress of the question of capital reduction to be decided in the London courts yesterday. Rails were practically neglected. Dublin United Tram issues varied a little. Alliance Gas eased a shade, but Johnston Bakery Shares were again better, while in Drapery Shares, Todd Burns Pref. sharply improved. Imperial Tobaccos were freely realised towards the close, but British-Americans were unaltered. Coats opened unchanged at 63s. 6d., but were steadily realised back to 63s. before the close, and Cotton Ord. and Bradford Dyers relapsed further. Courtaulds, after opening dull, recovered. Branstons were a good market, and improved. British Celanese Pref. rose sharply, while Scottish Artificial Silk Preferred marked 4s. 4½d. Imperial Industries and British Match were dull, and the latter a drooping market. Vickers were idle, but firm in tone. Swedish Match Shares rose further, but Radio Common and Pref. tended to ease.

LONDON LESS ACTIVE.

INDUSTRIALS IRREGULAR.

The London Stock Markets, as a whole, yesterday were somewhat quieter, there being less business passing in the Industrial section, while Rubber shares were also more subdued. Tea shares continued in active request, and a long list of improvements was returned. A quiet and steady tone prevailed in the Gilt-edged section. Foreign Government stocks also showed little alteration. Home Rails experienced another quiet session, and among Colonial and Foreign Rails, "Canpacs" continued a firm spot, while Antofagasta also improved.

In the Industrial section, British Celanese moved irregularly, but Branstons rose sharply. Tobacco shares were better in places. Marconis went off rather abruptly, and Dunlops were dullish. Shipping descriptions stiffened in places, as did Iron and Steels, but Rubbers, after their activity of the previous day, were quieter and easier inclined. Teas, however, continued strong, but Oils showed little movement, while among Mines South Africans were quiet and steady. Tins were a shade better on the improvement in the price of the metal to £258 7s. 6d., or 10s. per ton higher.

SWEDISH MATCH ACTIVITY.

The $50,000,000 bond issue of the International Match Company in New York has been heavily over-subscribed. The following further particulars are now available on the subject of the agreement between the Ministry of Finance and the International Match Corporation. The bonds of the Morgan Loan still on the market and amounting to $70,000,000 are redeemable at the rate of 110 per cent., according to the original contract. This bonus explains the apparent difference of $5,000,000 between the figure of the new loan and the outstanding balance of the Morgan Loan. The new loan is to be paid off in 40 annual instalments, and not in five years, as was the case with the Morgan Loan. Following news of a transaction by the International Match Company, whereby the company, together with the Svenska Taendsticks Company, has acquired the right to provide France with raw material and machinery for the manufacture, in co-operation with the French Government, of matches, for the sale of matches in France and the modernisation of the French match industry, there was a rise of 22 kroner to 369 kroner in the quotation of Taendstickers on the Stockholm Stock Exchange. In connection with the French Treasury's pact concluded with the Swedish Match Company it is considered highly probable in Paris that the shares of the Kreuger and Toll Co., which are already quoted in London and Stockholm, will be admitted to the Paris Bourse. The Kreuger and Toll Company carries on an investment business in Sweden. Messrs. Higginson and Co. are the London agents.

BRITISH CELANESE.

It is understood that the board of British Celanese, Ltd., are at present engaged in considering a scheme for the revision of the company's balance sheet. Two main problems have had to be faced, the arrears of preference dividend and the depreciation account. As a result of the progress made under the new control, the directors hope to be in a position shortly to make a statement with regard to the dividend on the Preference shares. It is expected that their statement will confirm current market rumour that the arrears of Preference dividend will be paid in full up to date, either in cash or in scrip. With regard to depreciation, it is believed that the board will decide to bring into the balance sheet the American and other shares held by British Celanese, Ltd., and possessing a market value of approximately £1,000,000, and that the depreciation account will thus be wiped out by the end of the financial year.

TARFROID, LTD.

The Scottish Finance Co., Ltd., announces that underwriting arrangements were completed yesterday (Tuesday) in connection with the issue at par of 150,000 8 p.c. Cum. Part. Pref. shares of 10s. each, and 150,000 Ord. shares of 1s. each, of Tarfroid, Ltd.

LONDON CHANGES.

There was no improvement in the volume of business passing in the gilt-edged section. Consols 2½ and 4 p.c. repeated the overnight quotations and War Loans and Conversions also showed no change.

Apart from Chinese issues, which displayed a firmer appearance, Foreign Government stocks were quiet. Peruvian Corp. Ord. was marked lower at 15. Among Chinese, the 4½ p.c. (1898) at 60½ were a point to the good, while the 5 p.c. (1912) at 39½ were also a point higher.

RAILS STEADY.

Among Colonial and Foreign Rails, "Canpacs" rose 2 points to 201. Antofagasta Ord. stiffened to 87 x.d., or ½ better, but Cordoba Central First Pref. at 87½, and United Havana Ord. at 69 were ½ and a point lower, respectively.

RUBBER SHARES EASIER.

Dealings in the Rubber Share Market were not on so wide a scale as was the case on Monday, and, as a result, an easier tendency developed. A slightly firmer tone ruled in the commodity market. Spot and November sold 1s. 5¼d. to 1s. 5⅜d., January to March 1s. 6d. to 1s. 6⅛d., April to June 1s. 6⅛d. to 1s. 6⅜d. per lb. In the share market, Asahan and Bah Lias each finished 1s 3d. firmer, while Bukit Rajah and Sialang were also both 1s. 3d. to the good. Java Para at 51s. 3d. c.d. were marked 2s. 6d. firmer; Telogoredjo and United Sua Betong, on the other hand, were both 1s. 3d. easier, while Kuala Lumpur and Malacca marked similar declines. Linggi dropped 7½d. to 46s. 3d. c.d., and Rubber Trusts at 42s. 4½d. c.d. were 3d. lower.

TEA SHARES STRONG.

There was again a good volume of business passing in the Tea Share Market, while a firm tone continued, and at the close of the day another long list of appreciable improvements was registered. Amalgamated Estates spurted to 54¾, or ⅞ to the good, while Brahmapootra at 45 were ¼ firmer. Budla Beta and Ceylon Plant each finished 3/32 better, and Ceylon Prop. and British Indian were 1s. 6d. and 1s. harder, respectively. Consolidated Tea and Lands advanced to 40⅝, or ⅜ higher, while Chubwa and Eastern Produce both finished 3/32 better. Eastern Assam and Dooars were 2s. and 1s. 10½d. better, respectively, while Kanan Devan spurted to 53½, or 1¼ to the good.

OIL SHARES LOWER.

Oil shares commanded only a moderate amount of attention yesterday, and an easier tendency characterised most of the leading counters and speculative favourites. Firm exceptions were provided, however, in the Trinidad group, where price movements favoured holders. In the recognised leaders the volume of business was small all round, and, following narrow fluctuations, prices, where altered, were lower. Shells made a steady start, but absence of demand, coupled with a small amount of offering, led to a decline of 1/32 at 4 11/32, the Bearer shares being down to a like extent at 4 1/32. As a result of only a few small transactions, Royal Dutch closed with a loss of ⅛ at 29. Transactions in Anglo-Persians and Burmahs were on an extremely small scale, but there being no pronounced selling pressure, both shares closed without alteration. Mexican Eagles were on the dull side, the Ord., which at one time were no better than 16s., closed with a loss of 3d. at 16s. 3d., and the 8 p.c. Participating Prefs. also fell 3d. to 16s. Anglo-Americans weakened 1/32 to 3 27/32; Pan-American "B" declined $½ to $50½. Trinidad Leaseholds registered an advance of ⅛ at 3 11/16. Favourable dividend anticipations are entertained in regard to Apex Trinidad Oilfields, and these shares also met with support, a gain of 1/32 being recorded at 2⅛. Some good buying was reported of United British Oilfields of Trinidad, and the shares strengthened to 10s. Centrals also continued to receive attention and further rose 9d. to 6s. 6d. In other directions losses of 1/32 were marked in Anglo-Ecuadorians at 1 1/32, and in Anglo-Egyptian "B" at 1 17/32, while Lobitos were a dull spot, falling 1/32 to 3 1/32. British Burmahs eased to 7s. 10½d.

INDUSTRIALS UNDECIDED.

There was less doing in the Industrial market yesterday, and for the most part the tendency was undecided. Some active dealings, however, were witnessed in Dennis Brothers' Ord. shares, which closed strong in anticipation of the final distribution. This was announced after official hours as 4s. per share, less tax, making 5s. for the year. The directors also propose to make a further capital repayment of 7s. per share, thus reducing each share to 3s., and then to sub-divide them into 1s. shares. After dipping to 8 1/16, the shares finished a strong market at 8⅞, which left them with a net gain of 1/16. Other Motor shares showed little variation, though Morris Preference closed buyers at 19s. 3d., and Guys at 27s.

Artsilks proved uncertain. American Celanese Common enjoyed a further recovery, closing ⅞ up at 21¼, and Canadian Celanese had buyers around 13½. On the other hand, British Celanese Ord. lost ⅛ at 4 1/16, and the Pref. 9d. at 32s. 3d. Courtaulds were well maintained, and Glanzstoffs, after being down to 5⅜, recovered to 5⅝. Branstons Ord. stiffened to 15s. 9d. Scottish Artsilks remained active around 4s. 6d. for the Pref. and 4s. for the Defd. Most of the Textile leaders drooped, Bradford Dyers to 46s. 3d., Calico Printers to 27s. 6d., J. and P. Coats to 62s. 9d., and Fine Spinners to 49s. 6d.

Coal, Steel and Engineering descriptions were favoured in places, but Buell Combustions encountered sellers, and closed ¼ down at 4¼. Babcocks gained 1s. at 61s. 3d., and Powell Duffryns put on 9d. to 19s. 6d. Guest Keens stiffened to 37s. 3d., Stewarts Defd. to 29s. 4½d., and Vickers' Ord. to 12s. 1½d. Shipping issues maintained a firm front, buyers being again in evidence for Royal Mails, which changed hands up to 78, and finished a point to the good on balance at 77. Cunard Ord. were also in request, 6d. higher at 26s.

Breweries received moderate support, though Vancouvers reacted further, closing 1s. 6d. down at 66s. 9d. Bass Ord. put on ⅛ to 3⅜, and Hoares gained 1/16 at 3½. Tobaccos were easier for choice, Carreras giving way to 18¼, "Imps" to 99s., and Imperial of Canada Ord. to 39s. Copes hardened to 2⅜, with "Bats" and Godfrey Phillips unchanged. Telegraph and Telephone issues had a heavy appearance, and the Wireless group came on offer. Eastern Telegraphs fell 2¼ to 169¼. Eastern Extensions ¼ to 17¼, Marconi Ord. 1s. 3d. to 26s. 9d., Marconi Prefs. 1/16 to 1½, and Canadian Marconi to 6s. 9d. Bank shares were easier. Land shares showed little variation, and there was not a great deal doing among Nitrates, where Lautaros closed rather sellers at 4⅝.

Tractions were undecided. Brazilian Common strengthened to the extent of 3¼ at 204½ on Continental buying orders, but Barcelona Common gave way to 63. Shawinigans were firmer at 87½. Cements were allowed to sag, with the exception of Dunstables, which closed buyers at 32s. 9d. Stores, Catering and Food Supply shares received moderate attention. Harrods B.A. Ord. rallied to 16s., and buyers were in evidence for Swears and Wells Ord around 34s. 3d. Van Den Berghs held their advance. Gramophones were well maintained at 9, but Columbia Graphophones lost ⅛ at 7, dipping at one time to 6⅞. Vocalions closed unchanged at 29s. 3d. Bells United Asbestos were inquired for and rose ⅛ to 2⅛, changing hands up to 2 3/16. Swedish Match "B" gained ⅛ at 20, with Kreuger and Toll finally 42⅞, after 43. Dunlops continued pressed for sale on fears of a cut in tyre prices, and finished 6d. lower at 33s. 6d.

CONDITIONS MUCH QUIETER.

A smaller volume of business was passing in the House yesterday, and conditions generally were much quieter. So far as the Mining market was concerned, the Cape and Paris were small buyers of specialities, but Kaffirs were mainly easier in the absence of any general demand. Johnnies, however, were in demand on the strength of Diamond Shares. Other Finance descriptions were quiet and alterations were few, even Goldfields being unaltered, despite the announcement of a 3s. dividend, which compares with only 2s. 6d. a year ago. Modder East were supported by the Cape and hardened a small fraction, while Robinson Deep "B" recovered a little. Sub Nigels were on offer in the early hours on the proposed new issue of shares, and, although the Cape came in a buyer, the final price was lower on the day. East and West Rands were again dull, and Randfonteins eased on profit-taking after the rise of the previous day. Van Ryn Deep lost ground, and City Deeps again sagged on fears respecting the coming dividend announcement. The Rhodesian department was more active, the Bailey group being in demand, Cams and Sherwood Starrs closing higher. B.C. Africas came into good demand and rose sharply, there being an active inquiry for the shares in the street after hours. Southern base metals hardened. Further bear closing left Bwana M'Kubwa the turn higher. Diamond Shares were a feature of strength on a persistent demand from Paris. De Beers Defd. went ahead sharply, followed by the Pref., Jagersfontein and Consolidated Diamonds. Although the price of tin was 10s. higher at £258 7s. 6d. per ton, the share market, apart from the Anglo-Oriental group, was quietly steady. Tin Selections rose sharply in sympathy with the harder tone of London tin. Tavoys were also wanted on the better output return and improved. Easterns were quiet; Bangrins and Siamese hardening, and Pahangs easing, the latter on profit-taking. The further decline in the prices of spelter and lead brought in a few sellers of Souths and Norths, but, apart from these, Barriers were steady. Paris was again buying Rio Tintos in the early hours on the strength of the price of copper. Later, however, the shares reacted and closed lower on balance. After the continued rise just recently, a little profit-taking is not unexpected. Mount Morgans improved, and South Americans revived in expectation of the coming meeting. Mining Corporations were small. Buyers in Canadians and Kirkland Lakes were better. In other directions San Francisco Mines hardened on the output return, which shows a marked improvement on the previous month. Mexican Corporations strengthened, but Santa Gertrudis were marking time. Closing prices:—

FREE STATE EXCHEQUER RETURN.

ISSUE OF £250,000 BILLS.

The Free State Exchequer return shows that £250,000 in bills has been placed, bringing the total since April 1st up to £750,000. The amount of these bills now in issue is £3,250,000.

From April 1st to November 5th total receipts exceeded total issues by £50,712, and total expenditure exceeded total revenue by £411,288. In the same period, compared with 1926, revenue was £434,970 less and expenditure £150,256 more. The figures are:—

Dec.	£434,970	Inc.	£150,256

LAST WEEK'S FIGURES.

Revenue last week was £115,716 more than in the same week of 1926, and expenditure exceeded 1926 by £1,034,905. Details:—

REVENUE.	Week ending Nov. 5, 1927.	Week ending Nov. 6, 1926.

COATS'S DISCLAIMER.

Messrs. J. and P. Coats, Ltd., informed a Glasgow correspondent yesterday that there was no truth in rumours associating their name with Scottish Artificial Silks, Ltd. Regarding the official announcement issued on Monday that Mr. G. S. Coats, of Paisley, had joined the board of Scottish Artificial Silks, Ltd., and that Mr. Seton V. Coats had been appointed general manager of that company, Messrs. J. and P. Coats stated that neither had any connection with their firm. They are the sons of one of the directors.

MARCONI CASE OPENED.

£1,625,000 REDUCTION IN CAPITAL.

INVENTOR'S ILLNESS.

In the Chancery Division, London, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Eve, the Marconi Telegraph Co. petitioned for confirmation of a reduction of its capital from £4,000,000 to £2,374,964 by writing down the ordinary shares from £1 to 10s. The actual loss represented is £1,625,013. In addition there are 27 forfeited shares, which are cancelled.

When the case was before the Court before the long vacation it was stated on behalf of dissentient shareholders that counsel wanted to examine Senatore Marconi, Chairman of the company, and Sir Gilbert Garnsey, who had made a report on the company's financial position.

Mr. Wilfred Greene, K.C., said that he appeared, with Mr. Cecil Turner, for the Marconi Company. A Mr. Szarvasy, who was a shareholder, also appeared in support of the petition, and he was represented by Mr. Bischoff. Senatore Marconi was represented by Mr. R. H. Hodge.

In opposition to the petition, Sir Albion Richardson and Mr. Peake appeared for opposing shareholders who held 12,116 ordinary shares and 300 preference shares. Associated with them was Mr. C. L. Nordon, a solicitor, who held 650 ordinary shares and £500 worth of debenture stock. He was chairman of a committee of shareholders who for a considerable time past had adopted a highly critical attitude toward the board. The shareholders for whom Sir Albion Richardson appeared were the remnants of Mr. Nordon's army. Mr. Greene added that Mr. A. P. Pennell, who appeared in person to oppose the petition, held 500 ordinary shares and 100 preference shares. By way of light infantry, a Mr. Hamilton, who held two ordinary shares, appeared in person. The total opposition was 13,268 ordinary shares out of an issued capital of 3,250,011 ordinary shares, 400 preference shares out of 250,000 issued, and £300 debenture stock out of £1,957,042. Mr. Nordon appeared to base his opposition on the ground that his debenture stock certificates possessed certain conversion rights.

In support of the petition there was a most elaborate and exhaustive report prepared by Sir Gilbert Garnsey, which took six months to prepare and involved investigations in most countries of Europe and America. Affidavits had been filed by Sir Gilbert Garnsey, who was the father of the scheme in the sense that his joint report was the basis of it, and by Senatore Marconi, who proved formal matters and went into a certain amount of detail with regard to the scheme and the position of the company.

THE OPPOSITION.

In opposing, there had been filed affidavits by Mr. Nordon, who based his opposition primarily on the charge of fraud. "I say fraud," declared Mr. Greene, "because it is nothing more or less than a charge of fraud, and it is well to be plain spoken about it." Mr. Pennell had thought it right to make charges in which he (Mr. Greene) could see no relevance to the petition, particularly against Senatore Marconi, against whom he repeated a charge he had made at the meeting of shareholders, when it was at once most indignantly repudiated by Senatore Marconi, on gambling in the company's shares. That charge was now again denied in his affidavit. His lordship would find that the opponents to the scheme had thought that this was an opportunity to air their grievances and to make charges of all sorts and descriptions which had nothing to do with the petition at all.

SENATORE MARCONI'S ILLNESS.

The petition was rendered a little difficult owing to the fact that Senatore Marconi, during the last few days, had been taken seriously ill, and it was quite impossible for him to appear and give evidence. There had been orders made that he should attend with Sir Gilbert Garnsey for examination.

"I have a report of Dr. Price, the specialist, who has attended Senatore Marconi, said to-day I have some further information from Dr. Price, which, I think, your lordship will probably wish to see. It is not a thing which one would wish to talk about," added counsel.

"What do you propose, Mr. Greene?" asked the judge.

Mr. Greene said that, as far as he could see, the examination of Senatore Marconi would serve no useful purpose on the petition. The question whether the reduction was a proper one depended mainly on the evidence of Sir Gilbert Garnsey. If, however, it became necessary, he was quite prepared to tender for examination Mr. Kellaway, the present managing director of the company. Of course, he appreciated that would not satisfy gentlemen like Mr. Pennell, who wished to make charges against Senatore Marconi.

Sir Albion Richardson—Of course, I accept Dr. Price's certificate.

The Judge—Do you object to the petition proceeding?

MR. PENNELL'S ALLEGATIONS.

"I do object," said Mr. Pennell. "This has already been put off for a long time for Senatore Marconi. If within any reasonable time he can appear for cross-examination, I submit he ought to appear. My allegation is that Senatore Marconi has speculated in the shares of the company for years, and to a very large extent. In his own name he has disposed of 150,000 ordinary shares and 38,000 preference shares. At the meeting of the company, when he came up for re-election, I asked him if he would undertake not to speculate in the company's shares, and he replied, with well-affected indignation, that it was an impudent lie."

The Judge—I do not want to go into the merits of that matter. Let the petition proceed as far as the point when it becomes material whether or not Senatore Marconi should be cross-examined. If justice demands an adjournment you shall have it, but if, on the other hand, I come to the conclusion that he can throw no further light on the matters in the petition, I may say that, even assuming he was here, I would not allow his cross-examination.

Mr. Pennell—He has called me a liar, and I am here to justify anything I have said.

"SPRING-CLEANING."

Mr. Greene then opened the petition, and first dealt with the formation of the company in 1897, and its progress until 1927, when special resolutions were passed and confirmed for the reduction of the capital—after Sir Gilbert Garnsey, in collaboration with Cooper Brothers and Co., the firm's auditors, had made a sort of spring-cleaning.

The Judge—"Spring-cleaning!" That is associated with much discomfort. (Laughter.)

A little later the Judge asked—"What is the nature of the opposition? Is the scheme too mild or what?"

Mr. Greene said that he would read Mr. Nordon's affidavit in opposition. It showed, he said, to what lengths one would go in opposing a petition of that kind. Mr. Nordon said:—

I respectfully submit that the main underlying purpose of the scheme is to enable the directors by subsequent appreciation of the new artificially depleted share value to show profits, so as to justify the enormous sums which they are receiving for their remuneration as directors of the parent and subsidiary companies."

This, Mr. Greene added, was a charge of fraud of the gravest possible description, and in order to bolster it up Mr. Nordon had a number of comments to make. First he said that the writing down was retrospective; that was inevitable. It was true that some of the shares written down in Sir Gilbert Garnsey's report had subsequently appreciated in value, or had been shown to be higher, but, on the other hand, there were cases in which the report had been proved to be too optimistic, and as a set-off there were many items which more than counterbalanced any possible appreciation. Then Mr. Nordon said the writing down was unnecessary or excessive and also that it was unjust to the shareholders.

Then, continued Mr. Greene, Mr. Nordon said that the meeting of shareholders was rushed through. Apparently Mr. Nordon was annoyed because he was not given the position of prominence on the platform to which he thought he was entitled. It is suggested that at the end there was uproar. The resolution was put and declared carried. Mr. Nordon was present. He never demanded a poll. He seconded a vote of thanks to the chairman at the end, and he now comes forward and says that the resolution was never passed.

VALUE OF THE PATENTS.

Mr. Nordon remarked that he was not seeking to bring a charge of fraud, but one of grave irregularities and well-founded suspicion. In his affidavit he submitted that the scheme would constitute a grave injustice to the shareholders and Debenture holders and ought not to be confirmed. The patents constituted the substratum of the company, and it was proposed to write them down to nil. The company could make, and was making, very large profits indeed, but they were disappearing into quarters where they ought not to disappear. Every shareholder had thought he was buying a share in patents which were of inestimable value. Mr. Nordon foreshadowed the ultimate purchase of the Marconi Company by the Government after the precedent of the telephone service. If that happened, it would make a material difference to the Ordinary shareholders if their shares were cut down by a half.

THE PATENTS.

The patents, at a conservative estimate, must be worth at least a million, but there was nothing to justify the directors in writing them down to a nominal sum of £1, which the shareholders' money had been used to acquire them.

Mr. Pennell also read an affidavit of his own. He said that it appeared from the share register of the company that Senatore Marconi had speculated in the shares of the company continually, and on a very large scale, and that his brother, who was until recently a director, had also speculated in the shares. If the Court sanctioned the reduction, Mr. Pennell submitted that it should be on condition that the resolution for canonisation of Senatore Marconi, tacked on to the reduction, be abandoned.

Mr. Greene read an affidavit by Senatore Marconi denying allegations by Mr. Nordon and Mr. Pennell. In particular, he emphatically denied the charges against himself personally and his brother with regard to the alleged speculation in the shares of the company.

Senatore Marconi added that it was untrue that the board had, at any time, forced down the price of the company's shares.

Sir Gilbert Garnsey, in an affidavit, also replied to Mr. Nordon on the question of the company's royalties. Sir Gilbert Garnsey, who was cross-examined on his affidavit by Mr. Nordon, remarked that the latter had made the suggestion that he (Sir Gilbert) had been guilty of some ingenuous device to write down the Canadian Marconi shares to nothing. That, said witness, was untrue, and he was there to prove that it was untrue.

The hearing was adjourned.

"CALL DAY" AT BELFAST BAR.

The Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland yesterday called the following gentlemen to the Bar:—Mr. William McCrum Miller, Mr. George Boyle Hanna and Major J. J. L. Gibson.

Mr. Miller, who was proposed by Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., is a son of the Rev. David Miller, of Drumsill, Armagh.

Mr. Hanna is a son of Mr. George B. Hanna, M.P., Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Affairs.

is to be nourished and protected by delicious, creamy Scott's Emulsion

Doctors tell us that warmth and strength are the surest safeguards against wintry weather. That is why they recommend SCOTT'S Emulsion for ensuring these essential conditions.

Everybody knows that the pure cod liver oil in SCOTT'S Emulsion is Nature's own health tonic. It supplies warmth within to combat the chill of fog and frost. It builds up strength to resist coughs, colds and epidemic diseases.

Child lovers, and all who value health, should insist on regular courses of SCOTT'S Emulsion in their own family circles. Every penny spent on "SCOTT'S" is amply repaid in health and happiness.

PREVALENCE OF FLUKE.

SLAUGHTERED ANIMALS AFFECTED.

At the meeting of the Dublin County Committee of Agriculture, which was held yesterday, a letter was read from the Department stating that very large numbers of animals slaughtered at city abattoirs and town slaughterhouses were infected with fluke.

The disease, the letter added, was at present prevalent throughout the country, and there was every indication that during the coming winter and spring even cattle and sheep on uplands would be affected.

AN AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION.

CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN DUBLIN.

A letter from the Department of Lands and Agriculture was read, in which it was stated that, if an agricultural association, such as existed for technical instruction, was formed, the Department would offer no objection to county committees of agriculture paying the travelling expenses of two delegates to an annual congress.

Chairman (Mr. P. Belton)—That is substantially our request.

Colonel Hely Hutchinson—Are you sure the different committees throughout the country are still of the opinion that a conference would be a good thing to hold?

Chairman—They ought to be more anxious than they were formerly, because conditions are considerably worse than they were.

A proposal to hold a preliminary conference in Dublin in the third week of January, 1928, to make arrangements for the formation of an agricultural association and the holding of an agricultural congress was adopted, the Chairman and Mr. W. Hughes being appointed to represent the Dublin committee.

FLUKE.

In a letter from the Department it was pointed out "that as a result of observations made at the city abattoirs and town slaughterhouses the Department have ascertained that very large numbers, constituting an abnormally high percentage of animals slaughtered, were infected with the serious disease known as fluke or liver rot. The Department have, moreover, received further evidence that the disease is at present prevalent throughout the country, owing mainly to the inclement summer of this year. There is also every indication that the disease during the coming winter and spring will affect not only sheep and cattle on low-lying lands, but also those on uplands, which would normally be practically immune from infection."

The Department asked that immediate steps be taken to meet the very grave situation, and pointed out the importance of disseminating information as to the means of preventing or combating the disease.

Chairman—Is that a cure?

The Chairman said that until the Department took steps to carry out schemes for draining the land there would be fluke.

It was decided to send copies of the Department's leaflet on the subject to stock-owners.

On the proposition of the Chairman, seconded by Colonel Hely-Hutchinson, it was decided to appoint Professor Butler, of Howth, to the vacancy on the Committee caused by the resignation of Mr. D. O'Leary.

The Chairman said that Professor Butler was at present engaged in research work regarding fluke. No man would be more competent to become a member of their Committee.

THE BAN ON FOREIGN PORK.

In connection with the embargo on the importation of pork from the Continent into Great Britain, the Department, in a letter, pointed out that the embargo gave an excellent opportunity to extend the Irish pig-raising industry and to develop the fresh pork trade between Ireland and Great Britain. Smithfield Market (London) alone could take 25,000 pigs weekly during the season, and prior to the embargo on Continental meats over one million porkers were imported into Great Britain from the Continent each year. The Irish large white pig now generally bred in the greater part of the Free State was pre-eminently suitable for the best-class porker trade; but farmers did not yet appear to have fully realised the importance of marketing pigs for this trade at weights which would bring top prices. The type of pig in best demand at Smithfield was one of good firm finish, lengthy, free from coarseness and excessive fat, and scaling under 80lbs. dressed weight.

Colonel Hely-Hutchinson said that last December he sent four pigs to the market which fetched £22 11s. He sent four to the last market and got a cheque for £8 4s.

PRICES.

Mr. Walshe said that Ireland would send plenty of pork to London if the prices were any way favourable. "They do not seem to be anxious to pay for it," he added.

The Chairman said that all through the country he had been told the same story as that related by Colonel Hely-Hutchinson.

No action was taken.

The Department, in a letter, intimated that they did not approve of the Committee's proposal to establish a trap-nesting station for the Light Sussex breed of fowl. It was open to breeders to improve the laying strain, but they did not think it advisable to have the cost borne by the Committee.

OCTOBER'S RAIN.

WORST STORM SINCE 1903.

The Irish Rainfall Association's report for October, 1927, is as follows:—

A very dry month up to the 13th, proving very beneficial for the saving of a damaged harvest, but afterwards wet, stormy and unsettled. The total rainfall was slightly less than the average, and the weather unusually warm for October, although sunshine was somewhat deficient. On the 21st the east of the country experienced a very heavy fall of rain, and the following high totals for the day were reported:—2.40 ins. at Newtownbarry (County Wexford), 2.33 ins. at Greystones, 2.28 ins. at Bathmew, 2.20 ins. at Roundwood (County Wicklow), 2.05 ins. at Balbriggan.

On the 28th the country was swept by the worst storm since that of February, 1903. It was at its height from 5 to 10 p.m., the hour varying somewhat in different districts, and caused considerable damage; but, except for the terrible disaster to the Connaught fishermen, there was practically no loss of life in Ireland. Total rainfall for the month:—

November 7, 1927.

LOITERING ON THE PREMISES.

DUBLIN BOOKMAKER'S APPEAL REFUSED.

In the Dublin District Court yesterday, before Mr. E. J. Little, "Charlie" Scott, turf accountant, Eden quay, Dublin, appealed against the refusal of the police authorities to grant him a certificate as to suitability of premises and the applicant, on the ground that he allowed people to congregate and loiter in his licensed premises, contrary to the provisions of the Act.

Mr. J. A. Reardon (instructed by Mr. James Fagan) appeared for the appellant, and Mr. T. Finlay (instructed by Mr. D. O'Flaherty, solicitor) appeared for the police authorities.

Mr. Reardon said that under the Betting Act of 1926 people who were carrying on the now legal business of bookmakers were entitled to apply for a certificate of suitability of the applicant and the premises, and when that certificate was secured the Revenue authorities granted the licence for one year. Mr. Scott was a well-known bookmaker and a man of repute. His premises were 100 feet long by 30 feet wide; so that it could not be said that the premises were unsuitable.

Counsel understood that the ground on which the police refused to sign the certificate was that the business was carried on in such a way as to cause people to loiter, not outside, but inside the premises. When people backed horses they waited to see the results, which were passed up by Mr. Scott at the end of each race. He then paid the winners. Counsel submitted that it was not loitering for people to stay inside the premises waiting to ascertain the result of their bets.

"BEST IN BRITISH ISLES."

Mr. Scott said that he got a certificate from the police in October, 1926, as to suitability of the premises and himself. He "made books" at Eden quay for English and Scottish races only, and he posted up the results. Only people on business congregated in his premises, but sometimes ladies came in also. He did not do business with ladies or children—by ladies, he meant "real ladies." (Laughter.) His books were inspected weekly by the Revenue authorities. Everything was done in a perfectly respectable manner, and he thought that the premises were the best in the British Isles, "at least," he added, "so people say."

ANNOUNCING RESULTS.

Cross-examined by Mr. Finlay—When he received the result of each race by telephone he stood on a table and announced it. Sometimes there were two or three hundred people in the premises, but they had ample room. His method was the same as if people were backing at a racecourse, except that they had not television and could not see the horse." He had a turnover of about £800 a week. Half of the people who came to his office were professional "punters."

Mr. Finlay—And what are the other half?

The Witness—I suppose they are gentlemen. (Laughter.)

Mr. Finlay—Do you think that these large premises can be called an office?

The Witness—You cannot call it a racecourse.

Further cross-examined—He was told by Inspector Beggs in March last that it was against the Act to allow people to congregate in the premises. He tried to shift them. If people were not allowed to remain in the office the business was "no good."

NO INCONVENIENCE.

Robert Murphy, managing director of Messrs. Hopkins and Hopkins, said that no inconvenience was caused to people in the locality; there was no loitering outside the premises of Mr. Scott, and no objectionable conduct, and Mr. Scott was a man of good character.

Mr. Finlay said that these premises were used in such a manner as to encourage persons to congregate and loiter in large numbers in the premises. The object of the Act of 1926 was to prevent ready-money betting in offices. In this case they had the inducement to people to stand in the premises during the whole of the middle of the day.

Inspector Beggs said that when he went to the premises on the 1st March last there was between 200 and 300 people there, and Mr. Scott was on a table calling out the odds. The names of the horses were on a blackboard. On March 5th he drew Mr. Scott's attention to a section of the Betting Act, and Mr. Scott said that he would "carry on." The witness paid several visits since, and found things going on in the same way. The majority of those present seemed to be workers.

Cross-examined—He did not suggest that there was any disorder on the premises. He saw notices in the room asking people to observe the rules and not to loiter.

JUSTICE TO STATE A CASE.

Mr. Little said that on the grounds of personal fitness he should allow the appeal.

As far as the suitability of the premises was concerned, he thought that it was the intention of the Act that when a person made a bet he should depart from the premises. On the whole, he came to the conclusion that the word loiter, as intended by the legislature, meant remaining longer than was necessary. The evidence showed that the course of business caused persons to congregate in large numbers inside the premises. In that view he should confirm the refusal to certify in reference to the suitability of premises, and he would refuse the appeal.

Mr. Reardon said that it was a highly important decision, and he would ask for a case stated.

Mr. Little said that he would state a case.

SUCCESSFUL DANCE AT THE METROPOLE.

Over three hundred people were present at the Metropole Ballroom, Dublin, last night, when Mademoiselle Alanova première danseuse from the Russian Ballet, gave some exhibitions at the dance held in aid of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, North County Dublin Branch.

Her first dance, to the music of "Csardas" (Monti), was a simple and exquisite interpretation of the Russian noble style of dancing, as taught in the Imperial Ballet School of the Tsars, and distinct in type and style from the Russian peasant or Cossack dance.

The Rogers-May Dance Band played for Mademoiselle Alanova and during the evening.

Among those present were:—Lady Mary Corbally and party; the Hon. Mrs. Porter; Captain Malcolmson and party; Mr. R. Bell and party; Mrs. E. G. Woods and party; Major and Mrs. Cusack and party; Mrs. Hewson and party; Miss Tedcastle and party; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Lambert and party; Mrs. Craigie and party; Mr. F. W. Ryan and party; Miss M. Cox and party; Mrs. Stamford Roche and party; Dr. McKenzie and party; Mr. Moriarty and party; Mrs. Betson and party; Major Collinson and party; Mr. A. Hamilton and party; Mrs. Ormsby Scott and party; Major Gough; and Mrs. Reginald Kennan.

STATE OF CROPS IN FREE STATE.

CASES OF FLUKE IN CATTLE AND SHEEP.

INCREASED INTEREST IN HORSE TRADE.

The report of the Free State Department of Agriculture on agricultural conditions in the Free State on November 1st last says that a continuous spell of comparatively dry and sunny weather prevailed during the first three weeks of October, accompanied by light ground frosts on a few nights, with occasional dull and foggy intervals. Following upon the rainy and unsettled conditions of the previous month, this fine period was much needed, and full advantage of it was taken by farmers to bring into the haggard late saved hay and corn, and to proceed with threshing operations.

Considerable progress was also made with the digging of the potato crop, the lifting of mangels and sugar beet, the cutting home of turf and the top-dressing of meadow land. The ploughing of stubble land was commenced, and some plots of winter wheat and catch crops were sown. Progress in these directions was, however, delayed by the backward state of harvest operations in several districts. Field work was interrupted by heavy rains around October 21st, from which date, until the end of the month, the weather again became unsettled and the land wet and sodden.

A severe storm on October 28th caused damage to stacks in exposed haggards and in unsheltered fields.

STATE OF PASTURES.

AVERAGE SUPPLY OF WINTER KEEP.

Pastures and aftermaths continued to carry a good covering of grass for the time of year, though becoming bare in places. Except where it has been overstocked, the land at the end of the month held an average supply of winter keep. Live-stock generally were healthy and benefited by the fine dry spell, but the change to unfavourable weather conditions towards the end of the month had a somewhat adverse effect. Cases of "hoose" were reported in several counties, and fluke—in both cattle and sheep—also came under notice in a few areas. As a precautionary measure farmers in County Clare were already dosing weanling calves with extract of male fern. Milk yields were well up to average, but showed the usual seasonal reduction, which was more noticeable after the weather broke towards the end of the month. In Counties Cavan and Leitrim difficulty has been experienced in getting cows in calf.

HAY AND GRAIN CROPS.

In the later districts most of the hay which remained in the fields was secured during the month. Supplies in all counties are considered to be ample to meet normal requirements, and in several districts are sufficient to leave a surplus should the winter prove to be a mild one. While yields were lighter, the quality of the earlier saved hay is satisfactory, but a proportion of that made later in the season is of an indifferent character. Limited quantities have been marketed, and prices have been well maintained. For first crop hay prices ranged from 50s. to 65s. per ton, and for good quality permanent meadow hay 35s. to 50s. per ton. Plentiful supplies of straw are available, but the small proportion on sale was not sufficient to afford an index of market values.

In those counties where it is customary to thresh in the early autumn this work was completed by the end of the month. Yields of grain crops have generally been up to average, and, in the case of oats, have been most satisfactory. The grain of much of the later saved crops was somewhat soft, and contained a high percentage of moisture. Straw grew freely, and, on the richer land, bore, perhaps, a higher proportion than usual to the grain. A ready sale was met for all classes of corn in sound condition, and prices for oats and barley showed a slight, but steady, advance during the month.

Threshings of winter wheat indicated that yields generally were up to average, but in several counties this crop was variable. The quality of the grain was fair, but many of the lots marketed were somewhat soft. Spring wheat ripened late, and was not so satisfactory. In County Dublin the yield and quality were below average, while in County Louth the yield was up to average, but the quality was not so good. In the latter county and in County Carlow top price was returned by "Yeoman." Values ranged from 27s. to 30s. per barrel at the beginning of October to 26s. and 27s. later in the month. In virtually all counties the yield from the oat crop was above average, and most of the produce was of good quality. Prices were fairly uniform; and sales were readily effected at an average of 12s. 6d. to 13s. 6d. per barrel for white, and 11s. to 12s. for black. In Offaly three-fourths of the oats has been disposed of at rates around 12s. per barrel for white and 10s. for black. The yield of barley was up to a fair average, but harvesting conditions were not conducive to securing bright samples, and a proportion of the crop became discoloured. Grain of malting standard sold freely at 19s. to 19s. 6d. per barrel, the latter figure being exceeded in some counties for special lots. The bulk of the crop has already been disposed of in Counties Carlow, Cork, Offaly, Kilkenny, Tipperary and Wexford. In addition to the customary sale to maltsters, some barley was bought for export.

FLAX AND POTATOES.

The spell of fine weather during the first weeks of the month enabled the flax crop to be safely secured. Except in County Donegal, very little scutching was done until near the end of the month, when the mills in most of the flax-growing areas had started operations. The yield generally is regarded as satisfactory, but the quality is not equal to that of last year, and, in many cases, is below top grade. The price realised for medium quality fibre was around 15s. per stone, but for fibre of good quality 16s. 6d. per stone was paid at the close of the month in Counties Donegal and Monaghan.

In most counties from half to two-thirds of the potato crop has already been lifted, while in others considerable progress has been made. Yields, with few exceptions, are above average. In many districts crops of 10 to 12 tons per statute acre were common, while in Counties Cork, Kerry and Louth 16 to 18 tons and more have been dug. Specially favourable mention is made of the yield of "Kerr's Pink." The quality of the great bulk of the crop is satisfactory, though disease ("blackemug") with some rotting, is reported from many counties and appears to be general in a proportion of the crop, especially on cold damp ground and where spraying was neglected or inadequate. Potatoes of the old "Champion" variety, and, to a lesser extent, "Irish Queen" and "Up-to-Date," were the varieties most usually affected with disease. The usual range of values for potatoes in markets was from 3s. 4d. to 4s. per cwt. Prices paid to farmers in Counties Wexford, Louth and Donegal for potatoes for shipment were from 55s. to 60s. per ton.

ROOT CROPS.

Root crops made fair growth during the month, but not sufficient to compensate for their previous backward condition. Yields of mangels were satisfactory in many places, but in others were poor, and the crop generally is not expected to come quite up to the usual average. Lifting had commenced on a number of farms. The earlier sown turnips promise a good yield, but re-sown plots have not fully developed, and this crop frequently shows an an undue proportion of tops. Reports from the principal beet-growing counties indicate a fair all-round crop, but in some instances yields are stated to be from one to two tons per acre under last season. Towards the end of the month portions of the more advanced crops were delivered to the factory, and some of the returns showed a sugar content of 17 to 18 per cent. "Bolting" was noticeable in certain of the mangel and beet areas.

SLOWER DEMAND FOR CATTLE.

FALL IN PRICE OF PIGS.

The numbers of stock on offer at fairs were of the usual seasonal average, though there has been a tendency on the part of owners to hold over cattle in the hope of prices improving. Demand for all classes of cattle was slower, and stores showed a reduction in value of from £1 to £2 each since the previous month. In the grazing districts the return obtained not infrequently left only a bare margin over the spring buying figure. For the rougher type of cattle trade was distinctly dull. First class springing cows and heifers, as well as good milkers, however, maintained their values somewhat better. Young calves and weanlings, though sold at lower rates, remain dear in comparison with older animals.

First class fat cattle were sold during the month at live-weight prices, ranging from 54s. to 58s. per cwt. For similar quality animals of other descriptions representative values were as follow:—Strong stores, two to three-year-olds, £15 to £17 10s. each; one to two-year-olds, £10 to £13; yearlings, £8 to £10; down calved cows, £18 to £22; springers, £19 to £24; springing heifers, £17 to £20, and dropped calves, 50s. to 70s. each.

SHEEP AND PIGS.

Trade generally for sheep was of limited dimensions, with demand dull and lower prices ruling. Medium-weighted animals were mainly in request. Values of fat sheep were usually from 45s. to 60s., and for lambs 35s. to 45s. each, around 28s. being paid for mountain classes. In County Donegal black-faced ewes for breeding sold readily at from 37s. 6d. to 42s. 6d. each, and these animals also met a fair demand in Counties Wicklow, Louth, Cork and Kerry. An increase is reported in the number of breeding ewes being kept in County Meath this season.

Plentiful supplies of pigs continue to be marketed, but prices fell to a low level during the month, with a slight, but temporary, rise about the second week. The drop in values from September was about 4s. per cwt. dead weight, and on this basis prices for fat pigs were from 62s. to 66s. per cwt., or 4os. to 42s. per cwt. on live weight reckoning. A substantial proportion of pigs was slaughtered and shipped as dressed pork, many of the younger pigs being finished for this market, for which prices ranging from 88s. at the beginning of the month to 80s. per cwt. dead weight at the close were paid. A tendency has been observed in some areas to reduce breeding stocks, but more generally these are maintained in expectation of better prospects. Bonhams, however, sold more slowly at prices which usually ranged from 25s. to 30s. each, or about 5s. less than last month. The buying of bonhams was freer in districts where surplus and cheap potatoes are available.

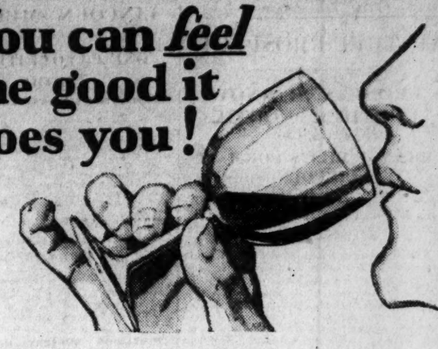

HORSES.

Increased interest was displayed in the horse trade in a number of counties, particularly for animals of the hunter type. "Made" horses of this description sold at prices ranging from £80 to £150 in Counties Roscommon, Limerick, Cork, Wexford and Westmeath, while younger and untrained animals likely to make hunters were sold at from £25 to £80 in Counties Cork, Limerick and Wicklow. £15 £25 each represented the value of farm horses, and troopers realised £25 to £35 each in Counties Tipperary, Longford and Clare.

MILK SUPPLIES.

Supplies of milk to creameries, though showing the usual seasonal reduction, were up to a full average for the month. Prices paid (separated milk being returned) were:—in Munster 6d. to 7½d. per gallon, Leinster 5½d. to 7½d., Connacht 5d. to 7d., and Ulster (Saorstat counties) 6d. to 6½d. per gallon. Milk for which 10d. per gallon was paid was collected from farmers in South Meath for retail in Dublin. Retail prices in Counties Wexford, Meath and Westmeath were 1s. 8d. per gallon.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

AINTREE PROSPECTS

FROST AND SNOW FURTHER NORTH.

ORANGE BILL'S FORM AT LINCOLN.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday Night.

The newspapers report 18 degrees of frost, accompanied by snow, in latitudes a little north of this city, so we must pray that these conditions will not move south for a few days until the Autumn Meeting, which begins to-morrow at Aintree, is over. We have prospects of good racing here to-morrow, even if some of the fields will be small. The field for the Becher Steeplechase will be much larger than that of last year, when there were only four runners, and Blancona beat Bright's Boy.

Tom Leader's Aisle has already come on from Newmarket, and as he has jumped Liverpool before he may improve on his recent Sandown running and do well. Mr. Barbour runs Easter Hero, a winner of the Molyneux Steeplechase last year, and likely to be a fancied runner.

Of Owen Anthony's pair, Thrown In and Meleaston, I prefer the chance of the latter. Top Light has shown form this season, and was only beaten half a length by Silvo at Cardiff last month. He looks like starting favourite. On their running in the Champion Steeplechase last March he should not beat Beggar's End, but he may have a point advantage over Lord Queenborough's horse by reason of his superior condition.

FAIR RICHARD, who came from Ireland last spring, has not before run over Liverpool, but he created a very good impression by the manner in which he beat Socrates at Ludlow not long ago, and he may win, with Easter Hero and Top Light as the principal dangers.

The Lancashire Handicap will muster very few runners. Bythorne, who is engaged, is also in the Liverpool St. Leger, to be run later in the afternoon, but on her recent form she has not much chance in either. The best may be the Roi Herod colt, BORDER MINSTREL, who has most to fear from that useful staying filly Seagain.

SOME MIXED FORM.

The form of the horses in the Liverpool St. Leger is a little mixed. Tattoo would appear to have a good chance, had he not run so badly in the Jockey Club Cup, and I choose BARALONG, whose stable companion, Gioconda, also runs, to win.

The Knowsley Nursery is always one of the most attractive of the two-year-old handicaps of the season. The top weight is Thackeray, who has recently been sold to Mr. S. B. Joel, but his last races in public have suggested that he has lost some of his earlier form. Caraquette, who will be suited by this fast course, ran a creditable second the other day to La Chance. Mr. Beasley's filly, Maeve, will be well fancied and has a good chance. Jack Mytton is another with a chance. Silvern Isle and Reminder, too, are far from being out of it, but I shall take a chance with Lord Derby's colt, THIRLMERE, who ran so well at Newmarket recently and was unlucky to miss a place. He seems well handicapped here.

The Irish horse, PROSPICE, will in the Aintree Selling Plate be taking on some hot platers, but he may beat them, though Yellow Underwing and King's Parade must be dangers to him.

SECOND DAY AT LINCOLN.

No one was very sorry to come away from Lincoln this afternoon, for the wind was piercing and there was no animation about the proceedings. There was little that was of interest in the racing. The hurdler, Orange Bill, won the chief event of the afternoon, the Lindum Autumn Handicap, but the field was a moderate one, and in beating Lord Lascelles's Adel by three-parts of a length he did not accomplish very much.

A Manton weed-out, Laughter Tor, won the first race after starting at 100 to 7, and another winner of the afternoon returned at the same price was Mr. Sidney Beer's French importation, Gars de Falaise, who won the Welbeck Handicap by half a length and two lengths from Leander and Golden Willow. Mr. Beer bought the three-year-old at Deauville last August, and he had shown nothing in the three races in which he ran in England. His owner usually supports his fancied horses, but there was no sign of any money for to-day's winner.

The Chaplin Nursery was won by Spanish Wish, who had been running in selling plates earlier in the season. Her trainer, Foster, however, fancied Mr. Brendon's daughter of Tangiers, who went to the front below the distance and won in a canter by five lengths from Sir Victor Sassoon's Star of Italy.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

Rich Vein for France.

Retired to the Stud.

Irish Horse for England.

Confidence.

Len Harvey, who watched the fight between Tommy Milligan and Nitram at Queen's Hall on Monday, thinks that he could have beaten either of them. Yesterday he issued a challenge to meet one or the other at 11 st. 6 lb. for £100 a-side.

CURRAGH TRAINING NOTES.

THE CURRAGH, Tuesday.

There was a particularly severe frost over-night, and, though the weather was fine and bright, this morning was intensely cold. Horses were kept on the move, and there were a few interesting half-speed gallops.

COOMBS' Carlovia and Hazel Grove went six furlongs at this pace, while Antaeus, with Gourmand, cantered five furlongs.

DOYLE'S Minnetonka and Battle Bridge covered six furlongs at a useful rate.

FETHERSTONHAUGH'S Swan Maiden, Ebony, and Pretty Ena went five furlongs.

HARTIGAN'S Loch Hume, Sabinea, Connemara, and the two-year-olds cantered five furlongs.

ROGERS'S Parkgate, Queenstown, She Might, Edward, Long Reign, Crotanstown, and others of the team had good bouts of healthy exercise.

GOLF.

GREYSTONES.—Men's medal, strokes, is postponed from 12th to Saturday, 19th, on account of the Waratah match at Lansdowne road.

ST. ANNE'S.—Monthly medal, 13th November.

SUTTON.—November monthly cup. T. J. Geary (11), 70; W. J. Gill (3), 73; C. Courtney (15), 73. Saturday, 19th inst., whist drive in clubhouse at 7.30 p.m. Ladies' Branch—To-day, monthly medal, bogey; usual draws.

COURSING.

THE BELSIZE CUP.

EXCELLENT TRIALS AT KILLUCAN.

Ideal coursing conditions favoured the opening stage of the Belsize Cup meeting at Higginstown yesterday. Bright, cold weather succeeded heavy rain overnight, and a big company thoroughly enjoyed the excellent sport, which consisted of forty-two spins, including two undecideds. The Killucan Stake was not included in the card, but will strengthen to-day's programme.

It was a capital entry all round, and some good-class greyhounds went to slips for the Cup and Trial Stakes, a former holder of the Cup, Mr. J. Shaw, being represented by Scarlas Barra, and another from his kennel in Son of the Sod doing duty for the holder, Mr. J. J. Kilduff; while Mr. Hugh McAlinden brought along Advocate. Mutual Friend, the winner of ten races on the track, and now in his fourth season, and Killybegs Boy, which was summarily eliminated from the Tipperary Cup last week, were also on the spot, as was Little Biddy Flynn, another noted performer behind the tin hare, and Raja Prince.

Mutual Friend raised one flag, and then went down after an undecided with Son of the Sod, the third effort being too much for the old fellow. Son of the Sod is a smart puppy with good pace, and it would have been a stroke of ill-luck for his owner had he not got the cap in his first course with the track dog, after being barely led. Perhaps the most striking performances were those registered by Killybegs Boy, whose pace and artistry, so soon after his failure at Clonmel, suggested that he could not have been quite wound up for the Tipperary Cup. In fact, at the close, he was, perhaps, the one most spoken of as the likely winner. He may not have encountered much opposition from Brown Jedder or Knockmart, but he certainly was as fast and as true a runner as anything slipped.

Five Speed, whose pace was regarded as above the average, did not exhibit phenomenal speed in either of his courses, and he may not have an easy course with Gayfield to-day—indeed, the latter ran surprisingly well, particularly in his second spin against Gip's Next, which had completely outfooted the fancied Raja Prince. Hidden Doctor, so unluckily beaten by Lydiate last season in the Waterloo Cup, has apparently struck his best form. Below him What's Coming is also moving in convincing style, and while Little Biddy Flynn did nothing wrong, the form of the last eight points to the Kildare pair, Killybegs Boy and Hidden Doctor, reaching the last round

Only one round of the Trial Stakes was run off, and of the eight survivors Killua and Figaro, two speedy, well-proportioned puppies, seemed to be moving the fastest.

LAWN TENNIS.

BALL MANUFACTURERS AND THE L.T.A.

COLONEL J. E. REID SPEAKS OUT.

The Lawn Tennis Association is not apparently in full agreement with the Manufacturers' Federation in the matter of the cheap lawn tennis ball. Last week the Federation wrote a letter to the Lawn Tennis Association, in which no doubt was left as to their rejection of the scheme suggested by the L.T.A., in which it was proposed that the price of balls should be 14/6 a dozen.

The Lawn Tennis Association's communication is in the form of observations by Colonel J. E. Reid, the Chairman of the Ball Committee, and the Secretary of the L.T.A. states that these observations represent Colonel Reid's individual views. The manufacturers' statement, that there was insufficient time in which to remodel schemes of manufacture to meet the requirements of the forthcoming season, is countered by Colonel Reid by the statement that they need not remodel their schemes in order to provide a certain number of additional balls, unless it is to be understood that they have been working up to full capacity of their plant, "in which case," says Colonel Reid, "they are lucky people."

"The fact that there was no specification in the tender does not prevent manufacturers from tendering for different qualities of balls at different prices. When a matter is left open, as this was, alternative tenders are quite usual."

On the matter of the alleged intention of the L.T.A. to reduce the price of balls to 14/6, and the manufacturers' contention that that is impossible with a first-class ball, Colonel Reid observes:—"The L.T.A. is not in a position to "intend" to reduce the price of balls to 14/6, or any other price; but it certainly wishes to see present prices reduced for the general benefit of the paying public, as distinct from its comparatively small number of, shall we say? 'tournament' players."

"The statement that a first-class ball, of first-class quality, cannot be produced at a maximum retail price of 14/6 is interesting; but would it still be true if makers did not make ridiculously low prices—for the sake of advertisement is the natural assumption—for the supply of balls to Open Tournaments, and also loan to Tournament Committees a quantity of equipment?" "Not being in the secrets of the trade, I cannot speak authoritatively, but I doubt if the supply of tournament balls at, say, 10/- a dozen, or from 2/- to 3/- a dozen on hire and return, is a directly money-making proposition."

"Also makers must recoup themselves somehow for the cost and maintenance of all the equipment they lend, and it would be interesting if the Federation could give an assurance that these two factors are not largely responsible for the need to keep up ball prices to the general public. In fact, that the many do not suffer on this account for the benefit of the few."

The Manufacturers' Federation stated it as an opinion that there is a desire on the part of the L.T.A. to fix the prices at which the ball may be sold, and a profit which may be made. Colonel Reid declares that it is news to him, and says that even if the Association had the desire to fix the profits, as stated, it is questionable if it has the power so to do.

The Federation's threat to strenuously oppose by every legal means possible any attempt in restraint of trade, is regarded by Colonel Reid as being based on a deduction from erroneous premises, and, this being so, the minatory tone of the Federation is "unnecessary and unfortunate."

Colonel Reid attacks the Federation when he says "the whole tone of the Federation's letter is distinctly hostile, and does not contain a hint of a wish to help in any way."

The manufacturers declare that competition between them ensures the tennis-playing public getting a ball at an open competitive price, but Colonel Reid says that until he is convinced that too much consideration is not given to tournament players at the expense of the general public, he is not inclined to accept this as the truth.

Colonel Reid professes not to understand the manufacturers' statement that the attempt by the Association to control prices may compel them to produce second-class goods in order to comply with the proposed scheme; but he accepts the Federation's request that the L.T.A. or any special committee receive a deputation to discuss the problems.

Colonel Reid finished on a note of regret when he says: "The whole tone of the Federation's letter is such that one must feel that in any such conference the manufacturers, or their representatives, will appear resolutely opposed to the L.T.A. in every way, and unwilling to co-operate in an attempt to get a cheaper ball for the general public."

ATHLETICS.

ARMY METROPOLITAN A.C.

Commandant P. Ennis presided at a meeting of the Army Metro. Athletic Club yesterday, when most of the Dublin Army Clubs were represented. The Secretary reported 109 applications for registration.

The practices already held were well attended, and it was decided to hold a novices' scratch club race with a view to selecting a team for the County Dublin Novices' Cross-country Championships. The race will be held over a four miles course on November 20th.

It was unanimously decided that Lieutenant G. N. Coughlan, the captain, represent the club on the County Dublin Board N.A.C.A.

HUNTING.

AN HOUR AND THIRTY MINUTES AND A KILL IN THE OPEN.

The first week of the season was brought to a finish on Saturday last at Patrickstown Cross Roads. Drumber was blank, but a fox from a reed bed close by was killed. Nothing further developed until Boltown was reached, when several foxes were on foot, one of which took us a ring on the Robinstown side, and then at a great pace over Crossakiel Hill, thence right-handed nearly to Boltown, where hounds were stopped.

The present week opened auspiciously with a very fine run of one hour and thirty minutes and a kill in the open. The meet was at Ardmulchan, which was blank, and then a fox found in Mr. Deane's furze got to ground in a badger earth. Hayes failed, but Harristown held a brace. One of these gave a ring and was not accounted for in the crossing ground, but a second visit to the covert fructified into the gallop above referred to. The line run on was a very stiff one, but of a zig zag nature with the following points as salients, namely, Jollinstown, Jarganstown, Ardmulchan, Hayes (on right), Senaschalstown, thence to a kill between Brownstown and Staffordstown. Very few of a big field saw the latter part; in fact Fitzsimons and Dodo Dunne were the only two to finish. Fitzsimons considers it about the best hunt he can recollect in that district.

The vagaries of scent were very manifest yesterday when hounds met at Priestown Cross Roads, where there was a large field, in which the sterner sex were in the minority. The weather was bright, but there was a cold wind from the north, and the mountains were covered with snow. The day was rather of a cub hunting nature, as none of the coverts drawn had been visited before this season. Ballymaccarney held a brace, one of which was eventually forced out and hunted with a very catchy scent, a right-handed semi-circle over the Ward river, and with Hollywood Rath well on the left towards the hills of Kilbride, but about half way found a hole in a ditch. Captain Butler's laurels were, as usual, well "foxed," and the way he has succeeded in "stopping" his lands is very creditable, as it was considered almost impossible at one time. After some hunting about Priestown House and across the road towards Ballintree Gate a move was made to Cheeverstown, which was full of foxes. After a long delay a cub was hunted back to Priestown and killed. It was late when Kilrue was drawn, and it held a leash. Scent in covert was very poor and it took a long time to effect a break, but a nice right-handed ring nearly up to Kilrue Road, another on to the paddocks and back to the starting point was followed by a smaller ring on the same side. It was considered too late to draw Lagore.

Amongst new arrivals out were Count Grebla, who has taken Vesington House for the season, and Mr. Stirling, the American Ambassador.

LOUTH HOUNDS.

This pack had another fine day's sport on Saturday last, when they met at Mooretown. Mooretown held at least three brace of foxes. Hounds killed one in convert, and getting away with another hunted up to Rathbran; then right-handed to Corballis, back into the covert, where hounds had a brace in front of them. After rattling them round the covert for fifteen minutes one broke on the far side, and the pack settled down to run hard upwind over Rathbran Hill, down the valley, leaving the bog on their left. Still flying, they went on by Mount Fortescue, where, bearing right-handed they ran over Downey's Mountain into Tankardstown down nearly to the house. Here our fox turned short back, recrossed the Slane road, and ran by Mount Fortescue nearly to Grangegeeth, where scent failed after a great gallop of one hour fifty minutes from the time they left Mooretown secondly. Best point made was five miles, hounds covering about ten miles as they ran.

HILLSIDE HARRIERS' HUNTER TRIALS.

So good has been the entry in the four events at the Hunters' Trial that the number of jumps has been reduced, so as to speed things up to-day at Castlebagott. There will be two sets of judges, one for the course and the other for the paddock. The first event will start sharp at 12.30 p.m. Castlebagott is alongside Baldonnell Aerodrome, a mile to the right off the Naas road.

HOCKEY.

DANISH TOURISTS BEATEN.

A team of Danish girl players opened a hockey tour in England yesterday against a Surrey women's team, and suffered defeat by 9 goals to 1. The Danes were vigorous and enterprising, but they were lacking in team work and the technique of the game, and for a great part of the match their goal-keeper was subjected to a bombardment, against which she defended well.

The visitors introduced plenty of colour into the game, with bright red gymnasium frocks and berets to match, and their white sleeves were decorated with miniature Danish flags. There was no doubt as to their enthusiasm, but they were no match for Surrey, who scored five goals in the first half without response, and won by 9 goals to 1.

The outstanding player on the Danish side was Miss Storm, who scored her side's only goal, after a spectacular run. Surrey's scorers were Miss Brown (4), Miss Albright (3), Miss Lindsay and Miss Ellis.

RUGBY.

INTER-CITY HOSPITALS MATCH.

LONDON DEFEATS DUBLIN.

A POINT DECIDES THE GAME.

The annual encounter between the rival medicos of Dublin and London took place in the College Park yesterday, before a small gathering, and resulted in a win for the visitors by the smallest possible margin—one point—on the scores of—London Hospitals, a penalty goal and two tries, to Dublin's one goal and a try. The visitors were without their English international forward, W. E. Tucker, who could not travel, and H. D. Robertson (St. Mary's) replaced C. E. Drew (St. Thomas's) in the pack. The Dublin side played as selected.

The ground was heavy and holding, and the ball, in consequence, difficult to handle, so that back play was discounted, and forward work mainly prevailed. In this department the visitors were the better in the tight, and they got possession time and again, mainly through the excellent hooking of the stocky South African, Fryburg. The game opened rather tamely, with little advantage to either side. After five minutes' play, in which D. J. Cussen and Garland were prominent, despite good defence by Knott, Garland slipped in for a try at the right, but Durr muffed an easy conversion. Cussen, Ryan and Stanley tried to get through, but good tackling by Crowe, Nunns and Morris nullified, and Brosnan led a good home rush, Frederick saving by touching down. Crowe had an ineffective drop at goal. Liddy headed a fine home rush, but the London back again saved by touching down. Play continued of a rather scrappy order, London getting possession, but the home forwards doing fine but unfinished work in the loose. Popplewell led the visiting pack well, but Knott and Nunns put Dublin invading, and after Cussen had cleared Murray sent to Nunns, and taking a reverse pass after a clever cut through, sent Cherry over at the left corner to equalise twenty-five minutes from the start, Nunns just failing to add the points. Alternate rushes followed, and Ryan dropped wide at goal. Knott, Murray and Nunns stalled off attacks, but Cremin missed a pass, and a likely score was lost. Stanley and Bulby regained ground for London. Level play followed to the interval, and the sides changed over with honours easy.

In the second half Ryan just failed to drop a goal for the visitors, and Nunns and Crowe, aided by a knock-on by the visitors, brought Dublin to the attack. After a touch down Popplewell broke away in the loose, but Knott defended well, and Nunns sent Cremin away at mid-field to give to Crowe, who burst through for a try behind the posts. Murray improving. London at once retaliated, and D. J. Cussen gave a sample of his quality by dashing through on the right from twenty yards out, Durr's kick going wide. Dublin were now two points ahead, but it was anybody's match. Each side attacked in turn. Smith headed a fine Dublin rush. Stanley put London attacking, and Knott had to kick dead. From a London attack Durr landed a penalty goal ten minutes from the end to give London the lead, and, as it proved, the victory. Nunns just missed a penalty for Dublin, and Morris and Cherry had great bursts, but they were held up.

For the winners, Frederick, at back, was sound in defence, but kicked short. D. J. Cussen made the most of the few times he handled the ball, and Ryan and Stanley were good as individualists. Garland, who is likely to get on an English trial, was clever at scrum half, but inclined to get offside. Fryburg hooked most effectively, and Popplewell was a good leader of the pack, in which Jenkins, Durr and Malone also did well. For Dublin, Knott gave a good display, tackling and kicking in good style. Cherry got few chances on the wing, and Morris was in the same unenviable position. Crowe was a successful opportunist, and Nunns worked very hard, but he could not, perforce, get much help from Murray, for the pack did not heel. Brosnan, Smith and Liddy were the best of the forwards. Result:—

Teams:—

Dublin Hospitals—H. E. Knott (Dun's); T. Morris (Vincent's), P. Cremin (Mater), M. Crowe (Richmond), J. C. Cherry (Dun's); P. Murray (Richmond), C. Nunns (Dun's); M. Brosnan (Richmond), P. A. Smith (Mater), F. H. Eardley (Vincent's), M. Shelley (Vincent's), C. O'Flynn (Mater), J. Liddy (Richmond), H. Tighe (Richmond), F. O'Driscoll (Vincent's).

London Hospitals—E. V. Frederick (Bart.'s); D. J. Cussen (St. Mary's), D. F. Ryan (Guy's), R. G. Stanley (London), C. B. Prowse (Bart.'s); F. J. Bulby (Bart.'s), T. O. Garland (Guy's); C. R. Jenkins (Bart.'s), R. F. Popplewell (Guy's), M. Durr (Guy's), W. Fryburg (Guy's), C. D. Malone (Guy's), G. H. Cameron (Guy's), H. S. Waters (St. Mary's).

IRISH PLAYERS IN ENGLAND

PRAISED BY CRITICS.

Irish Rugby players in England seem to catch the eye of the critics, if one is to judge by the remarks about some of them in yesterday's Sporting Life. First of all there is reference to George Beamish, as follows:—"The well-known Air Force and Irish International forward, George Beamish, who played so well for the Combined Services against the Waratahs, is a valued member of the Leicester team. That he is not selected for Ireland in their first International on Saturday next appears a mistake, for he is in better form than ever. Beamish keeps himself fit by boxing and other sports, but his first 'love' is Rugby, as it is with 'F. V., his brother.'"

Then, in the same column, another Irish forward is written of in the following terms:—"The fact that C. J. Cagney is to play for Surrey against Hampshire, in the County Championship match at Bournemouth to-morrow, is gratifying, for it indicates that the popular London-Irish captain is now thoroughly fit, after the accident last season that prevented him obtaining further international honours. Cagney is a great forward, whom Ireland must again soon associate in the national pack with 'Horsey' Browne, George Beamish and Hugh McVicker, who are all playing in England."

The writer then proceeds to discover a likely aspirant to the out-half position on the English side by encroaching on Irish preserves. The paragraph reads:—"The success of R. V. Odbert, the Royal Air Force outside-half, in association with Arthur Young, the international, has rather complicated matters for the Rugby International Selection Committee. They are now faced with the fact that, in addition to Odbert, they have as 'possibles' for the position H. C. C. Laird, of the Harlequins; C. C. Bishop, of Blackheath, and R. S. Spong, of the Old Millhillians. But the chances of Odbert being 'capped' are by no means negligible, although R. A. Buckingham, of Leicester, must also be remembered."

R. V. Odbert is an old Blackrock College schoolboy, now in the Royal Air Force. He played for Monkstown on a few occasions when home on leave, and is very likely to be given a trial for the Irish side.

IRELAND V. N.S. WALES.

The New South Wales team to play Ireland at Lansdowne road next Saturday has not yet been announced, but it is safe to assume that it will not differ in many respects from the side which defeated the Combined Services at Twickenham on last Saturday. The side then was:—

LADIES' HOCKEY NOTES.

A HEAVY SCORING WEEK-END.

FARCICAL GAME AT SYDNEY PARADE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

A large programme was down for decision on Saturday last, and, with the exception of a few Junior fixtures, all matches were played. In Senior circles there was any amount of high scoring—a few of the largest being:—Old College 10, Old Wesley nil; Monkstown 8, Trefoil 3; Muckross 7, Pembroke Wanderers 3, and Optimists "A" 7, National Bank 3.

The match at Sydney Parade was a one-sided affair from the start, more particularly as Old Wesley turned up with only eight players. In the end it developed into something of a farce, as Old College had to lend their goal-keeper, Miss Beckh, to Wesley, to try and even up matters. The scorers for Old College were Misses Hogg (4), Dougal (2), Cullen (3), and Porter.

DASH OF PEMBROKE WANDERERS.

Probably the best match of the day was played at Serpentine avenue between Muckross and Pembroke Wanderers. Although winning by 7-3, Muckross had anything but an easy match, as Pembroke Wanderers played a keen, dashing game, and all their scores were well deserved. The first half was very even, and Muckross only had a 2-1 lead at the interval. Afterwards, however, they managed to score three times before Miss Dowling added a second goal for Wanderers. The same player scored again between Muckross' sixth and seventh goals. Miss M. Kelly (4) and Miss A. Lowndes (3) were responsible for the Muckross scores, and Miss D. Whiteside scored the other Wanderers' goal. The pick of the winning forwards were Misses Kelly and Lowndes, while Miss O'Gorman (right wing) got in some fine work.

The Muckross defence did not shine on Saturday, the Wanderers' forwards being allowed to get clean away on more than one occasion. Miss O'Rourke (centre-half), for one, was not half careful enough in her marking of Miss Dowling. Of the Wanderers' front line, Misses Starkie and Alice Dowling were outstanding. The wings were more or less starved, but made the most of their chances. The halves showed great improvement in their marking, despite the number of goals scored. The backs were inclined to indulge in fly-hitting, dangerous at the best of times, but especially so with inexperienced players.

EASY WIN FOR MAIDS.

Although only four of their usual first were available, Maids of the Mountain were easily able to account for Triginta (6-1). Misses Stoker (goal), Wilson and Bradbury (halves), and Moore were the only senior players out, all the other seven being substitutes. The ground was in a very heavy state, and in consequence play was often impeded. Misses Wallis (3) and Gahan (3) scored for Maids, and Miss Carey for Triginta.

Muckross II. met with another set-back on Saturday, this time at the hands of Optimists B, the score being 4-1. Optimists were without Miss M. Harrington (centre-forward), but, even so, they were well able for Muckross' second string. The Muckross forwards were weak, and their play disjointed, whereas their opponents combined well and their work in the circle was good. The Optimists' backs were never severely tried, but the Muckross defence got plenty to do, and Misses R. O'Gorman, McAuley (backs) and McGloughlin (half) were most prominent. Misses J. Harrington (2) and R. Preston (2) scored for Optimists, and F. Lowndes for Muckross.

SOUND DEFENCE.

Dublin University and Alexandra played a drawn game (2-2) at Trinity Hall. Alexandra forwards had a slight advantage territorially, but the Trinity defence was good, and, despite numerous attempts, Alexandra were unable to obtain a lead.

At Sandymount avenue, Antiquity registered their third consecutive win by beating High School 3-1. They would probably have won by a larger margin but for the fine goalkeeping of Miss Maxwell.

Monkstown, though winning by 8-3 against Trefoil, had not so much of the play as the score would suggest. Their goalkeeper, Miss Shannon, was in no small way responsible for the victory. The Trefoil forwards lacked speed and finish, and were no match for their steady opponents.

CAPS AND BADGES.

Club secretaries are requested to note that the closing date for entries for the Senior Cup, Intermediate, Middle, Junior and Minor badges competitions is the 15th November, and all entries and fees must reach the Hon. Secretary, Miss A. Kelly, 47 Ashfield road, Ranelagh, on or before that date, when the draw will take place.

Mr. C. G. W. Proctor, son of the late Rev. R. G. Proctor, will shortly be ordained to the vacant curacy of All Saints, Grangegorman. Mr. Proctor has had a successful career in Trinity College.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT (Criminal).

GONE TO CANADA.

WINE ROBBERY CASE: SURETY'S IGNORANCE.

(BEFORE JUDGE ROCHE.)

James Connell, who had been on bail, did not appear when his name was called on an indictment for a series of robberies, and it was stated that he had gone to Canada.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), who appeared for the prosecution, said that he would ask the judge to estreat the recognisances of the accused man. The case was a remarkable one. Connell was indicted for having, in the month of April last, engaged with others in the looting of a large quantity of wines, spirits and tobacco which was being despatched by train to merchants in the West of Ireland. The value of the goods ran into some hundreds of pounds. They were stolen from the wagons and brought back to Dublin, and later portion was found on the premises of the accused man. At the Police Court two persons—James Dwyer, of Arran quay, and Mary Fitzpatrick, of Fairview—went bail in £200 each for Connell; but he had taken his departure, and was now, it appeared, in Canada. The matter was very serious, and the sureties should be made responsible to the fullest extent.

Mr. Bradley, solicitor, on behalf of Mary Fitzpatrick, said that she was a poor woman, and had acted through ignorance of the seriousness of the responsibility which she undertook. She was under the impression when signing her bond that it was a mere formality. She had been told to do so by Mr. Corbett, solicitor.

Mary Fitzpatrick gave evidence that at Connell's premises in Blackhall place Mr. Corbett, solicitor, asked her to sign the bond, stating that it was a matter of form. Her premises had been burned down and had not been reconstructed.

Judge Roche—Is he still a solicitor?

Mr. Bradley—Yes, so far as I know. He was a solicitor's clerk, but was admitted three or four years ago. I have appeared against him. He has not been struck off the roll by the Incorporated Law Society.

Judge Roche said that this was a matter for the Society, not for him. He had enough to do without that, and the Society could deal with Mr. Corbett.

Mr. Carrigan said that he was ventilating the matter as a matter of considerable public interest, and because of the great inconvenience that arose to the administration of justice in these Courts by persons going bail in this way and when there was no appearance for the accused party.

Judge Roche—It is your duty, of course, to do so.

Mr. Carrigan said that there had been three such cases, and it was a great scandal.

James Dwyer, the other surety, gave evidence, and said that when he went bail he knew Connell to be a man of substance and in good business. The moment he heard that this charge was pending and that the man had left the country he gave notice to the police.

Judge Roche said that it was well that the citizens should know that this procedure of going bail for accused persons was not by any means a mere formality. The persons bailed must come forward and take their trial, or a bench warrant would be issued for their arrest, and the persons entering into recognisances would be made responsible. In the case of James Dwyer he would reduce the amount he must pay to £50, and as regards the female surety the penalty would be £25. He hoped that this would be a warning to others.

THEFT FROM CARS.

TWO MEN SENTENCED.

The hearing was resumed of the trial of the case, in which Peter Rock and Dominick Antonio Caffola had been indicted in connection with the disappearance from motor cars in Dublin of valises, suit cases, parcels, jewellery, etc., while the vehicles were stationary in the street. Robert Mills, alias Greer, and Mrs. Clare Madden had also been indicted in connection with the case, and, pleading guilty, had been put back. Caffola, who was an ice cream vendor in Amiens street, pleaded not guilty to the charge of receiving.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C. (instructed by the State Solicitor) prosecuted. Mr. Lupton, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Roger Greene and Son) defended Caffola. Rock, who was charged with conspiracy, was not professionally represented.

Robert Mills was examined as a witness, and said that he lived in Killarney street, and subsequently in Amiens street. The contents of a suit case stolen from one of the cars were taken by him to the ice cream shop in Amiens street kept by Caffola, who purchased them. The articles included a gold-mounted cigarette case and gold cuff links, and a dress suit. A case stolen from another car contained jewellery, ornaments, and a Spanish shawl, which he thought was a table cover. Subsequently Caffola suggested that the witness should leave the jewellery with him, as he might be caught, and that it would be better for somebody to have the benefit of the articles. Ultimately a bargain for the whole lot was struck at £4 5s.

Mr. Lupton contended that his client could not be convicted on uncorroborated evidence of an alleged accomplice. Caffola bore a good character, and was entitled to an acquittal.

When Mrs. Clare Madden was put forward, Judge Roche said that he carefully considered her case, and he, as well as the Counsel for the State, had come to the conclusion that she was more legally and technically than morally guilty. But it should be a warning to people to be very careful before buying cheap goods from people. He allowed her out on a rule of bail in £20 to be of good behaviour for one year.

The Judge said that the public must be protected from such dishonest persons. He commended the conduct of the detectives in the case.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

LODGERS' PROPERTY.

SIX MONTHS' HARD LABOUR FOR THEFTS.

(BEFORE MR. LITTLE).

Francis Smith (22), no address, was charged on remand with stealing from a room in the premises, 118 Allingham Buildings, an overcoat value £3, belonging to Thomas Murtagh, and a pair of boots, and from a room in the premises, 21 Werburgh street, a coat and vest, value £3 16s. 6d., belonging to John Macken, a lodger there.

The prisoner admitted the offence, and when asked if he would like to go before a jury, replied: "I'll take your punishment, sir."

The prisoner was sent to jail for six months on each count, the sentences to run concurrently.

GAS METER THEFTS.

YOUTH UNDERTAKES TO LEAVE THE COUNTRY.

Robert Smith (19), Stamer street, who was charged on remand with breaking into houses and stealing the contents of gas meters, was discharged under the Probation Act, on entering into recognisances on his own and his mother's bail of £20 each, to come up for judgment and sentence within three years, if called upon, and to leave the country within a week and not return during the probation period.

The defendant's mother undertook to pay to Detective Leonard £7 odd, which will be returned to the owners of the gas meters.

Mr. P. H. O'Reilly, solicitor, defended.

REMEMBRANCE SUNDAY IN CASTLEDERG.

The members of the British Legion and other ex-Service men of the Castlederg district paraded to the Second Presbyterian Church on Remembrance Sunday, under command of Captain D. B. Williams. The parade was headed by the pipers of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, Omagh. In the church a most impressive Service was held. The address was given by Rev. W. P. Moran, B.A., H.C.F., and the Revs. W. Henderson, W. Macoust, W Duncan, R. L. Matchett, and A. W. McFarlane took part in the Service. A large united choir rendered the Service of praise, with Miss Mary Leitch presiding at the organ. The church was filled, and a generous collection was given for Earl Haig's Fund.

THE MONEY MARKET.

STRINGENCY IN LOANS.

There was a strong demand for money, especially during the early hours, owing to the heavy calling in of funds by some of the Banks, and to the fact that the market had a fairly large amount to repay to the Bank. The latter transaction was not accomplished without some difficulty, the market now being clear of the central institution. Short loans were in keen demand in the morning, when borrowers were paying anything from 4-5 p.c., but towards the close credit became more plentiful, and balances were offering at 4-3¾ p.c. Old day-to-day money was renewed at 3½ to 4 p.c., and weekly fixtures at 3½ p.c.

Bank Rate Discount (changed April 21 1927), 4½ %

The discount market was very quiet, with rates unchanged. Fine three months' bills were quoted at 4 5/16 p.c., while the new Treasuries were offered at that figure to 1/32 over.

Tenders were received at the Bank yesterday for £1,000,000 London County Council twelve months' bills. Tenders at £95 11s. 5d. received about 60 p.c., above in full. The average rates indicated is just over 4⅜ p.c., which is in accordance with market anticipations.

About £450,000 of South African bar gold was available in the open market, of which £246,000 was taken by an undisclosed buyer, most of the balance being divided between India, the Home and Continental trade. The Bank of England announced the sale of bar gold valued at £10,000, and the export of 5,000 sovereigns to Spain and 5,000 to Holland. Spot silver was unchanged at 26 7/16d. per oz., but forward fell 1/16d. to 26¼d. per oz. The Indian bazaars bought, but the China banks sold. Gold remained at 84s. 11¼d. per fine oz.

The American exchange keeps very steady, and finished a shade harder again at 4.87 1/32. Movements in European rates were irregular. Spanish pesetas and German marks were cheaper, and to a small extent Hungary and Rumania moved in our favour. Dutch guilders were better again, the quotations falling to 12.07, and there was some appreciation in the currencies of Switzerland, Austria and Norway.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

The Bank of Montreal, 47 Threadneedle street, E.C., announce, with reference to the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., 1927 issue, that certificates of subscription are now ready to be exchanged for temporary receipts Nos. 1 to 7,600.

DENNIS BROS.' REPAYMENT OF CAPITAL.

Dennis Brothers, the motor 'bus people, announce a further repayment of capital of 7s. per share, thus reducing the shares to 3s. fully paid. Last year 10s. per share capital was repaid. The dividend this year on the 10s. shares is 5s. per share, the same as for the preceding twelve months on £1 shares. The 3s. share is to be divided into three shares of 1s. each, fully paid.

BRANSTON ARTIFICIAL SILK COMPANY.

The Branston Artificial Silk Company, Ltd., announce that an arrangement has been made between themselves and Messrs. Charles Semon and Company, Ltd., of Bradford, whereby the latter will act as sole selling agents for the former on terms, that the whole output of the Branston works will be sold quality for quality at the same prices as the standard makes. The arrangement comes into force with the commencement of production early in the year.

PRODUCE AND FOOD MARKETS.

CATTLE.

LEEDS.—On offer: 459 beasts, at 8d. to 9¼d., heavy cows and bulls 6d. to 7d. Better trade. Sheep 1,788, at 10d. to 1/1, hoggets 1/- to 1/1½, ewes 6d. to 7d. Better trade.

SALFORD.—On offer: Beasts 1,479, sheep and lambs 8,108 (increase 85), calves 5, milch beasts 111 (decrease 6). Irish entries included 570 fat beasts. A firmer tone to note generally, and good meated beasts cleared readily; other classes also in better request. Good demand for sheep and lambs, with latter making advanced prices. Should favourable weather continue, marked improvement in business is expected. Best English beasts quoted 8¾d., best Irish around 8d., secondary grades 7d. to 7½d., good fat young cows 6d. to 7d.; light North country sheep 1/0½, heavier weights 10½d. to 11½d., ewes 7½d., best Welsh lambs 1/1½, others 1/1. Cows suitable for dairy purposes continue on quiet side, but prices unchanged at £20 to £28 per head.

CAMBRIDGE.—Beasts, 292; beef, 9/- to 11/-. Sheep, 405; mutton, shearlings to 8/-, hoggets 9/8. Pigs, 1,104; pork to 11/-. Calves, 99. Fat cattle—Larger supply, and trade rather brighter. Store beasts average show, and rates unchanged. Fat sheep made a good show, and stronger demand at recent values. Fat pigs—A much larger number offered, and bidding somewhat brisker for porkers. Bacon pigs a very slow trade. Store pigs a fairish demand.

GRAIN

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE.—Grain values continue nominally as previously quoted, and business is without any particular interest. Our Corn Exchange is still poorly attended and leaves nothing specially to report.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—WHEAT cargo market remained dull, and prices tended in buyers' favour, especially for North American descriptions, which were freely offered. The Baron London, 5,000 tons, comprising 1,500 tons of No. 2 Northern Manitoba Pacific shipment, and the balance No. 3 do. arrived out, to load, at 51/9 and 47/9 respectively; white Pacific afloat sellers 47/- to 47/9, as to position, November 48/-, December also January 48/9; No. 3 Northern Manitoba Pacific afloat 48/3, December 48/-, January 47/9; Rosafe (63lbs.) January 49/6, do. 62½lbs. January-February 49/3, and Barusso (63lbs.) January-February 49/-. Parcels inactive and values weaker; No. 4 Manitoba November sold 44/10½ per 480lbs. MAIZE cargoes firm, and shippers have advanced their limits by 3d. per quarter, but buyers fail to respond. Plate steamers afloat sellers 32/3, to 32/6, November 32/6, December 33/-, January 33/4½; No. 6 yellow African November 32/3. Parcels firm, but quiet; Plate sold afloat 31/6 to 31/9, November-December 32/-, and December-January 32/4½; No. 6 yellow African afloat sellers 32/-, October-November 32/3 per 480lbs. A fair business has been done in white flat Egyptian January-February at £7 10/- per ton to Continent. BARLEY quiet, but late rates were repeated in most instances. OATS steady, but inactive; Plate f.a.q. afloat sellers 26/6, new January-February 22/9; Chilian October-November 27/-, January-February 24/6 per 320lbs.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—American and Argentine markets finished worse than expected, and forward deliveries of wheat here showed a fair decline at the outset, and further receded in the absence of support, final rates marking a liberal loss from Monday night. C.i.f. parcels wheat, No. 1 dark spring, due, sold 48/3, No. 2 hard winter, due, 47/6, to Liverpool, and No. 1 dark spring, 12th November, 48/9, and No. 4 Manitoba, afloat, 44/6, to Manchester. C.i.f. parcels MAIZE River Plate, December-January, sold 32/4½ to 32/6 per qr. Wheat on the spot favourable to buyers. Maize spot parcels River Plate quietly steady at 6/11 to 6/11½ per cental. FLOUR unchanged. Graded wheat futures opened ½d. per cental lower, further gave way with but slight fluctuation, and closed quiet at ½d. to ¾d. under Monday night.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—Holders of Irish and Continental descriptions were steady at late rates, with buyers operating to a moderate extent, but American remained quiet, and Cumberlands were reduced a further 2/- to 74/- to 81/- per cwt. HAMS in only moderate consumptive demand, and extra skinless 2/- lower at 88/- to 92/- per cwt. Shoulders attract little attention, but no quotable change in values reported. LARD on the spot quietly steady at late prices for both American refined and prime steam, but buyers operate merely for their actual needs. CHEESE quiet but steadily held at late prices. BUTTER in improved demand and partially dearer, Danish being raised to 196/- to 200/- and Irish creameries 172/- to 176/- per cwt. EGGS firm on continued scarcity at 23/6 to 25/6 for Irish fresh hen and 20/- to 21/- for duck per 120.

MANCHESTER.—BUTTER—Danish and Swedish shipments for the week ended November 5th (not including Gothenburg) totalled 23,836 casks (decrease 2,113 casks). Market opened with prices tending upwards, and every probability of fairly substantial advance towards the week-end. Supplies of Irish creameries becoming somewhat irregular. Choicest quoted—Danish 196/- to 198/-, dairies extra: Swedish 186/- to 188/-, Finnish 186/- to 188/-, Irish creameries 172/- to 174/-, New Zealand nominal. BACON—Danish and Swedish shipments 16,037 bales (decrease 126 bales). More seasonable weather, coupled with the present low prices, has undoubtedly stimulated demand for all descriptions; market shows improving tendency. General quotations—Irish 74/- to 84/-, North of Ireland rolls 76/- to 90/-, according to weight and cure; Danish 75/- to 80/-, Swedish 70/- to 75/-, and Dutch 70/- to 75/-. LARD firmer; English refined 72/6 boxes wholesale, American 68/6 to 69/6 according to brand. CHEESE—Choicest Cheshire scarce, 1/1½; interior qualities plentiful, but neglected; Lancashire 1/3; Canadian quietly steady; fancy 102/- to 103/-, finest 101/- to 102/-, secondary 100/- to 101/-. EGGS—Danish and Swedish shipments, 4,343 cases (decrease 1,192 cases). Market steady; Irish extras 24/6 to 25/-, selected 24/-, mediums 20/-, ducks 20/-, cold stored 15/- to 16/-; Danish, 18lbs. 24/- to 24/6, 17lbs. 23/6 to 24/-, 15½lbs. 22/6 to 22/9; Dutch 25/6, ditto ducks 16/-; Australians 19/- to 21/-, South African 17/9 to 19/-, Russians 11/- to 13/6, Egyptians 8/9.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE AND FRUIT.—An earlier and readier sell-up was made of the rather good supply of vegetables on market. York cabbage made 10/- to 15/- per load, Savoy cabbage 8/- to 10/- and 17/- per load; swede turnips 1/9 to 2/- per cwt., small, 2/- to 2/4 per cwt. large; celery 2/- to 3/- and extra 4/6 per dozen bundles; white turnips 6d. per bunch, cauliflowers 1/6 to 1/10 per dozen, carrots 2/10 to 3/- per dozen, lettuce 8d. to 10d. per dozen, beet 1/6 per dozen, marrows 2/-, thyme 2d. to 4d. per bunch, parsley 6d. tray, parsnips 4/6 to 5/- per cwt., sprouts 2/- to 2/6 per float, tomatoes 1/- per lb. Irish apples 10/- to 20/- per barrel, 6/- to 12/- per keg, 1/- to 2/6 per tray. Imported fruits in fair request, and supply ample for all requirements: apples: Newtowns 18/- to 24/- per barrel; Jonathans 20/-, Yorks 32/- to 36/-, Kings 35/- to 37/-, Ben Davis 30/- to 34/- per barrel; Sunkist oranges 40/- to 50/- per case, Cape oranges 30/- to 32/-, lemons 35/- to 40/- per case, grape fruit 28/- per case, black grapes 1/- to 1/6 and 2/- per lb., green grapes 25/- to 30/- and 35/- per barrel, pears 17/6 per box. Anjou pears 25/- to 30/- per box. Keiffer pears 30/- to 35/- and 40/- per barrel, English tomatoes 5/- to 11/- per box, Canary tomatoes 5/- to 6/- per box; onions: 5's 16/-, 4's 14/-, per bag 10/-.

DUBLIN POTATO.—Business in this direction remains slow without any change in previous prices—viz., Prime selected table tubers 5/- to 5/3 and 5/6 per cwt., bulk lots £4 to £4 15/- per ton, ex rail, etc.

DUBLIN POULTRY AND GAME.—All seasonable descriptions of poultry were in good arrival here, and prices firmed up correspondingly with the improved weather conditions. A good demand exists for game and wild fowl of prime quality. Rabbits, too, in good condition are selling well. Prices:—Prime quality chickens, dead 10d. to 1/1 per lb., small chickens 1/6 to 2/- each; large fat hens 2/- to 2/9, others 1/- to 1/6; prime fat ducklings 3/6 to 4/6, stores 1/6 to 2/6, old ducks 8d. to 10d. each; prime quality fatted geese 7d. to 8d. per lb., coarse or stubble classes 3/6 to 4/6 each; prime turkeys 1/- to 1/2 per lb.; thin or crooked birds make less money. Game:—Prime quality grouse, young 3/- each, old 2/- to 2/6; young partridge, prime class 2/6, old 1/-; cock pheasants 4/6 to 5/-, hen pheasants 4/- to 4/6; best hares 2/6; best fresh trapped rabbits 1/2 to 1/4 each.

DUBLIN EGG AND BUTTER.—The market for creamery produce is dearer, and supplies indicate a falling off. Trade for factory butter, however, is fair, but farmers' butter only meets a limited demand, while supply is not large. Prices:—Finest Irish creams 1/6½ to 1/7 per lb., fair quality creams 1/6 to 1/6½; fine grade factory butter 1/5 per lb.; ordinary descriptions 1/3½ to 1/3¾ per lb.; good average farmers' butter realises 1/1 to 1/3 per lb.; finest cools and separators 1/4½ per lb., but coarse grade farmers' butter is difficult to cash at irregular prices. EGGS—Best fresh hen eggs meet a fair sale, but other classes are dull and slumpy, while supply is equal to demand. A pretty good inquiry ruling for best class of cold storage eggs. Extra selected fresh, large hen eggs 26/- to 27/- per 120. Case lots of hen eggs, ordinary and selected, 23/- to 25/6; medium quality eggs 21/- to 21/6, smalls 13/- to 14/- per 120; best duck eggs 20/- to 21/-; selected cold storage eggs, repacked and tested, 16/6 to 16/9; for retail lots up to 17/- per 120.

CORK BUTTER.—Improved tone; prices advancing. Creameries 164/- to 167/- per cwt.; choicest salted 168/- upwards.

DUBLIN FISH.—Fish on this centre was in fair arrival—viz., 217 boxes from two steam trawlers, 8 chests lobsters, 200 boxes herrings. Sales were good at following rates:—Large lobsters 17/6 to 25/-, seconds 10/- to 12/6, smalls 2/6 to 5/- per lot of 13; large soles 35/- to 60/- per 8 and 9 pairs, mediums 20/- to 25/-; slips 5/- to 7/6 per lot, turbot 6d. to 15/- each, brill 6d. to 5/- each. Steamer fish—Plaice 25/- to 100/-, codfish 30/- to 65/-, whiting 12/6 to 40/-, congers 15/- to 25/-, ray 12/6 to 22/-, haddock 30/- to 50/-, pollock 15/- to 25/-, hake 25/- to 70/-, gurnard 5/- to 7/6 per half box; herrings averaged 2/- to 10/- per box.

BILLINGSGATE FISH.—Fair supplies; fair demand. Soles 18d. to 22d., slips 15d. to 18d., lobsters 24d. to 36d. per lb., live eels 12/- to 25/-, dead 10/- to 22/- per draught, turbot 11/- to 16/-, brill 9/- to 12/-, plaice 8/- to 14/-, halibut 14/- to 18/-, lemon soles 11/- to 16/-, cod 5/- to 7/-, whiting 2/- to 5/-, skate 5/- to 7/-, hake 8/- to 11/-, haddocks 4/- to 7/- per stone.

MANCHESTER DEAD MEAT.—Home-killed beef: Irish sides 6½d. to 7½d., best mutton around 9d., lambs 8½d. to 10d., ewes 6d. to 7d.; chilled beef—hindquarters 6d. to 6½d., forequarters 4d. to 4½d.; frozen beef—hindquarters 4½d. to 5d., forequarters 3½d. to 4d., mutton wethers 4½d. to 6d., ewes 4½d. to 5½d., lambs 7½d. to 9½d.

LONDON POTATO.—Market quiet on excess arrivals. King Edwards 6/6, Bedford ditto 5/6 to 6/6, dark soil King Edwards 5/6, whites 4/6 to 5/6, Siltland British Queen 6/-, whites 5/- to 5/6 per cwt.

PRODUCE.

LONDON.—SUGAR—British refined more freely sought after, prices remaining unaltered. Home-grown granulated very steady, and near deliveries in request on provincial account. Bardney now 28/3. Imported firmer, and Dutch granulated spot London 27/9. Shipment parcels firmer on few offers, but buyers reticent. Terminal dearer; November sold 14/0¾ to 14/1¼, December 14/1¼ to 14/3, January 15/9 to 15/9½, March 16/2½ to 16/3, May 16/5½ to 16/6, August 16/9½. Liverpool, less 1½ p.c. discount. Cubes, ex refinery, in London, less 1½ p.c. discount—No. 1 31/9, H.T.S. 31/6, afternoon tea 32/-.

CLYDE CRUSHED SUGAR.—The market continues firm on further advanced terminal advices. Actual sugar quotations are generally dearer. Demand good.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.—American futures eased slightly at first owing to Eastern selling, but the market improved afterwards on trade calling and unfavourable weather reports. Business later in the day was very quiet owing to New York being closed. Sales 7,000 (exports 200). American Futures—Tendency steady: November 11.29d., inc. 5; December 11.26d., inc. 4; January 11.24d., inc. 5; February 11.19d., inc. 5; March 11.19d., inc. 5; April 11.16d., inc. 5; May 11.16d., inc. 5; June 11.08d., inc. 5; July 11.04d., inc. 5; August 10.91d., inc. 7; September 10.71d., inc. 6; October 10.59d., inc. 6; November 10.54d., inc. 6. MANCHESTER TRADE.—Cloth market quiet; fair inquiry. Shirtings, light bleaching goods, dhooties, jaconets for India, small turnover; staples, fancies, dyeing and printing goods wanted for China; moderate finishing lines sold South Africa, stock lots Egypt. Yarns nominally unchanged. Americans extremely irregular. Production of ordinary qualities not sold. Useful demand for finer sorts of hosiery yarns and twofolds.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW (Smithfield).—The frosty condition of the roads in the early part of the morning was accountable for the small arrival of hay. Choice quality very scarce, and sold at 3d. per cwt., an increase on last Friday's prices; everything on market cleared. Quotations:—1st crop 4/9 to 5/- and 5/3, 2nd and 3rd crop 4/3 to 4/6; old meadow 3/3 to 3/6 and 3/9 per cwt., inferior sorts 2/- to 2/6 and 3/- per cwt. Straw also was in small compass, and readily cashed at following rates—2/3 to 2/6 and 2/9 per cwt. for both wheaten and oaten.

LONDON HAY AND STRAW.—Moderate demand; light supplies. Best meadow hay £5 10/- to £6 15/-, medium £4 10/- to £5 10/-, inferior £3 15/- to £4 10/-, best mixtures sanfoin £6 to £7 5/-, best clover £6 10/- to £7 10/-; best trussed wheat straw 80/- to 90/-, barley oat ditto 81/- to 95/-, all per ton, delivered.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

TIN IRREGULAR.

TIN in fair support, but prices somewhat irregular, cash on balance being 10/- per ton dearer, but forward 20/- lower compared with the closing rates of Monday last. Standard cash quoted £258 5/- to £258 10/-, three months £252 to £252 5/-; settlement price £258 5/-. 800 tons changed hands: cash at £258 5/-, £257 15/-, and again at £258 5/-, three months £252, £252 10/-, £251, and finally registered at £252. English ingots quoted £257 5/- to £257 15/-. COPPER continues in demand, and prices again firmer, though somewhat irregular at times. On balance cash ruled 5/- and forward 6/3 per ton dearer. Standard cash quoted £58 15/- to £58 16/3, three months £58 12/6 to £58 13/9; settlement price £58 15/-. 1,100 tons sold, comprising three months at £58 16/3, £58 10/-, and finally £58 12/6. Electros quoted £63 5/- to £63 15/-, wire bars £63 15/-, B.S. £62 10/- to £63 15/-, strong sheets £86. LEAD slightly easier; sales amounted to 900 tons; good soft foreign pig November at £20 2/6, December £20 6/3, January £20 10/-, February £20 12/6; settlement price £20 2/6. English quoted £21 10/-. SPELTER market quiet and easier; 350 tons sold: November at £25 12/6, December £25 11/3, January £25 10/-, February £25 10/- to £25 7/6; settlement price £25 12/6 per ton. TIN PLATES steady; I.C. coke prompt and forward 17/9 to 18/- per standard box f.o.b. Swansea.

GLASGOW IRON AND STEEL.—The heavy departments are still badly in need of specifications, and bookings are limited. The market generally shows no change, continuing quiet, with fairly steady tone. Prices show no change.
